Traffic Jams Plague Motorists On NW Tollway

Commuters yesterday experienced the worst traffic jams on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways since construction began there in May because of elimination of all express lanes.

An Illinois Tollway Authority official said the express lanes were barricaded Sunday morning after a series of serious auto accidents within the last week on the route which had been designated for speedier traffic.

"We had three or four serious accidents on the express lanes last week," the official said, adding, "We closed them because people were driving too fast for conditions."

A Chicago man was killed in a crash on the Northwest Tollway Saturday afternoon when his car crossed the center line and collided with a vehicle in the express lane. The decision to eliminate the express lanes was made Saturday night.

Commuters who ventured onto the eastbound Northwest Tollway yesterday found bumper to bumper traffic which choked Chicago-bound drivers to a standstill. Drivers reported at least an hour back-up on the single eastbound lane yesterday.

The southbound Tri-State Tollway, also funneled to a single lane, had lengthy traffic tie-ups.

DRIVERS CAN expect no relief on the Northwest Tollway until construction is completed Aug. 1, while the Tri-State work may be finished next Tuesday, according to highway officials.

Because of the tangle of traffic, tollway engineers blockaded entrances to the Northwest Tollway at Arlington Heights Road and Elmhurst Road. They now are considering blocking the Touhy Avenue entrance onto the Tri-State to stop drivers from entering there.

Dozens of cars have stalled on the tollway due to the stop-and-go conditions, and the fleet of emergency tollway repair vehicles has been increased.

Tollway officials suggest that drivers take alternate routes to prevent further traffic problems.

The resurfacing projects extend for 11 miles on both toll roads and are being completed at an estimated cost of more than $5.5 million. Both tollways were built in 1958, and this is the first major resurfacing work, consisting of adding layers of blacktop to the existing pavement.

Hearing For Howie Turns Into Auction

Looking more like an old-fashioned auction than a federal court hearing, the Howie-in-the-Hills subdivision in Hoffman Estates was sold for $5.6 million to a New York-based housing corporation yesterday.

The spirited bidding for the 500-acre parcel of land adjacent to the Winston Knolls subdivision in the northwest corner of the village took place before Senior Federal District Court Judge William J. Campbell. He acted as auctioneer by encouraging competing developers several times to raise their offers.

Campbell's efforts worked to some success as the bids for the land jumped to more than $400,000 in a matter of minutes. Meridian Investment and Development Corp. outbid Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. for the land. Kaufman and Broad is the developer of Barrington Square in Hoffman Estates.

The sale of the property was conditioned on clear title being obtained and rezoning satisfactory to all parties involved.

Both conditions could represent major hurdles for the confirmation of the sale of the property, which represents a major portion of the assets of the now defunct City Savings and Loan Association. The financial institution went bankrupt in 1964 after its president C. Oran Mensik, allegedly bilked it of more than $28 million.

THE PROPERTY presently has more than $2 million in lawsuits filed against it. The biggest suit, now pending in the Cook County Circuit Court, has been filed by the Central States Pension Fund of the Teamsters Union. Judge Campbell has scheduled a closed conference for the pension funds representative and others in an effort to iron out the difficulties. Confirmation of the sale has been set for July 31.

Meridian and Kaufman and Broad emerged as the major bidder on the property when a bid from Miller Builders of Skokie was withdrawn and a $4.75 million from 3-H Builders was dropped because of the extensive conditions placed on the bid.

The initial K & B bid offered two prices, $4,075,000 with no rezoning considerations, or $5.26 million with rezoning adequate for six units-per-acre development.

The offer was countered almost immediately by Meridian attorney Gerald Gittles with a $5.3 million bid. Then attorneys for Kaufman and Broad requested permission to contact other officials about an increased bid.

Judge Campbell, who had publicly stated that he hoped to get at least $5.75 million for the land, encouraged the conference.

A few minutes later Kaufman and Broad offered $5.325 million.

Gittles, telling Judge Campbell that he did not even need to record the other offer, jumped Meridian's bid to $5.5 million.

KAUFMAN AND BROAD asked and got another closed door conference and emerged to offer $5.5 million asking the only condition on the bid be a clear title.

Meridian then ended the bidding with a final offer of $5.6 million. Kaufman and Broad representatives declined to remain in the bidding after the offer.

Storm Deals Knockout Punch To Homeowners

by MARY HUTCHINGS

Several area families face the difficult task of relocating as others finish cleaning up their homes and yards following the havoc caused by high winds that swept through Hoffman Estates Friday.

Many were waiting for the insurance adjusters to survey damage before they could throw out most of the debris.

Donald Tantillo, 105 Duckeye Dr., whose home was virtually demolished when the roof blew off, was looking Monday for a house to rent while his home could be rebuilt. After his insurance agent visits, he said reconstruction work would probably take two months.

A sign on the roofless home of William Hawkins, 138 Bode Rd., read, "Here we do not impress each other with our money, our status or our clothes. We impress each other with each other." The Hawkins will rent an apartment in the area as soon as possible.

The family was staying at the home of their church's assistant pastor, and a number of church members helped the Hawkins with clean up work over the weekend.

ED KOFFEL estimated damage to his duplex at 173 Grissom St., at $10,000. He said he was "wiped out" by the storm. The roof was blown off his home and flying debris from a demolished home under construction on Berkeley Lane did additional damage.

The storm cut short by two days a vacation in Hawaii for Mark Sortoli, 171 Grissom St., who received a telegram indicating "damage to house and car," he said. The roof of his home was damaged, the chimney is loose and water seepage was extensive, he said.

Al Folkes, who owns several buildings in one of the hardest hit areas, said damage to his roofless duplex will probably be $4,000. Replacing even the shingles on some of the less hard hit homes will be $500.

Ken Dean, superintendent of streets in Hoffman Estates, said 14 men are out with six trucks to haul debris away.

"Right now we're out picking up trees downed in the storm; and cutting them up and hauling them away along with roofs that were picked off," he said, estimating the job will take all week.

"People are calling and asking what they can do to help," Dean reported.

"We're telling them they can haul large branches to the curb; we're hauling stuff to the dump site at Beverly Gravel near Between 7:45 and 8:15 p.m. fire departments in the two communities answered about 30 calls, none of a serious nature. Most were about power lines down and shorts in electrical wiring in homes and businesses. No fires were reported.

Could it be that several members of Schaumburg's Board of Health and Clean Environment Committee feel a bit bent out of shape these days?

Mild constipation reportedly exists over the apparent lack of communication with either group prior to village board authorization to temporarily lift a ban on malathion mosquito control effected last year.

Due to what was described as "an emergency," the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District is being permitted to use that pesticide in the village until conditions improve.

Some speculation exists as to how that move may affect litigation now pending in Cook County Circuit Court instituted by the abatement district against Schaumburg and Palatine, which passed a similar law.

"GALLINIPPERS" is the term used by Mayor Robert O. Atcher to describe giant mosquitos seen in Schaumburg this year.

The mayor notes that he has used that word since childhood. New to many of us, it is descriptive and not in the least discriminatory since much "guyanipping" is also said to have occurred.

WATCH FOR . . . the appointment of Fred Young to the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission. Formerly of Arlington Heights, Young has lived in the village for the past few months.

FEDERAL AVIATION Administration authorities recently wrote the villages of Hoffman Estates and Hanover Park encouraging that resistance to an airport feasibility study be dropped.

That communique was in response to earlier requests from both villages for FAA information concerning Schaumburg's plans.

"We continue to be puzzled, though, as to why people from those towns come to us. There is no plan, other than for the feasibility study right now," said a member of the FAA regional staff in Park Ridge.

The FAA staffer also denied rumors that federal and state funding will not be provided for either the study or eventual construction since monies already have been channeled for Elgin airport expansion.

He explained that FAA funds will be provided without question for the study and results of that investigation will determine whether construction money will be available.

Two-thirds of the study cost will be paid by the FAA, one sixth will come from the Illinois Department of Aeronautics and the remainder will be borne by the village. The village portion will come from a revenue-bond program and will not involve taxpayer burden.

In the area of construction, 50 per cent may come from the FAA but that could be increased with passage of pending legislation.

SPEAKING OF airports and things like that . . . I'll bet few know that Sheffield Towne's erudite young barrister, Jim Rosenberg, has taken up sky diving!

BIRTHDAY WISHES and other things too go to Scott Shafer of Hoffman Estates. Last Friday, on his 13th birthday, Scott, in a phone conversation with me, predicted the coming year would not be his luckiest. In fact, he said he wouldn't be a bit surprised if he broke his pitching arm for a second time. Less than 24 hours after, that is exactly what happened. Berie, isn't it?

Students' Scores Top Norm—Except In English

Students in High School Dist. 211 who take college entrance exams are continuing to score above the national average. However, their scores in the English portions of the ACT and SAT college entrance tests are much closer to the national averages than their scores in other areas.

Dist. 211 Supt. Richard Kolze said last week the difference between the English scores and others may mean the district needs to re-examine its English curriculum. However, he said, "The scores may also mean we don't place the same emphasis on some things that the test does."

In the ACT, the test required by Illinois state schools and many other Midwestern schools, students at the four Dist. 211 high schools scored between three and five points on a scale of 16 above the national average in math, social science and natural science. In English they scored between five-tenths and two points higher than the national average.

On the SAT test, which is required by many private colleges, students at the four high schools scored between 43 and 68 points higher on a scale of 800 than the national average on math and much closer to the average in the (English) language category.

One school, Conant in Hoffman Estates, scored three points below the national average on language in the SAT and the other schools scored between eight and 26 points higher.

Kolze said department heads in all the schools are aware of the difference in English scores and are looking at the curriculum to see if it needs changing.

He said the main reason students are scoring lower in English than in other areas may be the schools do not emphasize grammar, spelling and other mechanics as much as the tests do.

"I THINK EDUCATION in this area has gotten away from the mechanics of English that we have emphasized in the past," he said. "I don't think that is necessarily bad."

Kolze said district officials will relate the test scores to other records of student success in evaluating them. "One measure is how our students do once they get to college," he said.

About 57 per cent of the students in High School Dist. 211 this year plan to go on to college, according to school guidance directors. Of those, 42 per cent will attend Harper College in Palatine.

Library District Move Welcomed

A plan to move the North Suburban Library District to Dundee Road east of the Wheeling post office received a welcome from the Wheeling Plan Commission last week.

The commission waived the preliminary plat for the project because it involves only a two-lot subdivision and requires no engineering. The library district's proposed building would occupy the west 175 feet of street front on 7.3 acres owned by Chrysler Realty Corp. of Detroit.

In 1970, the land was rezoned for a Chrysler automobile dealership. The plan was later abandoned, and the property put up for sale. Plans for the remaining property are indefinite.

The North Suburban Library District is a service organization for 31 libraries in the northern Chicago suburbs — one of 17 such organizations in the state. The proposed 10,000-15,000 square foot building would be the home office for the district, housing a library reference center and the inter-library loan system in the area.

"WHEELING MARKS the approximate center of this north suburban district," said Robert R. McClarren, systems director for the district. "It seemed appropriate to move to Wheeling from our Morton Grove location, which we now lease."

The library district chose the Dundee Road property because it is in the center of town. "One of the criteria for the selection of this property was its visibility," McClarren said. He explained people often come out of town to visit the library district.

"And because of its nighttime use by board members, there was a concern about being in an isolated area," he added.

Because the district is a governmental body operated with state funds, the oper-

Korean Girl Adjusting Well

Jennifer Finds Her New Home

by MARY HUTCHINGS

A 17-month-old Korean girl has a new home in Hoffman Estates.

Jennifer Ann made the 24-hour flight here more than a week ago to meet her new parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bakos, 204 W. Concord Ln.

The first child to be adopted by the Bakoses, her parents say she is making an "unbelievably good" adjustment to her new situation. In Seoul, she lived in a foster home after being abandoned by her real mother.

The Bakoses worked through the International Social Service of America, New York, and it took two years to bring their girl here. They first saw her picture a year ago.

SHE'S AS PRETTY AS can be now as she toddles about her new home, babbling in Korean and using the few English words she knows — Mama, bye-bye and Hi. Though she was named "Hi" in Korea, her new parents thought it would be difficult for her to live here with that name. They chose Jennifer for Bakos' sister.

"Abandonment is the ultimate rejection," Peter Bakos said. "We fell in love with her."

The Bakoses plan to have two children of their own, and then adopt again, probably another Korean. "The Koreans seem to be in the most need," Mrs. Bakos said.

Though they had hoped to adopt an American Indian child, they found the Indians "very race conscious. They don't want their children adopted," Bakos said.

Jennifer Ann's first day here might have been a little traumatic for her, with both the shock of separation and the cultural differences she faced immediately.

WITH SPECIAL attention, to her diet, her new mother made a rice dinner for her with beef chunks. She picked out the beef and ate only the rice, but now she likes meat, although citrus fruits and orange juice are still "icky."

"She's going to be a great connoisseur of food," her father says.

Family and neighbors, the couple said, were enthusiastic about Jennifer's arrival, and with the stream of company to their home, she is gradually getting used to people and to the fact that she is with the Bakoses for good — the visitors haven't come to take her away again.

Mrs. Bakos will get her registered nurses degree in August and hopes to work part-time. Now her husband works the evening shift at Aerosol Research so that he can be home with Jennifer during the day. A neighbor, Mrs. Vee Yackey, babysits for Jennifer during the one-hour gap in her parents' schedules.

THE CATHOLIC charities refused to help the Bakoses adopt a foreign child because of Mrs. Bakos' plans to work. The next time they adopt, the couple plans to use the Holt Agency, Seattle, because they said it is supposed to be faster.

Though Mrs. Bakos was apprehensive when she took Jennifer out for the first time, she found that Jennifer was the center of attraction at the doctor's office and in shopping centers.

The Bakoses hope to teach Jennifer something of her culture as she grows up, and expect that by "showing enough love and affection in the early stages," she will have few problems as she adapts and grows in her new society.

Plaza Expansion Under Way

Construction of a $3 million expansion project at Hoffman Plaza, Roselle and Higgins roads, began Monday. Included is a new and larger postal station building for Hoffman Estates.

The major commercial occupant of the 167,000 square feet of expansion space will be a 65,000-sq.-ft. Wille Home Center store. Other large commercial tenants are a new and 50 per cent larger Jewel-Osco supermarket replacing the existing store and a Denny's Restaurant, explained I. Kupferberg, managing partner of Hoffman Plaza.

Negotiations also are under way for construction of a Goodyear Auto Center, Kupferberg said. He expects construction of the Jewel store and the restaurant to be completed by the first of the year.

The post office, Wille store and Goodyear store, if negotiations are successful, will be finished next year.

As planned, the new postal station will be located in the south central section of Hoffman Plaza along Higgins Road, Kupferberg said.

Hoffman Plaza is generally bounded on the north by Golf Road, on the west by Roselle Road and on the south by Higgins Road. The existing post office is located centrally in the plaza.

"CURRENT CONVERSATION is that the new postal station will be 50 per cent larger than the old one," Kupferberg said. The new facility required government approval in Washington.

The Wille Home Center marks the first time the company, which has done business in Mount Prospect for about 90 years, has expanded into another area, Kupferberg said.

The store, which is to front Roselle and Higgins roads, will sell a varied assortment of items including sportswear, sports equipment, hardware goods, gift selections and appliances, he said.

Twinbrook Receives $800 Donation

The largest cash donation from an organization ever received by the Twinbrook YMCA was made recently by the Bloomingdale-Medinah-Roselle Newcomers Club.

Mrs. Lynda Cooley, immediate past president of the Newcomers, presented a check for $800 to the Y for area youth activities.

Each year the group takes on one big project. The Y was chosen, Mrs. Cooley said, "because it serves so many of our local youths."

Developers Ask Height Limit Reconsideration

A Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals hearing will be scheduled in the near future to consider construction of office buildings more than 95 feet high in Woodfield Plaza.

Village officials say the 95-foot limit was a condition self-imposed by J. Emil Anderson & Sons, developers of the area adjacent to Woodfield Mall, at the time the project was approved last year.

Harold Anderson of the development firm has now requested village reconsideration of the height limit, Mayor Robert O. Atcher reported last week.

Buildings on the Woodfield Mall site are not restricted as to height but terms of the zoning granted on the plaza area provide that its developers may come in and petition the requested change.

"I don't think Mrs. Anderson should be penalized any more than his neighbors, although he is free to come in and ask and they are not," Atcher said.

Stressing that the question involved pertains to office buildings strictly and not multiple housing units, Atcher indicated he feels it "in the best interest of Schaumburg to have the matter go through the zoning board for release."

THE DEPARTMENT worked Friday night until 3 a.m. to make roads passable for utility trucks and local traffic. They worked all day Saturday while Mayor Frederick Downey toured the areas with village officials.

"One of the saddest things is the damage to the bigger trees," he said. "We don't have too many, and you can't replace them for many years."

"I am very upset when any individual has experienced the damage which took place in our community. I'm only thankful there were no injuries," the mayor added.

Cleanup continued Monday since the dump was closed Sunday, but storm victims temporarily housed by the Red Cross at the Holiday Inn or by neighbors looked for new homes.

Jeanette Eller, 174 Grissom, whose home was damaged by flying debris, said, "We always complain about being insurance poor, but when something happens, you're really glad you have it."

George Simon, claims manager of the Arlington Heights Allstate Insurance office, said the company had more than 200 calls over the weekend reporting storm damage. Though not all need to be assessed by an adjuster, he said manpower "will be spread a little thin" in the wake of the storm.

Kupferberg, managing partner of Hoffman Plaza.

Negotiations also are under way for construction of a Goodyear Auto Center, Kupferberg said. He expects construction of the Jewel store and the restaurant to be completed by the first of the year.

The post office, Wille store and Goodyear store, if negotiations are successful, will be finished next year.

As planned, the new postal station will be located in the south central section of Hoffman Plaza along Higgins Road, Kupferberg said.

Hoffman Plaza is generally bounded on the north by Golf Road, on the west by Roselle Road and on the south by Higgins Road. The existing post office is located centrally in the plaza.

"CURRENT CONVERSATION is that the new postal station will be 50 per cent larger than the old one," Kupferberg said. The new facility required government approval in Washington.

The Wille Home Center marks the first time the company, which has done business in Mount Prospect for about 90 years, has expanded into another area, Kupferberg said.

The store, which is to front Roselle and Higgins roads, will sell a varied assortment of items including sportswear, sports equipment, hardware goods, gift selections and appliances, he said.

Other smaller shops will occupy the plaza, Kupferberg said. The plaza currently has 45,000 sq. ft. of commercial buildings.

Twinbrook

Receives

$800 Donation

The largest cash donation from an organization ever received by the Twinbrook YMCA was made recently by the Bloomingdale-Medina-Roselle Newcomers Club.

Mrs. Lynda Cooley, immediate past president of the Newcomers, presented a check for $800 to the Y for area youth activities.

Developers Ask Height Limit Reconsideration

A Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals hearing will be scheduled in the near future to consider construction of office buildings more than 95 feet high in Woodfield Plaza.

Village officials say the 95-foot limit was a condition self-imposed by J. Emil Anderson & Sons, developers of the area adjacent to Woodfield Mall, at the time the project was approved last year.

Harold Anderson of the development firm has now requested village reconsideration of the height limit, Mayor Robert O. Atcher reported last week.

Buildings on the Woodfield Mall site are not restricted as to height but terms of the zoning granted on the plaza area provide that its developers may come in and petition the requested change.

"I don't think Mrs. Anderson should be penalized any more than his neighbors, although he is free to come in and ask and they are not," Atcher said.

Elk Grove Storm Damage Totals $1.3 Million

Damage to Elk Grove Village businesses and homes totaled nearly $1.3 million last weekend in one of the worst storms ever to hit the village. Village Mgr. Charles Willis said Monday.

"In the dollar amount of damage, last Friday night's storm was undoubtedly the worst in the history of the village," Willis said. He added that it will take a week or two before all the debris, mainly from the wind damage, could be removed.

Rain and high winds from the storm damaged 47 buildings in the industrial park blew off roofs and knocked down walls. Especially hard hit was the business district north of Rte. 72 and east of Arlington Heights Road.

Fire Chief Allen Hulet, Fire Capt. John Mergens and Building Comr. Tom Rettenbacher surveyed the damage building by building early Saturday morning and estimated the loss to buildings and equipment at $1,333,950.

Members of the fire, police, streets and water departments worked through the weekend assisting property owners and helping to clean up debris from damaged buildings and to clear downed trees from the streets.

HULETT SAID his men were busy Friday night making sure no one was caught in buildings and securing gas and electric lines. He said Saturday the men spent most of the day covering windows, walls and roofs with a heavy plastic covering.

"The heavy plastic sheets saved thousands of dollars in possible damage from rains that came late Saturday," Hulet said.

Willis said there was little damage to residential property, but that trees and limbs were downed in many parts of the village. He said more than 40 trees on public property were uprooted and broken off.

"There is nothing like a crisis situation in the village; now it's mainly a big cleanup effort," Willis said.

Tom Ryan, manager of Atlas Chain Co., 135 Kelly Blvd., said business was as usual Monday with everyone working around the wreckage of a wall and a roof that collapsed during the storm. He said he was planning to move to a temporary plant in the village until the damage could be repaired.

Paulex Tool and Mold Co., 935 Lee St., was closed Monday and power was off as cleanup began to uncover equipment buried under a wall and half the building's roof.

SEVEN EMPLOYEES WERE working in the rear of the Paulex plant Friday when they heard what they called "a big explosion" as the wall collapsed. None of the seven were hurt. A company official last weekend estimated damage to equipment at $25,000 and said the company may be closed down a month.

A third of the roof at National Heat and Power Co., Inc., 170 Lively Blvd., was ripped off, but the plant was in partial operation Monday. One employee said the roof would be patched temporarily with tar until more permanent roofing could be added.

Also looking for temporary quarters Monday was Telecontrols Inc., 95 Randall Blvd. A company official said the building housing some $40,000 worth of equipment, was almost a total loss. He said the roof was blown away and two side walls were down. A third wall was unstable and will have to be demolished, and only the front wall was in good condition, he said.

Area Dem Party Favors McGovern, Eagleton

by MARY HUTCHINGS

Reaction from Schaumburg Township Democrats to the nomination of Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.) and Sen. Thomas Eagleton (D-Mo.) as their party's candidates for the White House was generally favorable last week while the area's Republicans claimed victory for Richard Nixon this November.

Selwyn Schwartz, past vice president of the Regular Democratic Organization in the township said he was "ecstatic" about the choice of McGovern. He believes Mayor Danley will support the ticket when he "sees the organization the McGovern workers will build in Illinois."

Eagleton, Schwartz said, will "add much to the campaign ticket because of his record and his statements on major issues."

John Kelley, Democratic candidate for state representative in the 3rd district, said he had no fears about McGovern's heading the ticket. The support of Daley and party regulars he said would be a factor in McGovern's chances to carry in Illinois. "It's a question of degree — of enthusiasm — rather than support," he added.

THE DEVELOPMENTS of the next 90 days, Kelley said, would be a major factor in the effectiveness of McGovern's campaign. The war and the economy are two problems President Nixon will have to improve before November, he said.

Kelley said Eagleton was "not a complete unknown" as many have complained. His position as senator at the age of 42, his credentials and his connections with labor were great assets to the ticket, Kelley believes.

Organization secretary Tom Cussen of Hoffman Estates described McGovern as "as good a man as possible" and said his appeal to the young would be a boon to his campaign. "He came out of nowhere — in January no one gave him a chance. If he can continue that, he'll be in good shape," Cussen said.

REPUBLICAN committeeman Donald Totten said "it looks similar to Goldwater in 1964, but the roles are reversed." He said McGovern's nomination demonstrated that "radical fringe elements" have taken control of the Democratic party.

He said the Democratic convention "didn't look representative of the Democratic party, but of the radical elements McGovern represents."

Mrs. Jeanine Mayone, an active member of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township (ROOST), feels that McGovern may be able to give President Nixon a close race. "Perhaps if he uses the new bosses instead of the old, he has a chance," she said, adding that McGovern is "too liberal" for her tastes.

"He has a radical following I don't like," she said. Mrs. Mayone believes the youth vote will not figure as prominently in the campaign as predicted by many McGovern followers.

1,000 Active In Summer Programs Here

More than 1,000 residents are participating weekly in the summer recreation program of the Schaumburg Park District.

Individual Program

To Be Evaluated

Evaluation of the Individually Guided Education program in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 will be evaluated July 20 at the 8 p.m. education committee meeting in the conference room of the Administration Center, 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg, where all committee meetings are held.

The finance committee will meet at 8 p.m. July 27, to discuss the third draft of the school budget.

Forty-five programs, not including special events, attracted 3,298 people during the first week. Last year, the first week's attendance was 2,271.

New programs sponsored by the district included ceramics, canoeing, guitar, crocheting, day camp, dog obedience, first aid, floor hockey, jogging, TOPS, film festivals, pop concerts and special events for adults. The district will also sponsor the area Paddock Olympics this year on Aug. 1 and 2 at Conant High School.

Children's and teenage specials include 13 events and six splash dances. Adult special events on the summer schedule included three pop concerts and a boat excursion.

"From 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., it's very hard to find anyplace in the community where people are not involved in some type of Schaumburg Park District enjoyment," said Paul Derda, director of parks and recreation.

YMCA Membership Chairman Named

Bernard Swiontek has been named Twinbrook YMCA Sustaining Membership Chairman for 1973. Vern Laubenstein will be cochairman in charge of the Advance Business Campaign.

Swiontek, 525 Spring Hill, Roselle, is the immediate past president of the YMCA, and has served as secretary, finance committee chairman and as a division chairman.

He will be responsible for Twinbrook's principal source of income. Last year's campaign, headed by Mrs. Peggy Alston of Hoffman Estates, ended ahead of its goal with more than $32,000.

Laubenstein was the third president of Twinbrook, and directed the sustaining drive in 1969.

Located at 11 E. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg, the Y serves Bloomingdale, Hoffman Estates, Medinah, Roselle and Schaumburg.

Drilling For Well Could Begin Soon

Drilling for the new Well No. 12, Abbey Drive off Kensington Lane in Hoffman Estates, could possibly begin this week, village engineer John Hossick has reported.

Three companies signed contracts in late June which require various phases of the work to be done between February and April of 1973.

J. P. Miller Artesian Well Co., Brookfield, will do the drilling and furnish two 3000-gallon per minute pumps. Chicago Bridge and Iron, Chicago, will fabricate the 40-foot high ground tank which will store 3 million gallons of water for use throughout the village.

Roy T. Terp, Mount Prospect, is general contractor for the rest of the work on the site, including preliminary grading of the site, done last week.

The well will be the village's eighth south of the tollway, and will be part of the interconnected network there.

The pump will handle 1000 gallons per minute, or between 7500 and 9000 customers at peak hours. Total cost of the project is more than $658,000.

Park Site Mowing To Be Done Weekly

Mowing of Schaumburg Park District park sites will be done weekly for the rest of the summer. Ron Dudley, new parks superintendent announced Thursday.

He also said the park district should mow the utility easements near their park sites for the sake of homeowners near the park and the appearance of the park itself.

Basketball goals and playground equipment is scheduled to be installed at Sunset Park next week. Hedging will also be planted at Sheffield Park next week.

RON DUBRINCAT of the Schaumburg Jaycees reported to park commissioners that the organization has money in its budget for improvements at the Jaycee Park, but is awaiting a board recommendation of what work should be done before the property is turned over to the district.

The board will also make a decision soon on the purchase of lighting for night football games. Paul Derda, parks director, recommends the district purchase portable, self-generating units with four floodlights each.

David A. Johnson, 1400 Churchill Rd., has also announced his desire for a park board seat. He has served as president of the Timbercrest Homeowners Association, and is a member of his church board. He is a buyer for Montgomery Ward and Co.

Previously announced are Pat Irwin, 324 Bramble Ln. and Roger Simon, 420 Cole St.

Young Dems Don't Know 'Flexibility'

by BOB LAHEY

"Inflexibility" was a word heard often at the Democratic National Convention. It is, now that the floor fights and the fanfare have died away, the word that the Democrats fear most in their quest for the big prize in November.

Democrats like to point to their history of bloody intramural battles and bitter convention fights, and their record of piecing themselves back together again and presenting a united front against their Republican enemies.

This has been true in large part because after the brawls had carried out into the street and weakened the whole neighborhood, the combatants sat down and worked out their differences.

BUT THE "new element" of the party that emerged from this convention is for the moment at least very much a factor in the Democratic Party. And it has yet to demonstrate a penchant for flexibility. During the convention, at least, older members of the party who even suggested compromise or "flexibility" became suspect in the eyes of the younger members, who viewed the unseating of Mayor Daley and his delegation as a triumph of principle over politics.

A veteran campaigner who has spent years laboring for such Democratic candidates as Adlai Stevenson, father and son, Paul Douglas, Paul Simon and Abner Mikva was startled to find herself cold-shouldered by a formerly dedicated follower of Simon.

He is a young Chicago clergyman who joined Simon's campaign for governor at a meager salary and worked long and hard preaching the word, that among other things, Paul Simon had the backing of Mayor Daley because he had left Daley no other alternative.

He also helped engineer the victory of the "Chicago 59" over Daley's contingent. After that battle, he was spreading the word against Simon, who some wanted to put up as a candidate for national committeeman.

Flushed with victory over the Daley machine, the clergyman had concluded that Simon had been "too flexible" in his dealings with the Daley organization.

Young volunteers for Democratic candidates also were unable to follow cautioning not to involve themselves — and by implication their candidates — in extraneous matters. A number of young enthusiasts for Abner Mikva, 10th Congressional District candidate, on hand for volunteer chores, could not resist attaching themselves to the Chicago 59 as messengers and cheerleaders.

Mikva, who stayed away from the convention to avoid involvement in such disputes, was advised by staff workers by telephone of this activity. He refrained from scolding the young workers, opting to accept any danger of embarrassment to his campaign as the price of their dedication and enthusiasm.

Mikva, in short, remained flexible in his attitude toward the newcomers to the party.

That he and other more experienced politicians are willing to do that, because they welcome the "openness" of the party and the new young, black and female participants, may be a major factor in the reordering of the party.

Printers Strike Continues; Bargaining Session Fruitless

The strike by several hundred area journeymen printers continues. No accord was reached in a bargaining session early Monday between the Chicago Typographical Union Local 16 and the multi-employer Franklin Association.

Approximately 800 of the journeymen printers in the commercial branch of Local 16 are still on strike according to Ed Poremba, assistant organizer for the union. He said another 1,300 union members in the Chicago metropolitan area printing industry remain on the job.

The dispute has idled Local 16 journeymen printers since July 5. Members in the commercial printing field still on the job are employees of firms which have signed interim agreements with the union. The Chicago Typographical Union also has members in the newspaper and special contracts fields.

George Houlihan, secretary and general manager of the Franklin Association, said his organization made a new offer at the Monday bargaining session. He said no counter offer was received from union representatives, who walked out of the meeting.

The dispute centers on wage and benefits proposals, according to Fred Hunt Jr. of Des Plaines, president of Local 16. He said the journeymen printers now earn $229 a week. Firms signing an interim agreement agreed to pay an added $11 a week.

The contract between the Local 16 and the Association expired June 6. The employer group offered a $2 a week increase in wages effective in December of this year. The union seeks a $15 a week increase over the first year of a new contract.

Environment Law Planned

Inverness Village Pres. Forrest S. Elmerman Thursday directed the village's attorney to draw up an environmental ordinance in accord with the recently approved Illinois state statute.

Atty. J. William Braithwaite's draft of an ordinance for Inverness will be sent to the ordinance, licensing, and special assessments committee, who will make recommendations and return a final draft to the board. Such an environmental ordinance would be little different than the December, 1971, proposal made last fall by A. James Valliere, a village trustee.

The aim of making the village ordinance nearly duplicate the state statute is to keep settlement of future problems at the local level. Without a local ordinance, infractions would be settled in the state's jurisdiction — through the state prosecutor — Braithwaite previously told the board.

Necessary revisions in the current proposal may be made before the next meeting, Aug. 13, rather than the normal meeting date of Aug. 8.

A second public hearing considering the comprehensive poan for Inverness will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Village Fieldhouse, 55 Highland Rd.

A COMMONWEALTH Edison Co. repairman is hoisted up to fix power lines on Drake Street in Des Plaines between Eighth Avenue and Wolf

The Lighter Side

And Where Will The SALT Talks End?

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Among the measures awaiting action as the Senate returns to duty this week is the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty with the Soviet Union.

If the pact is approved without undue delay, it may give more impetus to the momentum that the international disarmament movement picked up in the SALT talks at Helsinki.

I like to think that during the next few years more and more types of weapons will be restricted or banned until finally the controls will include not only arms but hands as well. Perhaps in this way:

HELSINKI — The United States and the Soviet Union reached agreement today on a new treaty that reduces the risk of the two countries getting into a fist-fight with each other.

Under the treaty, fist-clenching in both countries will be limited to levels deemed necessary for national defense.

The pact bans bare knuckles for offensive purposes and bars all two-fisted drinking, which is regarded as one of the leading causes of aggression.

The agreement further reduces the striking force of each nation by providing that right-handed soldiers may only make left-handed fists and left-handed soldiers may only make right-handed fists.

Although U.S. congressional reaction generally was favorable, some members of the Senate Armed Services Committee denounced the treaty as being advantageous to the Soviets.

They pointed out that the Soviet Union has a higher percentage of ambidextrous soldiers than the United States. Therefore, they said, the Red Army would be less handicapped by the one-fist provision.

OPPOSITION TO THE treaty also came from the International Boxing Federation, which expressed fear that it might curtail the use of fists in sporting events, such as prizefights and office picnics.

"Fists don't hit people; people hit people," a spokesman declared.

Meanwhile, U.S. military experts voiced doubt that the treaty would result in a reduction in the defense budget.

They said additional funds would be needed to train soldiers to deliver karate chops, which are unclenched blows and thus are not covered by the treaty.

They said programs also would be set up to make the U.S. Army more proficient in back-handed swatting, another type of non-fisted clout that would be permitted under the treaty.

"As long as the Soviets have the capacity for open-handed smacking, America must be prepared to slap back," a Pentagon spokesman declared.

Young Dems Don't Know 'Flexibility'

by BOB LAHEY

"Inflexibility" was a word heard often at the Democratic National Convention. It is, now that the floor fights and the fanfare have died away, the word that the Democrats fear most in their quest for the big prize in November.

Democrats like to point to their history of bloody intramural battles and bitter convention fights, and their record of piecing themselves back together again and presenting a united front against their Republican enemies.

This has been true in large part because after the brawls had carried out into the street and wakened the whole neighborhood, the combatants sat down and worked out their differences.

BUT THE "new element" of the party that emerged from this convention is for the moment at least very much a factor in the Democratic Party. And it has yet to demonstrate a penchant for flexibility.

During the convention, at least, older members of the party who even suggested compromise or "flexibility" became suspect in the eyes of the younger members, who viewed the unseating of Mayor Daley and his delegation as a triumph of principle over politics.

A veteran campaigner who has spent years laboring for such Democratic candidates as Adlai Stevenson, father and son, Paul Douglas, Paul Simon and Abner Mikva was startled to find herself cold-shouldered by a formerly dedicated follower of Simon.

He is a young Chicago clergyman who joined Simon's campaign for governor at a meager salary and worked long and hard preaching the word, that among other things, Paul Simon had the backing of Mayor Daley because he had left Daley no other alternative.

He also helped engineer the victory of the "Chicago 59" over Daley's contingent. After that battle, he was spreading the word against Simon, who some wanted to put up as a candidate for national committeeman.

Flushed with victory over the Daley machine, the clergyman had concluded that Simon had been "too flexible" in his dealings with the Daley organization.

Young volunteers for Democratic candidates also were unable to follow cautioning not to involve themselves — and by implication their candidates — in extraneous matters. A number of young enthusiasts for Abner Mikva, 10th Congressional District candidate, on hand for volunteer chores, could not resist attaching themselves to the Chicago 59 as messengers and cheerleaders.

Mikva, who stayed away from the convention to avoid involvement in such disputes, was advised by staff workers by telephone of this activity. He refrained from scolding the young workers, opting to accept any danger of embarrassment to his campaign as the price of their dedication and enthusiasm.

Mikva, in short, remained flexible in his attitude toward the newcomers to the party.

That he and other more experienced politicians are willing to do that, because they welcome the "openness" of the party and the new young, black and female participants, may be a major factor in the reordering of the party.

Printers Strike Continues; Bargaining Session Fruitless

The strike by several hundred area journeymen printers continues. No accord was reached in a bargaining session early Monday between the Chicago Typographical Union Local 16 and the multi-employer Franklin Association.

Approximately 800 of the journeymen printers in the commercial branch of Local 16 are still on strike according to Ed Poremba, assistant organizer for the union. He said another 1,300 union members in the Chicago metropolitan area printing industry remain on the job.

The dispute has idled Local 16 journeymen printers since July 5. Members in the commercial printing field still on the job are employees of firms which have signed interim agreements with the union. The Chicago Typographical Union also has members in the newspaper and special contracts fields.

George Houlihan, secretary and general manager of the Franklin Association, said his organization made a new offer at the Monday bargaining session. He said no counter offer was received from union representatives, who walked out of the meeting.

The dispute centers on wage and benefits proposals, according to Fred Hunt Jr. of Des Plaines, president of Local 16. He said the journeymen printers now earn $229 a week. Firms signing an interim agreement agreed to pay an added $11 a week.

The contract between the Local 16 and the Association expired June 6. The employer group offered a $2 a week increase in wages effective in December of this year. The union seeks a $15 a week increase over the first year of a new contract.

Environment Law Planned

Inverness Village Pres. Forrest S. Elleman Thursday directed the village's attorney to draw up an environmental ordinance in accord with the recently-approved Illinois state statute.

Atty. J. William Braithwaite's draft of an ordinance for Inverness will be sent to the ordinance, licensing, and special assessments committee, who will make recommendations and return a final draft to the board. Such an environmental ordinance would be little different than the December, 1971, proposal made last fall by A. James Valliere, a village trustee.

The aim of making the village ordinance nearly duplicate the state statute is to keep settlement of future problems at the local level. Without a local ordinance, infractions would be settled in the state's jurisdiction — through the state prosecutor — Braithwaite previously told the board.

Necessary revisions in the current proposal may be made before the next meeting, Aug. 15, rather than the normal meeting date of Aug. 8.

A second public hearing considering the comprehensive poan for Inverness will be held Thursday at 3 p.m. in the Village Fieldhouse, 55 Highland Rd.

NEC Approves New Salary Rates

Salaries for Northwest Education Cooperative (NEC) personnel have been set for the 1972-73 school year.

The NEC governing board approved the new salary rates at a meeting Saturday. The cooperative employs approximately 160 people.

NEC is a cooperative of nine school districts organized in 1969 to develop area-wide programs and solve mutual problems. Current members include districts 15, 21, 23, 25, 26, 57, 59, 211 and 214.

Salary increases were recommended by an appointed salary committee, and were based mainly on merit. The rates are divided into three groups: directors of NEC, teachers or teacher aides and computer or clerical workers.

DR. GLORIA KINNEY, executive director of NEC, had her salary increased from $23,200 to $24,700. John Wightman, director of the Northwest suburban special education organization, is up to $26,700 from $25,500. Director of instructional and informational systems John Bernard is getting a $1,400 hike over last year's $10,500.

John Whipple, clinical director at the center for child and family studies, was given an increase from $18,250 to $19,000. Principal of the Samuel A. Kirk Center Ronald Sterrett now earns $17,750, $750 more than last year. Mrs. Lois King, the executive director's administrative assistant, received a raise of $600, earning $9,000.

Earns Advanced NAES Certificate

After taking several courses at Harper College and passing other requirements, Thelma Cox, secretary of the superintendent of School Dist. 25, earned her advanced certificate of the National Association of Educational Secretaries (NAES).

The NAES offers five certificates, which include educational, experience and professional activity standards. In an effort to advance the professional quality of educational secretaries, in 1970, Mrs. Cox was awarded the standard certificate.

Mrs. Cox, who has been an educational secretary in Dist. 25 for eight years, will serve as recording secretary for business sessions of the advisory council of the Affiliations committee of the NAES this week in Portland, Oregon.

Mrs. Cox also organized and served as the first president of the local secretarial association and is president of the regional secretarial association, the North Suburban Association of Educational Secretaries.

The salary for a teacher at the Samuel A. Kirk developmental training center can range from $7,730 to $12,470. Teacher aides receive from $3,500 to $4,800.

At the Dwyer School Treatment Center, salaries range between $8,216 and $14,580 for teachers, and $3,720.50 and $4,150 for teacher aides.

Computer analysts, programmers, operators, keypunch operators, and clerical workers received an average pay increase of 5.7 per cent. Their salaries range between $7,100 and $15,200.

ONE OF THE ATTRACTIONS at the upcoming North Cook County 4-H Fair will be livestock nurtured by the young men and women of 4-H. Nearly 1,000 North Cook County 4-H'ers will participate in exhibits at the fair. In addition there will be Indian dancers, a Rooster scramble and a Cake Walk. The fair will be on the Elks Club grounds on north Wilke Road, Arlington Heights. The fair will begin at noon, Friday, July 21 and continue through Sunday.

Education Groups Revamped

Ties between the Northwest Education Cooperative (NEC) and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) have been tightened. In a reorganization move, both groups were placed under a single administrator, Gloria Kinney.

The NEC Governing Board voted to combine the two groups into a single administrative structure at a meeting Saturday, following the recommendation of consultant Oscar Chule.

Chule, dean of academic affairs at the National College of Education in Evanston, was hired to streamline what school officials said was, at times, an unwieldy and inefficient organization.

NEC, organized in 1969 by 10 school districts, serves as an umbrella over several cooperative programs including NSSEO and a data services program. Yet, in recent years NSSEO has taken on an independent identity and its director, John Wightman, has had a position more or less lateral with Mrs. Kinney.

According to Richard Schlott, president of the governing board, drawing NSSEO closer under the NEC umbrella will release Wightman from routine administrative duties and allow him to devote more time to special education.

Actual details of the reorganization, including legal aspects, will be worked out by Mrs. Kinney. It may necessitate revising the charter agreement between the two groups.

IN ANOTHER MOVE to centralize management, the board authorized the hiring of a business manager to oversee all NEC programs. Currently most NEC business transactions are supervised by the High School Dist. 214 office. The high school district serves as administrative district for the cooperative.

NEC members have complained in the past that the present arrangement is both time consuming and inefficient. All financial transactions now have to pass through a series of steps including approval from both NEC and Dist. 214 boards.

The new business manager will be paid a salary ranging between $14,000 and $20,000, and will be responsible for budget preparation, payroll, transportation, investment and employment of non-certified personnel. The cooperative is looking for someone with a bachelor's degree and three years of business experience.

Creation of the new position was supported by all NEC member districts except Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. Albert Domanico, Dist. 59 representative, said his board does not feel a student load of 600 requires hiring a business manager.

Supporters of the hiring proposal, on the other hand, contend a budget of over $2 million does require a business manager's supervision. Along with the other eight NEC representatives, the superintendents' council and Wightman approved the proposal.

Schaumburg Schools Rap Data Fee

The Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 School Board is protesting an added $4,705 charge for data processing set by the Northwest Education Cooperative.

At a meeting Saturday, the NEC governing board authorized the special non-member fee, over the objections of Diane Hardt, president of the Dist. 54 School Board. Despite the objection Dist. 54 will continue to use the service at least until next spring.

Dist. 54 earlier this year voted to withdraw from NEC yet retain membership in several NEC suborganizations including data processing and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization. NEC, organized in 1969 by 10 school districts, serves as an umbrella over a variety of private and government-supported programs.

Dist. 54 is the first to drop NEC membership, and consequently the first to receive a special charge for the data processing program. The total charge of $40,859 is approximately 13 per cent higher than the regular fee charged to NEC members. The added charge is supposed to cover overhead costs.

ACCORDING to Richard Schlott, president of the NEC board, "If Dist. 54 pays nothing beyond its data processing costs, nine districts will be penalized by an increase of approximately 10 per cent in their NEC costs. It seems grossly unfair to expect that the alternative be a substantial penalty to each of us."

NEC officials could not pinpoint the exact amount of the overhead cost, but estimated it is greater than 25 per cent of the regular fee. Hardt said she was concerned about the "nebulousness of the overhead figures."

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Group Foster Families Sought By Home Society

Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society is seeking a new kind of foster family, what is called a group foster family.

"We've found that our traditional foster care programs — individual, one-to-one, long term foster care; residential treatment; group living — were not now suitable programs for many of the youngsters under our care," said Mrs. Virginia Rutan, supervisor of the Society's homefinding division.

As a result, she said, the Society is looking for group foster homes, each designed to accommodate three to five children. These fall into four categories:

GROUP DIAGNOSTIC HOMES: for homeless children of all ages who need one to three months care until the case-work staff can learn more about them and determine the most suitable permanent living plan for each child.

PRE-ADOLESCENT GROUP TREATMENT FOSTER HOMES: for children ages 10 to 13 who may stay to grow up in the foster home.

ADOLESCENT GROUP TREATMENT FOSTER HOMES: for children 14 and older who may stay to grow up in the family.

VACATION FOSTER FAMILY HOMES: for children who need a short period (two to three weeks) away from their regular placement.

"We're looking for foster parents who are loving, full of energy, mature, flexible yet consistent," said Mrs. Rutan.

It is also important that they not have children who are younger or the same age as the foster children to be cared for, she explained.

The foster home must be one with plenty of elbow room for sharing normal family activities, according to Mrs. Rutan. It also should have a separate bed for each child and enough bedroom space for activities and for just being alone, she added.

In some cases Illinois Home and Aid Society will pay an extra fee to families providing a special service to children. The Society also pays board, medical expenses and clothing.

Readers interested in this group foster home program may learn more details by calling 944-3313 (Homefinding).

Arlington Newcomers Have More Tickets For Races Day

Summertime means no let-up in activities for Arlington Heights Newcomers Club.

July will be highlighted by the annual "Ladies Day at the Races" to be held Thursday at the Classic Club of Arlington Park. Because of the large response to this activity, extra tickets are available, according to Mrs. Richard Fleming, who may be called at 255-2358 for more information. The affair starts with cocktails at 12:30 followed by luncheon at 1 and the races at 2 o'clock.

The Newcomers' August calendar lists two events, the regular monthly luncheon, scheduled for Aug. 9 at Chateau Louise in West Dundee, and the couples Scotch golf outing set for Aug. 13 at Thunderbird Golf Club in Barrington.

THE 1 p.m. LUNCHEON meeting will be preceded by a cocktail hour at 12:30.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. John Volden, 394-5474.

Tee-off time for the couples golf outing is 2:30 p.m. Golf will be followed by a buffet dinner. Mrs. Paul Godwin, 259-0544, is accepting reservations for this affair.

Other summer activities include golf every Friday morning at Arlington Country Club and, for the first time, a summer bridge group twice a month. Bridge playing is the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Mrs. S. Gaudio, 439-2964, the chairman, may be contacted for more information.

Newcomers Club is open to those who have lived in Arlington Heights less than 18 months. Interested residents may get more information from Mrs. Dale Kilgore, 253-2536.

White straw is completely unpredictable. Once when I tried to wash one, it fell apart in my hands. Our daughter-in-law has a good straw purse that yellowed. Washed with a tepid solution of mild white soap flakes, it came out beautifully. In short, you just gamble.

Paula Moose Is Married At St. Mark's

After a honeymoon in Florida, Mr. and Mrs. Gil Brooks Jr. are living in an Arlington Heights apartment. They were married June 10 in St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, the home church of the bride, the former Paula Ann Moose.

THE COUPLE was married at 1 p.m. in double ring rites. Paula chose her sister Janet as maid of honor and Mrs. Nancy Burns of LaGrange as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Marie Schwennesen, a cousin from Mount Prospect; Barb Hjelm, Mount Prospect; and Becky Miller, Nappanee, Ind.

Lil Floros Spends Energies Working With Young People

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Working with young people is the "big thing" in the life of Lil Floros.

Besides rearing two daughters of her own, Carol, 18, and Nancy, 17, Mrs. Floros has been involved for years with the Camp Fire Girls organization and youth activities at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect.

Blessed with tireless energy, good humor and an ability to organize, Lil has the knack for making others feel comfortable and welcome in her "mod style" home whose bold colors reflect her sparkle and joy in living.

She passes on this enthusiasm to the family that includes, besides Carol and Nancy, her husband, Leo, vice president of a Chicago public relations firm. He served for years on the Dist. 57 board of education and ran, though unsuccessfully, for Dist. 214 high school board this spring.

LEO'S A REAL sports fan, according to his wife, often watching two different sports events on separate TVs and listening to a third on radio, she chuckled. But Lil doesn't mind; she likes to do what she enjoys and wants others to do the same.

"Besides," she chuckled, "he's a nice guy and helps me around the house."

Carol, who shares her father's enthusiasm for sports, is working her second year as waterfront director at Camp Tiyalaka in Wisconsin and wants to become a camp director. She'll attend Illinois State University this fall, majoring in physical education.

Nancy, a Prospect High senior, enjoys working with trainable mentally handicapped children at Countryside Center for the Handicapped where she has served as a volunteer for one year and as a teacher's aide for two. She plans to major in special education when she starts college.

NANCY ALSO keeps busy in the youth program at St. Mark's where her mother has been involved, particularly in bike hikes and float construction. Last year St. Mark's Hi-League won the grand prize in Mount Prospect's Fourth of July parade with an open Bible representing the theme "From Plymouth to Mount Prospect."

This year their float won as best in youth groups with an old rugged cross combined with the dove of peace entitled "He's the Real Thing," carrying out the parade theme of "The Spirit of Mount Prospect — It's the Real Thing."

Lil also serves as consultant on floats for the Northwest Volunteer Bureau. "It's great fun!" she says.

But then Lil Floros thinks everything worth doing is fun. Take her many years in Camp Fire. She guided the same group from second grade until their high school graduation this year.

THE GIRLS progressed from Blue Birds to Camp Fire Girls to Junior Highs and recently 11 high schoolers in the Horizon Club won Camp Fire's most coveted award, the Wohelo (work-health-love) medalion.

"That was my proudest moment!" declared their jubilant leader.

MORE THAN A string of charms, this bracelet is a string of memories of her 11 years as a Camp Fire leader for Mrs. Lil Floros of Mount Prospect.

Her "girls" presented her with the bracelet in appreciation of her leadership and guidance.

Contributing toward their receiving the award was the girls' service program, one introduced by Lil when her girls were Junior Hi's and later adopted by the Camp Fire organization for this age group in addition to other activities, the Junior Hi girls visit Brookwood Nursing Home in Des Plaines and Magnus Farm in Arlington Heights to play bingo, sing songs, stage skits, distribute cookies they baked themselves and visit with the residents.

THEY SHOWED their love and appreciation for Lil's guidance by presenting her with a silver charm bracelet, symbolizing memories and events in their years together. As a last farewell, the girls are carving a totem pole, a 20-foot tall memento topped by a Bluebird, which will be erected in the Floros' back yard when it's completed.

Lil says she'll sorely miss her Camp Fire Girls ... but she won't be idle. One of the things keeping her busy is bike hikes. She recalls as "a really fun trip" the 36 miles she scouted and then cycled with 75 kids from Kenosha, Wis., to the state park at Wilmet.

But the "greatest trip in the world," says Lil, is coming up in August. That's the Wisconsin Bikeway, about 50 miles west of The Dells. A covered railway from Elroy to Sparta provides a 32-mile one way flat bike trail through beautiful rolling countryside, and Lil can hardly wait to pedal it.

Flowers Bloom In Art Corner

A long-time hobby of gardening, plus knowledge of flowers gained while working for a florist, has been turned into artistic creations by Theresa H. DeLoof, 1357 Evergreen Ave., Des Plaines.

Mrs. DeLoof is exhibiting a collection of her framed pressed flowers during July in the Art Corner at Des Plaines National Bank. She uses perennials and annuals grown in her own garden.

Originally she pressed flowers by putting them between newspapers and stacking heavy books and bricks on top for two to eight weeks. Now with the aid of a wooden press made by a friend, her new method takes only one to three days to prepare the flowers, yet keeps them smoother, flatter and more lifelike, said Mrs. DeLoof.

Mrs. DeLoof is employed as traffic controller in the advertising department of DoALL Company in Des Plaines. Her hobbies, besides gardening, include traveling, making scrapbooks of her trips and photography.

The Art Corner will present graphics and paintings by another local artist, Mary Jean Grubbe, 160 W. Lancaster, during August.

Group Foster Families Sought By Home Society

Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society is seeking a new kind of foster family, what is called a group foster family.

"We've found that our traditional foster care programs — individual, one-to-one, long term foster care; residential treatment; group living — were not now suitable programs for many of the youngsters under our care," said Mrs. Virginia Rutan, supervisor of the Society's homefinding division.

As a result, she said, the Society is looking for group foster homes, each designed to accommodate three to five children. These fall into four categories:

GROUP DIAGNOSTIC HOMES: for homeless children of all ages who need one to three months care until the case-work staff can learn more about them and determine the most suitable permanent living plan for each child.

PRE-ADOLESCENT GROUP TREATMENT FOSTER HOMES: for children ages 10 to 13 who may stay to grow up in the foster home.

ADOLESCENT GROUP TREATMENT FOSTER HOMES: for children 14 and older who may stay to grow up in the family.

VACATION FOSTER FAMILY HOMES: for children who need a short period (two to three weeks) away from their regular placement.

"We're looking for foster parents who are loving, full of energy, mature, flexible yet consistent," said Mrs. Rutan.

It is also important that they not have children who are younger or the same age as the foster children to be cared for, she explained.

The foster home must be one with plenty of elbow room for sharing normal family activities, according to Mrs. Rutan. It also should have a separate bed for each child and enough bedroom space for activities and for just being alone, she added.

In some cases Illinois Home and Aid Society will pay an extra fee to families providing a special service to children. The Society also pays board, medical expenses and clothing.

Readers interested in this group foster home program may learn more details by calling 944-3313 (Homefinding).

VIRGIN VOYAGE! A 46-foot Chris Craft houseboat package aboard the posh boats that sleep up to eight people. Eastern Airlines is offering an attractive eight-day

In The Beautiful Caribbean

A Holiday On A Houseboat

by CLARE WRIGHT

Cruising the Caribbean on a budget is easy if you take advantage of the new "m" vacation.

In case you haven't heard, that's houseboating in the Virgin Islands.

Here's how it works: Pick two other congenial couples — or another family with children the same age as yours — and broach the subject of spending eight wonderful days aboard a posh houseboat exploring clean, clear Caribbean waters.

The weekly rate for a 46-foot houseboat, which can accommodate up to eight people, is $1090 — too expensive for most middle-class mortals, but broken up six ways, it averages out to about $23 a day per person.

JUST TRY to find a vacation spot on land where you can spend less than that! vacation package this summer, (including September) and if you check with your local travel agent this week you can probably still make it. A few hours after you leave O'Hare you can be on your boat!

Life on a houseboat can be unique, indeed, even if it is only for a week. Each boat is air-conditioned and equipped with a stereo, wall-to-wall carpeting, radio, linen and outboard dinghy for shore excursions.

The Eastern package also includes the services of a radio guide boat to escort the houseboat to special coves, snorkeling and fishing areas, deliver mail, supplies and even make reservations for evenings ashore.

THE IDEA of a holiday aboard a houseboat has really caught on in the last few years. Many Northwest suburban families (including ourselves) have enjoyed relaxing houseboating vacations on the Mississippi or around Florida.

The houseboats in the Virgin Islands are somewhat roomier and they can go faster — if you want to. Frankly, we think the slower pace is more relaxing.

There is electric refrigeration, a stove with a good sized oven, and a lot of storage space. And — nice hot showers.

FOR LANDLUBBERS with a sea-going taste, a houseboat is the ideal way to charter. Instructions on how to pilot the boat are given to you when you first get on board — and you're usually allowed to take a trial run spin under the guidance of an expert. You're also given complete charts — and you don't need a navigation degree to read them.

There's variety on a houseboat safari. You can pull in and spend relaxing hours at a serene, away-from-the-whole-world beach — live it up at a swinging shore stop — or throw your own party on your spacious deck.

As for tranquility — the kind that eases all the nerve endings and makes you ready for the grand again — you'll never find it better than when you're quietly anchored in a peaceful cove far, far away from everything.

If you're the skipper of your own chartered houseboat you can find a lot of those coves — and a lot of that tranquility.

Bahamas Celebrate Joyous Goombay Summer Festival

NASSAU, Bahamas — Throughout Nassau, Freeport and the Out Islands, Bahamas Goombay Summer '72 is still going strong.

Continuing until September 10, the Bahamian festival of joyous song, dance and merriment has a host of varied activities and celebrations for tourists to see and take part in including:

Goombay Parades featuring Bahamian jump-in dancers dancing to the Bands of the Week following the parade Goombay Shopping Nights in Freeport in the famed International Bazaar and at Churchill Square, followed by a steel drums performance. In Nassau stores remain open to 9 p.m. on Shopping Night, with live music. And a Weekly Shoppers' Sweepstakes.

The internationally famous Royal Bahamas Police Band inspire thousands with their music and marching each week in Nassau and Freeport. The Bahamas Folklore Group thrill visitors with their unique performances on Monday nights at the Regency Theater in Freeport and at Bahama Hall in Nassau, also on Monday. Both Bahamian cities feature Pied Piper Tours for children specially arranged Pub Crawls and Fashion Shows for adults.

FROM THE moment you arrive in the Bahamas, whether by air or sea, a smiling face — the Goombay symbol — will be extending its welcome to you. And Bahamians, a happy friendly people who describe Goombay as their own special celebration with music that makes you want to dance, will beckon to you to join the revelry.

For Bahamas Goombay Summer '72 is the perfect time for tourists to the Bahamas to absorb some Bahamian culture through this people-to-people program. Begun only last year, Bahamas Goombay Summer, conceived as a planned festival, became a sort of spontaneous carnival and struck the same chord as Mardi Gras in New Orleans.

And just as last year, all segments of the Bahamas hospitality industry — hotels, retail stores, straw vendors, night clubs, taxi drivers and tour operators — join in to play their roles as hosts and hostesses to the hundreds of thousands who visit Nassau, Freeport and the other beautiful islands of the Bahamas.

How To Prepare For European Trip

First-time traveler or jet setter, you trip to Europe will be lots more fun if you're as prepared as the proverbial Boy Scout. Air France offers the following tips for easy travel:

—Passport — Apply for your passport well in advance of your trip to avoid delay. If you already have one, make sure it's up to date. No country in Western Europe requires the smallpox vaccination certificate. But if you have one, it's wise to carry it anyway.

—Packing — The less you take the bigger the break to your back and purse. A medium-size suitcase and a carry-on tote is plenty for 2-3 week trips. You're allowed 44 lbs. in economy and 86 lbs. in first class. Tape your name and address inside your luggage in addition to outside tags. Colored tape makes your things easier for you to spot on a baggage ramp.

—Fares — Traveler's checks are safest and many shops offer discounts for them. Change about $10 into the local currency before you leave for use on arrival. Remember, too, that many European establishments now accept major U.S. credit cards.

—Shutter bugs — If you have a late model foreign camera register it with U.S. Customs before departing to establish proper importation. Otherwise you may have to pay duty on it. Take plenty of film, it's cheaper in the U.S.

—Seeing Sights — If it's your first time in a city, get oriented with a half-day tour. You can go back to leisurely explore the places that most interested you, and pass up those that did not.

—Easy Eating — Pocket-size menu translators are worth it, especially if you want to delve into the local cuisine. Many European restaurants add an automatic service charge, which takes care of the tip. If it's not included, tip as you would at home.

—Hotels — Double check prices before registering, and ask about service charges and taxes to avoid surprise later. The concierge at French hotels will help you with details, local attractions, sightseeing and transportation.

—Shopping Right — You can mail home any item under $10 duty-free. It will save packing them. Check large stores for tax-free export prices. Save liquor, perfume, camera and similar shopping for airport duty-free shops, like Orly's in Paris. You'll save both time and money.

—Helpful Guides — Air France has many helpful aids for travelers, including a Paris shopping guide, and a new inexpensive Paris Restaurant Guide. Write for free copies to Air France, Box 747, New York, N.Y. 10011.

—Coming Home — Try to avoid weekend arrivals at busy airports. Be honest and accurate on your Customs declaration. Bon Voyage.

SEE AND GO, dramatic new travel service, is being demonstrated by Bob Howey, left, general manager of Around the World Travel, Inc. The Palatine agency is the first in the Northwest suburbs to offer the new video-cassette system, which enables prospective travelers to see tours, resorts and destinations before they book their trips.

Closed-Circuit TV Used To Preview Vacations

Now you can see your vacation destination in active, living color before you book your next trip.

Around the World Travel, Inc., 100 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine, is one of the nation's first travel agencies to offer its clients a unique new service which uses closed circuit television to "take you there before you go."

The new idea in travel selling has been developed by See and Go Travel Service, a subsidiary of Col-Com, a Chicago-based communications company.

Using a new type of electronic machine called a videotape cassette player, you can see your tour, cruise resort or destination in brief travel presentations on a 17 inch color TV set.

AROUND THE World Travel, Inc., is the first travel agency in the Northwest suburbs to offer the See and Go service. Beginning in August, travel agents all over the country will begin offering the service.

Bob Howey, vice-president and general manager of Around the World Travel, Inc., calls See and Go a revolutionary way to present the adventure, romance and pleasure of travel.

"Now we don't have to TELL it like it is. We can SHOW it like it is."

The Palatine agent pointed out how a client can have a five or ten-minute look at a foreign country, showing the kind of hotels and sightseeing he'll be doing.

"SEEING IT this way, the potential traveler can make a better decision on how to spend his travel dollars," Howey continued.

Around the World Travel, Inc., at present has See and Go videotape cassettes on a tour of the Orient, a tour of Ireland, Scotland and Scandinavia, a Grand Tour of Europe and Olson's Around the World Luxury Air Cruise.

Additional tours, destinations, resorts and cruises will be added every month.

Canadian Hatcheries Are Open To Public

TORONTO — (UPI) — Ontario's 16 fish hatcheries have the welcome mat out year-round and seven days a week for visitors. There is no charge and guided tours are often conducted to explain fish rearing practices from eggs to maturity. Among the most-visited hatcheries are those at Chatsworth, near Owen Sound, Normandale, on Lake Erie, North Bay, and Tarentorus, at Sault Ste. Marie.

For A Weekend Vacation Try These Suggestions

Feeling a little of that old weekend wanderlust?

So you'll know where to head when that "let's hop in the car and get away this weekend" urge hits — the Chicago Motor Club-AAA Touring Department has compiled a list of selected weekend destinations for the benefit of northwest suburban motorists and their families.

GALENA, ILL. — In the far northwestern corner of the state, this city is probably the most perfectly preserved historic town in the state. To many, this area is one great museum. There are interesting tours and some of the finest antique shopping in America.

TURKEY RUN STATE PARK, IND. — This park on U.S. 41 west and south of Crawfordsville, Ind., was established as Indiana's first state park in 1916. Sugar Creek wanders aimlessly through the area between rock-walled canyons and moss-lined gorges. A top the canyons are densely timbered hills which are prime springtime hiking areas and a must for photographers.

HOLLAND, MICH. — Windmill Island City Park is located in the heart of family resort country in this part of Michigan. The Park is a recreation of a 200-year-old Netherlands countryside scene. Everything about the park is planned to typify a 1750 environment in the Netherlands. Focal-point of the park is "De Zwaan," a two-century old grain mill from the Netherlands which actually operates when the wind is right.

MILWAUKEE, WIS. — Often known as the "Beer Capital of the World," this city is an excellent place to visit for an enjoyable weekend away from home. Downtown Milwaukee is one of Mid-America's favorite shopping areas with the East Town area between the river and the lakefront, offering a large selection of high fashion and specialty shops, art galleries and book stores. Tours of the many breweries are also a favorite pastime.

FORT KASKASKIA STATE PARK, ILL. — This state park, a 238-acre memorial to the early French and American pioneers who brought civilization to the Illinois wilderness, is located in the far southwestern portion of Illinois. It is situated atop a high bluff overlooking the Mississippi River. From the site of the fort, Kaskaskia Island can be seen separated from the Illinois mainland by a channel of the Mississippi River. This island is the only portion of Illinois located west of the great river.

BROWN COUNTY STATE PARK, IND. — Owning much of its charm to an early pioneer atmosphere that has been preserved in its wooded hills and valleys, this park appears much as it did when the early settlers came to Indiana in covered wagons. The park is located 40 miles south of Indianapolis and 20 miles east of Bloomington.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. — The state capital is a fascinating area for the lover of history. It was here that Abraham Lincoln matured to manhood and developed the skills that later made him one of the most hallowed figures in America's history. It is the site of the only home he ever owned, his law office, and his tomb. Nearby is the recreated New Salem, the village where he served as postmaster and store clerk.

MCCORMICK'S CREEK STATE PARK, IND. — Near Spencer, Ind., this park's varied landscape includes ravines, sink-holes, and deep stone gullies. The most notable feature of the park is a deep limestone canyon formed centuries ago by the rushing waters of McCormick's Creek.

SOUTH HAVEN, MICH. — Located on Lake Michigan's eastern shore, this area was a bustling international seaport before the St. Lawrence Seaway was dreamed of. Today, South Haven is a popular summer vacation area noted for its coho and chinook salmon fishing.

NELSON DEWEY STATE PARK, WIS. — Located in the southwestern portion of Wisconsin on the Mississippi River near Cassville, Wis., this park contains a fine exhibit of early-day farm implements and tools for crafts. There also is an authentic village of the 1890-era open for tours.

TRAVEL LORE

by Clare Wright,
TRAVEL EDITOR

They're getting big on handicrafts in Britain.

If you're heading for London sometime this year we have an address we want you to keep handy.

It's the Crafts Centre, 43 Earlham St., London W.C.2

Workshops from all over Great Britain contribute to the work you'll find here — and the homespun wool, linen, glassware and pottery is exceptional.

YOU'LL SEE handwoven tweeds from Scotland, Northern Ireland, and the Isle of Man — Fair Isle and Shetland knit sweaters, hand-worked natural linen from Northern Ireland — exquisite embroidery, needlepoint, batik (tie-dye) and tapestries for walls and floors.

They're handmade jewelry from many parts of Britain. Be sure to check out the carnegorms (lovely brown stones of variegated hues) from Scotland.

If you like pewter and copper as much as I do, you'll fall in love with the ornaments of original design from workshops in at least six different parts of Britain.

We also saw wonderful beads, belts and mesh bags from the Channel Islands.

It was interesting to learn that the traditional specialties for men and women in handicrafts have broken down completely. Some of the best tapestries are now woven by men. Some of the best pottery is made by women.

WEAVING is a natural specialty of the British. The climate is naturally suited to raising sheep and spinning wool.

Local variations still apply, and cottage industries in different parts of the islands produce woolsens and handloomed materials with a highly distinctive appearance.

For instance, in the Shetlands and the Islands of Orkney, the wool is silky, warm and lightweight. It's used to weave an excellent tweed, in several natural colors — white, cream, brown, and grey to near-black — and is left undyed.

In Wales, on the contrary, bright colors with natural and modern chemical dyes are used. A good example is Anna Davies' Welsh Wool Shop at Betws-y-Coed, which offers tapestry quilts, coats and skirts.

WOMEN HAVE COME into their own as studio potters. Like Marianne de Trey, who has a pottery at Shinner's Bridge near Totnes in south Devon. Her stoneware and porcelain pots are well designed and easy to handle.

I always like to pick up a bundle of Christmas presents in my travels, so unusual gifts that aren't too big or bulky are most welcome. Corn dollies fall into this category. These straw rattles and figures are usually woven during the period of feast and merriment that comes between harvest time and Christmas.

Corn dollies, made by tying and binding straw, make great decorations and toys. Woven as cornucopia, they make an attractive table centerpiece filled with fruits and flowers.

You can find delightful corn dollies at the workshop of Mrs. Emmie White, at High Willows, Vineyards Rd., Northaw, near Potters Bar, a few miles north of London.

REMEMBER GRANDMA'S quilting bees? Quilting parties and quilting bees are very popular — especially in the north of England.

Pretty patchwork quilts, cot covers, and even oven gloves (nice gift idea) can be purchased from Mrs. M. Brown, at Country Cousin Crafts, Rammoor Lane, Hathersage, in the Derbyshire Peak District.

A few steps away from the Crafts Centre you'll find the unique venture known as the Glasshouse, at 27 Neal St., W.C.2, first studio in Britain to invite folks to watch glass being blown.

The Glasshouse was opened several years ago by Pauline Solven, the only lady glassblower in England at that time. The glass pieces shown here are very unusual.

IF YOU'RE GOING to be traveling through Britain on an extended visit you'll no doubt have a chance to visit a number of country workshops — which is fascinating browsing.

However, if it's just a quick trip to London, a stop at the Crafts Centre on Earlham Street — or the Crafts Council Gallery on Lower Regent Street — will well satisfy you.

SHIPMATES NEEDED — "Yankee Trader," 180-foot, 1,100-ton steel-hulled vessel, formerly known as Coast Guard research, will embark on an adventure around the world Jan. 15, 1973. The group will explore, skin dive, sightsee, take photographs, or just loaf in luxury yachting style known only to millionaires — and they'll do it for $18 a day.

Around-World Cruise Set

MIAMI — Capt. Mike Burke, the ex-Navy submariner who heads Windjammer Cruises, has begun forming a crew and a passenger list for the upcoming around-the-world sailing of Yankee Trader.

The ship, a 180-foot, steel hulled former Coast Guard oceanography vessel, will depart in January for Panama, Haiti, Jamaica, Galapagos Islands and a string of other intriguing ports.

A brochure for the trip and instructions on applications by prospective passengers are being sent out from Windjammer Cruises, P.O. Box 120, Miami Beach, Fla. 33139. The material lists more than 20 stops.

Among them are Pitcairn Island, where the H.M.S. Bounty mutineers started new lives and where their descendants today live, and Easter Island, site of the giant and mysterious monoliths which so fascinated the explorer Thor Heyerdahl.

OTHER PORTS are Bali, Tahiti, New Guinea, Devil's Island, and Rio de Janeiro.

"The passengers we're seeking," Burke said, "are people who enjoy an informal atmosphere, are interested in new places and experiences, and who enjoy the championship of interesting people."

"That's one reason why we're using applications system wherein the prospective passenger includes a brief autobiography."

Plans call for the some 100 travelers and 25 crewmembers to circle the globe in about nine months, but not on a rigid schedule.

"WE PLANNED the excursion," Burke said, "so that we'll always be with trade winds and in warm weather. But we've also made sure that if there seems to be sentiment for staying somewhere longer than was expected we'll do so — no schedule."

Burke prefers to call the passengers "shipmates," since it is his policy on the sailing vessel journeys he offers in the Caribbean to give sailing lessons and seamanship instruction to those who wish it.

"Whoever wants to," Burke remarked, "can help with navigation, steering the ship and in its day-to-day care. But if taking things easy is what the shipmate wants, fine with us."

Aside from the sea lore aspects of the Yankee Trader's voyage, those who go with it in January will be offered a long and varied — but neither compulsory nor regimented program of fishing, skin diving, beach picnics, excursions ashore, and, in the African portion, big game hunting.

THE RECONDITIONING of Yankee Trader, which was purchased for $100,000 includes:

- Comfortable, air-conditioned state-rooms with walnut paneling, red carpeting and private bathrooms.
- Bachelor and single girls' quarters.
- Radar and ship-to-shore radio.
- Dispensary and operating facilities for the physician who will go on the voyage.

— A sun deck, a bar and a dining room.

BURKE SAID passage will cost $5,000 or about $18 a day, which includes all meals and an ample drinks allowance, as is the custom on his briefer Windjammer jaunts.

"Wine goes with every meal," he said, "and so do rum swizzles. There's champagne on Saturday and bloody marys on Sunday. It's been our experience that few passengers need to dip into their own pockets for drinks."

For details and applications for the 'round the world voyage, and shorter 10-day Caribbean cruises, contact Capt. Mike Burke, Windjammer Cruises, P.O. Box 120, Miami Beach, Fla. 33139.

TV Studio Tour Offered In Arizona

CAREFREE, Ariz. — Television and movie fans have a new sightseeing treat in the Valley of the Sun.

YACHTING ARMADA

A restricted number of yachting fans will be able to anchor inside the Olympic harbor for the seven-day yachting competition in August-September. The organizers have built five special harbors to accommodate an expected armada of 600 private yachts. Visitors, however, will not be allowed to watch races in their own yachts. The organizers have chartered 14 steamers which can carry a total of 4,000 fans to the three regatta courses.

FEMALE PURSERS

Scandinavian Airlines, which has a woman pilot in its jet fleet, may now look forward to female pursers in command of cabin service as well.

SAS air hostesses have won the right to compete on equal terms with men for new pursers positions as part of a new three year contract between cabin attendants' unions and the company. SAS has also completed negotiations with cockpit crew for a similar three year period.

The tri-national carrier employs approximately 1,200 flight deck crew and 1,400 cabin attendants in Denmark, Norway and Sweden. Cabin crews on the larger jets are normally made up of male stewards and air hostesses supervised by a senior male purser called a Maitre de Cabine. Experienced hostesses will now be eligible to bid for the position as well as the jacket and silver chain which are its symbols.

British Overseas Airways Corporation will continue its daily nonstop 747 Chicago-London service throughout the winter months.

BOAC will offer one-week vacations to Britain and Europe starting Nov. 1 for as low as $388 from Chicago. Fares for excursion travel will start as low as $284 from Chicago.

JAMAICA IDEAS — That's what Mr. and Mrs. H. Knaack, of Arlington Travel, learn about the new and exciting attractions being offered to Jamaica tourists this year from Heinz Simonitsch, managing director of the Half Moon hotel near Montego Bay.

'Abe Lincoln' To Speak At Illinois State Fair

After an absence of more than a century, Mr. Lincoln will speak this summer at the Illinois State Fair.

A synchronized and animated "Mr. Lincoln Speaks" exhibit, featuring a 6-foot-4-inch figure of Abraham Lincoln capable of speech, arm movement, standing, and even facial expressions, is scheduled for 200 performances. The exhibit is being co-sponsored by the Country Companies and the Illinois State Fair, and all shows will be free.

The voice of Lincoln is veteran actor Royal Dano, famous for his portrayals of Lincoln and his Broadway hit "Finian's Rainbow."

The narrator of "Mr. Lincoln Speaks" is David Wayne, winner of two Tony awards for Broadway performances in "Finian's Rainbow" and "Teahouse of the August Moon."

Each performance lasts 15 minutes, and shows will begin every 30 minutes starting at 10:00 a.m. The final show starts at 8:30 p.m.

TRAVEL LORE

by Clare Wright,
TRAVEL EDITOR

They're getting big on handicrafts in Britain.

If you're heading for London sometime this year we have an address we want you to keep handy.

It's the Crafts Centre, 43 Earlham St., London W.C.2.

Workshops from all over Great Britain contribute to the work you'll find here — and the homespun wool, linen, glassware and pottery is exceptional.

YOU'LL SEE handwoven tweeds from Scotland, Northern Ireland, and the Isle of Man — Fair Isle and Shetland knit sweaters, hand-worked natural linen from Northern Ireland — exquisite embroidery, needlepoint, batik (tie-dye) and tapestries for walls and floors.

Their handmade jewelry from many parts of Britain. Be sure to check out the cairngorms (lovely brown stones of variegated hues) from Scotland.

If you like pewter and copper as much as I do, you'll fall in love with the ornaments of original design from workshops in at least six different parts of Britain.

We also saw wonderful beads, belts and mesh bags from the Channel Islands.

It was interesting to learn that the traditional specialties for men and women in handicrafts have broken down completely. Some of the best tapestries are now woven by men. Some of the best pottery is made by women.

WEAVING IS A natural specialty of the British. The climate is naturally suited to raising sheep and spinning wool.

Local variations still apply, and cottage industries in different parts of the islands produce woollens and handloomed materials with a highly distinctive appearance.

For instance, in the Shetlands and the Islands of Orkney, the wool is silky, warm and lightweight. It's used to weave an excellent tweed, in several natural colors — white, cream, brown, and grey to near-black — and is left undyed.

In Wales, on the contrary, bright colors with natural and modern chemical dyes are used. A good example is Anna Davies' Welsh Wool Shop at Betws-y-Coed, which offers tapestry quilts, coats and skirts.

WOMEN HAVE COME into their own as studio potters. Like Marianne de Trey, who has a pottery at Shinner's Bridge near Totnes in south Devon. Her stoneware and porcelain pots are well designed and easy to handle.

I always like to pick up a bundle of Christmas presents in my travels, so unusual gifts that aren't too big or bulky are most welcome. Corn dollies fall into this category. These straw rattles and figures are usually woven during the period of feast and merriment that comes between harvest time and Christmas.

Corn dollies, made by tying and binding straw, make great decorations and toys. Woven as cornucopia, they make an attractive table centerpiece filled with fruits and flowers.

You can find delightful corn dollies at the workshop of Mrs. Emmie White, at High Willows, Vineyards Rd., Northaw, near Potters Bar, a few miles north of London.

REMEMBER GRANDMA'S quilting bees? Quilting parties and quilting bees are very popular — especially in the north of England.

Pretty patchwork quilts, cot covers, and even oven gloves (nice gift idea) can be purchased from Mrs. M. Brown, at Country Cousin Crafts, Rammoor Lane, Hathersage, in the Derbyshire Peak District.

A few steps away from the Crafts Centre you'll find the unique venture known as the Glasshouse, at 27 Neal St., W.C.2, first studio in Britain to invite folks to watch glass being blown.

The Glasshouse was opened several years ago by Pauline Solven, the only lady glassblower in England at that time. The glass pieces shown here are very unusual.

IF YOU'RE GOING to be traveling through Britain on an extended visit you'll no doubt have a chance to visit a number of country workshops — which is fascinating browsing.

However, if it's just a quick trip to London, a stop at the Crafts Centre on Earlham Street — or the Crafts Council Gallery on Lower Regent Street — will well satisfy you.

SHIPMATES NEEDED — "Yankee Trader," 180-foot, 1,100-ton steel-hulled vessel, formerly known for Coast Guard research, will embark on an adventure around the world Jan. 15, 1973. The group will explore, skin dive, sightsee, take photographs, or just loaf in luxury yachting style known only to millionaires — and they'll do it for $18 a day.

Around-World Cruise Set

MIAMI — Capt. Mike Burke, the ex-Navy submariner who heads Windjammer Cruises, has begun forming a crew and a passenger list for the upcoming around-the-world sailing of Yankee Trader.

The ship, a 180-foot, steel hulled former Coast Guard oceanography vessel, will depart in January for Panama, Haiti, Jamaica, Galapagos Islands and a string of other intriguing ports.

A brochure for the trip and instructions on applications by prospective passengers are being sent out from Windjammer Cruises, P.O. Box 120, Miami Beach, Fla. 33139. The material lists more than 20 stops.

Among them are Pitcairn Island, where the H.M.S. Bounty mutineers started new lives and where their descendants today live, and Easter Island, site of the giant and mysterious monoliths which so fascinated the explorer Thor Heyerdahl.

OTHER PORTS are Bali, Tahiti, New Guinea, Devil's Island, and Rio de Janeiro.

"The passengers we're seeking," Burke said, "are people who enjoy an informal atmosphere, are interested in new places and experiences, and who enjoy the championship of interesting people."

"That's one reason why we're using applications system wherein the prospective passenger includes a brief autobiography."

Plans call for the some 100 travelers and 25 crewmembers to circle the globe in about nine months, but not on a rigid schedule.

"WE PLANNED the excursion," Burke said, "so that we'll always be with trade winds and in warm weather. But we've also made sure that if there seems to be sentiment for staying somewhere longer than was expected we'll do so — no schedule."

Burke prefers to call the passengers "shipmates," since it is his policy on the sailing vessel journeys he offers in the Caribbean to give sailing lessons and seamanship instruction to those who wish it.

"Whoever wants to," Burke remarked, "can help with navigation, steering the ship and in its day-to-day care. But if taking things easy is what the shipmate wants, fine with us."

Aside from the sea lore aspects of the Yankee Trader's voyage, those who go with it in January will be offered a long and varied — but neither compulsory nor regimented program of fishing, skin diving, beach picnics, excursions ashore, and, in the African portion, big game hunting.

Social Security Needs Reform

President Nixon's grudging approval two weeks ago of a too-large hike in Social Security points out once again the need for an exhaustive overhaul of the entire Social Security system.

Indeed, the hike which Nixon approved, — and he had little choice, for it was a rider attached to a bill which hiked the national debt ceiling — appeared to be a politically inspired move to gain votes for the Democrats from anyone enjoying the benefits of Social Security.

The bill hikes benefits 20 per cent and, guess what, the effective date for the increase will be Sept. 1, so that the increase would be reflected in checks received Oct. 3, one month before the Presidential election.

Taxpayers will not get the bad news until next year, when payroll taxes will be hiked, followed by a similar hike in 1974. We'll be paying 5.5 per cent of the first $10,800 we make to the Social Security system.

The bill was authored by Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., once a candidate for the Presidency. His House Ways and Means Committee approved it, as did the House and Senate. Before approval, however, the Senate turned down a proposal which would have chopped the increase in half.

For the average retired worker, monthly benefits will climb from $131 to $161 and for the average retired couple, from $223 up to $270. Such a hike is clearly in line with the needs of the average retired person.

More annoying, however, than the political nature of the increase is the entire method of funding Social Security, and this is where the brunt of energy should be directed towards changing the system.

The Social Security tax hits everyone, and it is not graduated at all on the basis of ability to pay. Every wage earner will contribute 5.5 per cent of his income up to $10,800.

One wonders what the percentage bite on our paychecks will be ten years from now, providing that inflation still lingers on. Will it have gone to 10 per cent, and will we be perpetual slaves to the hunger of the Social Security system?

We aren't attacking the basic American need for and value of the Social Security system. It fulfills a need which could not otherwise be met, and it is a responsibility which is owed to anyone who has given a lifetime of work to this country.

There must be some alternative, however, to a flat rate tax which is bound to escalate over the coming years and place an increasingly intolerable burden upon the shoulders of all taxpayers.

The problem with Social Security is the same that plagues our entire system of taxation: All of it needs a thorough examination and radical reform to make it more equitable to the persons who are ultimately supposed to benefit from it.

U.S. 'Mobility'

When President Nixon's entourage journeyed from the airport to Peking at the beginning of his history-making visit to China last March, the motorcade had the highway all to itself.

To Americans watching over satellite-relayed television, China, which we think of as "teeming" with more than 800 million souls, appeared almost deserted, at least until the streets of the capital city itself were reached.

This was not the result of security measures by the President's Communist hosts. Normal traffic had not been cleared from the airport highway. By American standards, there would have been very little traffic to clear.

In America, however, one need not go into the cities to find people. Travel anywhere in the country, especially during the peak vacation months, from the least-known park in the most remote location to a well-publicized attraction like Disney World, and you'll encounter people, people, people, along with their cars, their trailers, their campers, their pets.

China with 800 million, is not seriously more crowded than it was with 600 million or 400 million. But in terms of "effective" population, the United States with 200 million is probably the most populous nation in the world.

Because of the great mobility and affluence at the command of Americans, our actual numbers have to be multiplied by a factor of several times to arrive at the "effective" population — the true population in terms of its impact on the environment and the consumption of resources.

The lesson, which ecologists and others are trying to sink into us, is that while the world may be able to support an indefinite number of people — so long as living standards are kept low enough — it may already contain too many for any but a small minority to hope to approach the American level.

As for America itself, it does not mean very much to say that there are only so many of us per square mile, compared with so many more Belgians or Netherlands per square mile.

What counts is how many square miles of farms and forests and highways, how many rivers and lakes and streams, how many mines and wells and ore deposits each American has an effect upon in terms of his travel and consumption and his wastes.

How Does That Feel?

Dorothy Meyer's Column

Gavelling Away That '72 Madness

You can tell that everybody's had more than enough of politics and convention-watching when you go out to lunch and the waiter comes over to take your order and says, "Would you like to place your vote now?" Especially if one of your lunchmates then gets up to make a nominating speech in favor of egg foo yung.

There are signs of over-exposure to politics everywhere you go and if I am ever elected President I promise that future presidential candidates will be selected by pulling names out of a hat. Saturation coverage of the convention has bogged everybody's mind and affected everybody's speech.

Early last week I went shopping but I couldn't find a saleswoman — they were all busy nominating one another to wait on me and simultaneously announcing their withdrawal from the race. I went to another store, made a purchase and had all I could do to convince the cashier that a credential challenge had nothing to do with my credit card.

At work, bosses are saying that rump sessions are out and if employees don't get off their seats and get moving, he'll find alternates who will.

Vacuum cleaner salesmen are being turned away from the door by housewives who claim that demonstrations on the floor are no longer permitted.

Soul singers are blowing their cool, trying to sing "Happy Days Are Here Again" and comedians are frantically trying to find material to top the show in Miami.

And at home sweet home the democratic processes are tried but a monarchy still exists. The other night I came home from work, pooped and ready to take advantage of a plaque that hangs in my kitchen — the one that says, "This kitchen is closed on account of illness — I'm sick of cooking."

This caused a floor demonstration that I couldn't gavel down and I finally resorted to the old political tactic of shouting the objectors. "Show me a parliamentary ruling on this matter and I'll concede," I yelled, so Wally and the kids dragged out wedding license and birth certificates.

"Wait," I cried, "my Roberts Rules of

This caused a momentary silence but Wally jumped into the breach, asking to be recognized. "That's not really necessary dear," I said, "I'd know you anywhere," and as I was booted down Wally began his speech, interrupted by cheers from his duly delegated children.

"From the gggrrreeaaaat state of hunger, the oldest state in the union of Wally and Dorothy, I am privileged to cast three votes for that dedicated and tireless worker — YOU — go cook and I don't want any more damned rabbit food."

Even the lettuce boycott has more support around here than I do.

Oh well, it's over now and I've survived. In fact, I may be the only one who's survived with faculties and speech intact.

Congratulations, Governor McSenate.

'We Citizens Do Care About July Fourth'

As a firmly established resident of Mount Prospect, I have enjoyed your paper for years.

My daily copy of your paper brightens and enlightens my view of many civic issues and events which would remain gray if Paddock reporters were not on the job.

However, I have one comment which I must put in writing.

In this day of national unrest and unpatriotic demonstrations, I feel Paddock failed in its responsibility to cover adequately the fine community spirit which was in evidence at the parades of our surrounding towns.

Our young people, senior citizens, and chambers of commerce, supported by hundreds of spirited Americans, put together outstanding floats and other entries to show their pride in America's heritage.

How did our leading newspaper show this?

I was very saddened at the lone picture which appeared on Wednesday's

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

Our Flag's Meaning

Do people know what a flag represents?

A flag represents the country you live in. Everyone should be proud to live there.

On the Fourth of July at the parade and at the Drum and Bugle Corps competition in Hoffman Estates, whenever the flag went by only about 25 per cent saluted it. Doesn't the symbol of our country mean anything anymore? Aren't they proud to live in a country that is free? Where they can earn more money than anywhere else and own just about anything they want; house, car, boat, airplane etc. Freedom of worship, and the freedom to vote.

front page. Your photographer must have run like a deer after shooting the picture on Tuesday afternoon to have it appear on Wednesday morning's front page. Or, I wonder, have parades become so repetitious that last year's photos could pass for this year's parade.

Consumerism 'A Scheme To Benefit Chosen Few'

Tom Wellman's column of Monday, July 10, was thought provoking to say the least. As your readers will recall; Mr. Wellman's subject was: "Peril For Consumerism."

I for one will express agreement with regard to his assertion that the so-called "consumer movement" is not as altruistic as its proponents would have the public believe. In fact, I am willing to go one step further than Tom Wellman — I will indict consumerism as a complete fraud in terms of its announced purpose of consumer protection. I further assert that far from being conceived as a protection for the consuming public — consumerism is in fact a scheme, which in the long term, will benefit only a chosen few.

Perhaps we could glean a clue as to the identity of these chosen few by having a closer look at some of the activities of our most prominent consumer advocate. I refer to that self-styled humanitarian: Mr. Ralph Nader.

Who has given this man a mandate over American business? Unbelievably, many of his assaults on our business system are financed by elements within the business community itself. He receives a good deal of money from foundations — most of which owe their very existence to the free enterprise concept. And of course most of these foundations are owned by the very corporate giants he claims to be exposing for their indifference toward the welfare of the consuming public.

Among the proposals favored by Nader are having "publicly elected" members imposed on corporation boards of directors to serve the "public interest" as defined by Nader, abolishing corporate trade secrets on the grounds that a corporation doesn't have the right to privacy, and making all corporate tax returns public on the same grounds.

Still more incredible are Nader's proposals that corporate executives be suspended from their jobs through "sanctions" he wants to impose, and that entire companies be driven out of business if they fail to live up to what he calls a "social cost test." He further proposes that corporations that abuse the public interest should be transferred to public trusteeship and their officers sent to jail!

It is apparent that Mr. Nader's mentors would prefer to drive their competitors out of business by propagandizing for more government regulation, (which Nader's group will somehow manage to evade) rather than drive them out of business by building a better product and selling it at a lesser price — thereby allowing the consumers to make the determination of who they will patronize.

One gathers from the attitudes of consumerists and bureaucrats alike, that the consuming public, like a herd of livestock, does not have the mentality to make such determinations for themselves. But these same people seem to have somehow overlooked the fact that the American industrial machine has been able to grow to its present state of eminence as a result of the free enterprise system — as a result of freedom of choice. This fact belies the contention of the consumerists and government officials that it is necessary for them to tell the buying public what is good and what is bad — what they should spend their money for and what they should not spend it for.

In the final analysis consumerism is not the result of a need that sprang from the grassroots of America. Consumerism is nothing more than a great deal of agitation at the bottom by a few — and a great deal of pressure from the top by a few. By using such tactics they seek to limit the options open to the public — to restrict their freedom of choice.

Social Security Needs Reform

President Nixon's grudging approval two weeks ago of a too-large hike in Social Security points out once again the need for an exhaustive overhaul of the entire Social Security system.

Indeed, the hike which Nixon approved, — and he had little choice, for it was a rider attached to a bill which hiked the national debt ceiling — appeared to be a politically inspired move to gain votes for the Democrats from anyone enjoying the benefits of Social Security.

The bill hikes benefits 20 per cent and, guess what, the effective date for the increase will be Sept. 1, so that the increase would be reflected in checks received Oct. 3, one month before the Presidential election.

Taxpayers will not get the bad news until next year, when payroll taxes will be hiked, followed by a similar hike in 1974. We'll be paying 5.5 per cent of the first $10,800 we make to the Social Security system.

The bill was authored by Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., once a candidate for the Presidency. His House Ways and Means Committee approved it, as did the House and Senate. Before approval, however, the Senate turned down a proposal which would have chopped the increase in half.

For the average retired worker, monthly benefits will climb from $131 to $161 and for the average retired couple, from $223 up to $270. Such a hike is clearly in line with the needs of the average retired person.

More annoying, however, than the political nature of the increase is the entire method of funding Social Security, and this is where the brunt of energy should be directed towards changing the system.

The Social Security tax hits everyone, and it is not graduated at all on the basis of ability to pay. Every wage earner will contribute 5.5 per cent of his income up to $10,800.

One wonders what the percentage bite on our paychecks will be ten years from now, providing that inflation still lingers on. Will it have gone to 10 per cent, and will we be perpetual slaves to the hunger of the Social Security system?

We aren't attacking the basic American need for and value of the Social Security system. It fulfills a need which could not otherwise be met, and it is a responsibility which is owed to anyone who has given a lifetime of work to this country.

There must be some alternative, however, to a flat rate tax which is bound to escalate over the coming years and place an increasingly intolerable burden upon the shoulders of all taxpayers.

The problem with Social Security is the same that plagues our entire system of taxation: All of it needs a thorough examination and radical reform to make it more equitable to the persons who are ultimately supposed to benefit from it.

U.S. 'Mobility'

When President Nixon's entourage journeyed from the airport to Peking at the beginning of his history-making visit to China last March, the motorcade had the highway all to itself.

To Americans watching over satellite-relayed television, China, which we think of as "teeming" with more than 800 million souls, appeared almost deserted, at least until the streets of the capital city itself were reached.

This was not the result of security measures by the President's Communist hosts. Normal traffic had not been cleared from the airport highway. By American standards, there would have been very little traffic to clear.

In America, however, one need not go into the cities to find people. Travel anywhere in the country, especially during the peak vacation months, from the least-known park in the most remote location to a well-publicized attraction like Disney World, and you'll encounter people, people, people, along with their cars, their trailers, their campers, their pets.

China with 800 million, is not seriously more crowded than it was with 600 million or 400 million. But in terms of "effective" population, the United States with 200 million is probably the most populous nation in the world.

Because of the great mobility and affluence at the command of Americans, our actual numbers have to be multiplied by a factor of several times to arrive at the "effective" population — the true population in terms of its impact on the environment and the consumption of resources.

The lesson, which ecologists and others are trying to sink into us, is that while the world may be able to support an indefinite number of people — so long as living standards are kept low enough — it may already contain too many for any but a small minority to hope to approach the American level.

As for America itself, it does not mean very much to say that there are only so many of us per square mile, compared with so many more Belgians or Netherlanders per square mile.

What counts is how many square miles of farms and forests and highways, how many rivers and lakes and streams, how many mines and wells and ore deposits each American has an effect upon in terms of his travel and consumption and his wastes.

How Does That Feel?

Gavelling Away That '72 Madness

You can tell that everybody's had more than enough of politics and convention-watching when you go out to lunch and the waiter comes over to take your order and says, "Would you like to place your vote now?" Especially if one of your lunchmates then gets up to make a nominating speech in favor of egg foo yung.

There are signs of over-exposure to politics everywhere you go and if I am ever elected President I promise that future presidential candidates will be selected by pulling names out of a hat. Saturation coverage of the convention has boggled everybody's mind and affected everybody's speech.

Early last week I went shopping but I couldn't find a saleswoman — they were all busy nominating one another to wait on me and simultaneously announcing their withdrawal from the race. I went to another store, made a purchase and had all I could do to convince the cashier that a credential challenge had nothing to do with my credit card.

At work, bosses are saying that rump sessions are out and if employees don't get off theirs and get moving, he'll find alternates who will.

Vacuum cleaner salesmen are being turned away from the door by housewives who claim that demonstrations on the floor are no longer permitted.

Soul singers are blowing their cool, trying to sing "Happy Days Are Here Again" and comedians are frantically trying to find material to top the show in Miami.

And at home sweet home the democratic processes are tried but a monarchy still exists. The other night I came home from work, pooped and ready to take advantage of a plaque that hangs in my kitchen — the one that says, "This kitchen is closed on account of illness — I'm sick of cooking."

This caused a floor demonstration that I couldn't gavel down and I finally resorted to the old political tactic of shouting the objectors. "Show me a parliamentary ruling on this matter and I'll concede," I yelled, so Wally and the kids dragged out wedding license and birth certificates.

"Wait," I cried, "my Roberts Rules of

This caused a momentary silence but Wally jumped into the breach, asking to be recognized. "That's not really necessary dear," I said, "I'd know you anywhere," and as I was booted down Wally began his speech, interrupted by cheers from his duly delegated children.

"From the gggrrreeaaaat state of hunger, the oldest state in the union of Wally and Dorothy, I am privileged to cast three votes for that dedicated and tireless worker — YOU — go cook and I don't want any more damned rabbit food."

Even the lettuce boycott has more support around here than I do.

Oh well, it's over now and I've survived. In fact, I may be the only one who's survived with faculties and speech intact.

Congratulations, Governor McSenate.

'We Citizens Do Care About July Fourth'

As a firmly established resident of Mount Prospect, I have enjoyed your paper for years.

My daily copy of your paper brightens and enlightens my view of many civic issues and events which would remain gray if Paddock reporters were not on the job.

However, I have one comment which I must put in writing.

In this day of national unrest and unpatriotic demonstrations, I feel Paddock failed in its responsibility to cover adequately the fine community spirit which was in evidence at the parades of our surrounding towns.

Our young people, senior citizens, and chambers of commerce, supported by hundreds of spirited Americans, put together outstanding floats and other entries to show their pride in America's heritage.

How did our leading newspaper show this?

I was very saddened at the lone picture which appeared on Wednesday's

Our Flag's Meaning

Do people know what a flag represents?

A flag represents the country you live in. Everyone should be proud to live there.

On the Fourth of July at the parade and at the Drum and Bugle Corps competition in Hoffman Estates, whenever the flag went by only about 25 per cent saluted it. Doesn't the symbol of our country mean anything anymore? Aren't they proud to live in a country that is free? Where they can earn more money than anywhere else and own just about anything they want; house, car, boat, airplane etc. Freedom of worship, and the freedom to vote.

I think we should have patriotic meetings where young and old can learn how to respect the flag of their country and also the history of the flag. How it was born, what the colors and the stars mean.

I felt very sad to see how little the flag meant to the people watching it go by.

Consumerism 'A Scheme To Benefit Chosen Few'

I for one will express agreement with regard to his assertion that the so-called "consumer movement" is not as altruistic as its propounders would have the public believe. In fact, I am willing to go one step further than Tom Wellman — I will indict consumerism as a complete fraud in terms of its announced purpose of consumer protection. I further assert that far from being conceived as a protection for the consuming public — consumerism is in fact a scheme, which in the long term, will benefit only a chosen few.

NEW YORK (UPI) — For many years it was assumed that only institutions and other big investors could afford to buy municipal bonds. If lesser investors bought local municipal bonds, it was simply a matter of civic duty, not sophisticated investment.

This concept has been challenged in the last year with success by Michael T. Weissman, who at 33 already has had quite a career. He started out as a singer in Broadway musicals. He appeared in "The King and I" and sang on the radio, switched to pre-dental school, then quit that and took a job as a bond salesman.

After six years working for an old line firm, Weissman founded his own company and last year organized a bigger one called Paragon Securities, Inc., with offices in West Orange, N.J., New York and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. He broke with tradition by using television advertising and soliciting accounts of little as well as big investors.

THE RESULT — his new firm marketed $750 million worth of municipal bonds in its first year.

Weissman has 86 account executives on his staff, all specialists in state and municipal bonds.

His firm bids on bond issues, engages in underwriting and carries a big inventory.

"We don't take bond issues and sell them on a best efforts basis," he said.

"If an issue isn't worth risking our own money, it isn't good enough to offer to clients."

Ninety per cent of Paragon's volume is in general obligation bonds fully backed by taxing power.

"We handle only higher grade revenue bonds and don't sell them to small private investors. Only people who can afford the risk of the sale of the higher coupon rates should buy municipal revenue bonds," he said. A revenue bond is one that obligates the municipality or other local agency to pay interest and principal only if it is earned by the venture for which the bonds were issued.

SINCE THE municipal bond business is very old, many old line stock brokerage houses and big banks have municipal bond underwriting and sales departments. There also are a number of old respected houses specializing in municipal bonds but in the past these have sold only to big investors and institutions.

Weissman expects the municipal bond business to be good from the standpoint of investors and the municipalities "if President Nixon is reelected." He said that if Sen. McGovern is the next president he doesn't know what will happen in the market.

Irrespective of who wins the election, Weissman hopes the federal government and leaders in the municipal bond industry will bring it under stricter regulation.

Consumer Credit Up $578 Million

Commercial banks in the Chicago Federal Reserve District had $6.4 billion in consumer installment credit outstanding on May 1, an increase of $578 million from the same date last year, an American Bankers Association official said.

James L. Smith, chairman of the installment lending division, said consumer credit outstanding for all commercial banks as of May 1 totaled more than $47 billion, making them the nation's installment lending leaders.

Total consumer credit for the nation's other installment lenders such as finance companies and credit unions amounted to less than $63 billion, he added.

Direct and indirect auto loans accounted for the biggest chunk of commercial bank installment lending dollars totaling more than $22 billion, Smith said. Direct loans are those made at the bank and indirect loans are those made by the bank through the car dealer primarily for the consumers convenience.

Smith, who is also a senior vice president of Security Pacific Bank, Los Angeles, Calif., said personal loans including check-credit, were second, approaching the $12 billion mark.

"Check-credit offers the consumer an immediate line of credit which can be triggered simply by writing a check. Loans of this type amounted to more than $1 billion during April."

Miscellaneous consumer credit — loans for everything from lawn mowers to mobile homes — totaled more than $10 billion, he reported.

"The majority of these funds, more than $4 billion, went for mobile home purchases," he said. "More than $3 billion of the total involved plastic money — commercial bank credit cards — which were used to make retail purchases and obtain cash advances."

Home repair and modernization loans ran to almost $3 billion, Smith said.

Federal Reserve Reports On Special Securities

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago recently reported on special securities available to state and local governmental units and term loans at seventh district banks.

State and local governmental units can now purchase special nonmarketable securities from the treasury. U.S. Treasury certificates of indebtedness-state and local government series, and U.S. Treasury notes-state and local series will be issued upon application for purchase by a state or local government. The purchaser can choose among certificate maturities of from three months to one year, and note maturities of from 18 months to seven years.

THE INTEREST RATE on a given obligation will be set by the purchaser, so long as it is lower by at least one-eighth of 1 per cent than the yield on marketable treasury securities with comparable maturities.

Schedules of maximum rates payable on securities of various maturities, together with the maximum rates applicable if redeemed before maturity, are furnished weekly by the Treasury.

Application for the securities may be made at any Federal Reserve bank or branch. The securities will be issued in book-entry form only, in multiples of $5,000.

These securities were made available in order to facilitate the marketing of state and local bonds by clarifying the tax status of such bonds under the "arbitrage bonds" provision of the 1969 Tax Reform Act.

The Internal Revenue Code provides that interest paid to the holder of a municipal bond is taxable if the issuer used the proceeds to purchase other securities providing a "materially higher yield."

The intent of this provision of the code from issuing debt for the sole purpose of profiting from the difference between the rates at which they could sell tax-free investments and the rates obtainable on securities that pay taxable interest income.

IN A RELATED ACTION, the treasury changed the definition of "materially higher yield" from one-half to one-eighth of one percentage point, applicable to bonds issued after July 1. Interest rates on the state and local certificate and note series purchased with bond-raised funds can be set so as to produce the maximum yield allowed, as determined according to specified rules of computation.

A substantial amount of public funds is held in banks. At the end of last year, deposits of states and political subdivisions at all commercial banks totaled $48 billion, accounting for about 9 per cent of total deposits. Time deposits owned by these units were 11 per cent of total time deposits nationwide, and 9 per cent in this district. Investment of the proceeds of new state and local issues may be affected by the availability of the new treasury securities. As of mid-June, however, no applications had been received by this bank.

As of April, exactly half of the commercial and industrial loans of the 18 largest district banks were term loans — loans with original maturities longer than one year. Term loans were proportionately less important here than in New York, but they are more important here than at the large banks in the other ten Federal Reserve districts. In general, the percentage of term loans is highest in the mining and public utilities categories where fixed investment is high relative to working capital needs.

Over the past year, however, term loans as a per cent of total business loans have declined at New York banks from 60 per cent to 54 per cent, while remaining virtually unchanged elsewhere. The decline in importance in New York was reported for nearly all borrower categories.

Lithographic Offset Firm To Open In Area

A Des Plaines franchise unit will be opened next fall by Insty-Print, Inc.

The Minneapolis, Minn.-based firm is in the lithographic offset printing business. Insty-Print, which began franchising on an international basis, has 60 units in operation in the United States, Puerto Rico, Thailand and Israel.

According to Pres. Frank E. Schochet, Insty-Prints plans to open six additional units in the next three months.

Dairy Queen Plans To Offer Shares

International Dairy Queen, Inc. plans a public offering of 600,000 shares of its common stock, 300,000 shares to be sold on behalf of the company and 300,000 shares on behalf of certain stockholders of the company, including certain of its officers and directors.

While the terms of the proposed offering have not been determined, it is anticipated that the offering price may be substantially less than the present market price for the company's common stock.

Proceeds will provide additional equity for two financing subsidiaries, Dairy Queen Financial, Inc. and Dairy Queen Realty, Inc., to provide initial equity for a subsidiary to be formed to expand international operations and to provide additional working capital to be used for general corporate purposes including possible acquisition of territorial franchise rights.

The offering will be made through a group of underwriters and only by means of a prospectus.

Mobil Service Station To Offer Cameras

The current class of 21 new marketing representatives at the Mobil Oil Regional Training Center, Arlington Heights, is conducting a gasoline sales promotion during their 13-week training program.

The promotion, which includes free cameras to gasoline customers, will take place at the service center on Rand and Camp McDonald roads from July 20 through July 23.

Charlie Helvie of Elk Grove Village and Jack Andersen of Palatine supervise the training program for Mobil's five-state Great Lakes Division. This is the seventh class to go through the training course at this center. Graduates will be assigned to territories from Florida to Minnesota.

This advertisement is neither an offer to sell nor solicitation of offers to buy any of these Bonds. The offering is made only by the Prospectus.

Broad Newspaper Background Aids Salesman Steve Witte

As far back as Steve Witte can remember his family has been in the newspaper business. His great great grandfather David M. Givler started it all when he bought the only newspaper in DuPage County in 1868 and named it the Naperville Clarion. Since then a family member has worked continuously in some phase of the newspaper industry.

Steve was no exception. As a teenager he literally grew up writing news stories, proofreading and selling advertising. After college and completion of his Army service Steve chose newspaper advertising as his career. His broad range of experience and knowledge has given him an unusual background upon which to draw when assisting such clients as the Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Association and other major accounts.

A revenue bond is one that obligates the municipality or other local agency to pay interest and principal only if it is earned by the venture for which the bonds were issued.

SINCE THE municipal bond business is very old, many old line stock brokerage houses and big banks have municipal bond underwriting and sales departments. There also are a number of old respected houses specializing in municipal bonds but in the past these have sold only to big investors and institutions.

Weissman expects the municipal bond business to be good from the standpoint of investors and the municipalities "if President Nixon is reelected." He said that if Sen. McGovern is the next president he doesn't know what will happen in the market.

Irrespective of who wins the election, Weissman hopes the federal government and leaders in the municipal bond industry will bring it under stricter regulation.

Consumer Credit Up $578 Million

Commercial banks in the Chicago Federal Reserve District had $6.4 billion in consumer instalment credit outstanding on May 1, an increase of $578 million from the same date last year, an American Bankers Association official said.

James L. Smith, chairman of the instalment lending division, said consumer credit outstanding for all commercial banks as of May 1 totaled more than $47 billion, making them the nation's instalment lending leaders.

Total consumer credit for the nation's other instalment lenders such as finance companies and credit unions amounted to less than $63 billion, he added.

Direct and indirect auto loans accounted for the biggest chunk of commercial bank instalment lending dollars totaling more than $22 billion, Smith said. Direct loans are those made at the bank and indirect loans are those made by the bank through the car dealer primarily for the consumers convenience.

Smith, who is also a senior vice president of Security Pacific Bank, Los Angeles, Calif., said personal loans including check-credit, were second, approaching the $12 billion mark.

"Check-credit offers the consumer an immediate line of credit which can be triggered simply by writing a check. Loans of this type amounted to more than $1 billion during April."

Miscellaneous consumer credit — loans for everything from lawn mowers to mobile homes — totaled more than $10 billion, he reported.

"The majority of these funds, more than $4 billion, went for mobile home purchases," he said. "More than $3 billion of the total involved plastic money — commercial bank credit cards — which were used to make retail purchases and obtain cash advances."

Home repair and modernization loans ran to almost $3 billion, Smith said.

Dairy Queen Plans To Offer Shares

International Dairy Queen, Inc. plans a public offering of 600,000 shares of its common stock, 300,000 shares to be sold on behalf of the company and 300,000 shares on behalf of certain stockholders of the company, including certain of its officers and directors.

While the terms of the proposed offering have not been determined, it is anticipated that the offering price may be substantially less than the present market price for the company's common stock.

Proceeds will provide additional equity for two financing subsidiaries, Dairy Queen Financial, Inc. and Dairy Queen Realty, Inc., to provide initial equity for a subsidiary to be formed to expand international operations and to provide additional working capital to be used for general corporate purposes including possible acquisition of territorial franchise rights.

The offering will be made through a group of underwriters and only by means of a prospectus.

Mobil Service Station To Offer Cameras

The current class of 21 new marketing representatives at the Mobil Oil Regional Training Center, Arlington Heights, is conducting a gasoline sales promotion during their 13-week training program.

The promotion, which includes free cameras to gasoline customers, will take place at the service center on Rand and Camp McDonald roads from July 20 through July 23.

Charlie Helvie of Elk Grove Village and Jack Andersen of Palatine supervise the training program for Mobil's five-state Great Lakes Division. This is the seventh class to go through the training course at this center. Graduates will be assigned to territories from Florida to Minnesota.

This advertisement is neither an offer to sell nor solicitation of offers to buy any of these Bonds. The offering is made only by the Prospectus.

Federal Reserve Reports On Special Securities

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago recently reported on special securities available to state and local governmental units and term loans at seventh district banks.

State and local governmental units can now purchase special nonmarketable securities from the treasury, U.S. Treasury certificates of indebtedness-state and local government series, and U.S. Treasury notes-state and local series will be issued upon application for purchase by a state or local government. The purchaser can choose among certificate maturities of from three months to one year, and note maturities of from 18 months to seven years.

THE INTEREST RATE on a given obligation will be set by the purchaser, so long as it is lower by at least one-eighth of 1 per cent than the yield on marketable treasury securities with comparable maturities.

Schedules of maximum rates payable on securities of various maturities, together with the maximum rates applicable if redeemed before maturity, are furnished weekly by the Treasury.

Application for the securities may be made at any Federal Reserve bank or branch. The securities will be issued in book-entry form only, in multiples of $5,000.

These securities were made available in order to facilitate the marketing of state and local bonds by clarifying the tax status of such bonds under the "arbitrage bonds" provision of the 1969 Tax Reform Act.

The Internal Revenue Code provides that interest paid to the holder of a municipal bond is taxable if the issuer used the proceeds to purchase other securities providing a "materially higher yield."

The intent of this provision of the code from issuing debt for the sole purpose of profiting from the difference between the rates at which they could sell tax-free investments and the rates obtainable on securities that pay taxable interest income.

IN A RELATED ACTION, the treasury changed the definition of "materially higher yield" from one-half to one-eighth of one percentage point, applicable to bonds issued after July 1. Interest rates on the state and local certificate and note series purchased with bond-raised funds can be set so as to produce the maximum yield allowed, as determined according to specified rules of computation.

A substantial amount of public funds is held in banks. At the end of last year, deposits of states and political subdivisions at all commercial banks totaled $48 billion, accounting for about 9 per cent of total deposits. Time deposits owned by these units were 11 per cent of total time deposits nationwide, and 9 per cent in this district. Investment of the proceeds of new state and local issues may be affected by the availability of the new treasury securities. As of mid-June, however, no applications had been received by this bank.

As of April, exactly half of the commercial and industrial loans of the 18 largest district banks were term loans — loans with original maturities longer than one year. Term loans were proportionately less important here than in New York, but they are more important here than at the large banks in the other ten Federal Reserve districts. In general, the percentage of term loans is highest in the mining and public utilities categories where fixed investment is high relative to working capital needs.

Over the past year, however, term loans as a per cent of total business loans have declined at New York banks from 60 per cent to 54 per cent, while remaining virtually unchanged elsewhere. The decline in importance in New York was reported for nearly all borrower categories.

Broad Newspaper Background Aids Salesman Steve Witte

As far back as Steve Witte can remember his family has been in the newspaper business. His great great grandfather David M. Givler started it all when he bought the only newspaper in DuPage County in 1868 and named it the Naperville Clarion. Since then a family member has worked continuously in some phase of the newspaper industry.

Steve was no exception. As a teenager he literally grew up writing news stories, proofreading and selling advertising. After college and completion of his Army service Steve chose newspaper advertising as his career. His broad range of experience and knowledge has given him an unusual background upon which to draw when assisting such clients as the Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Association and other major accounts.

The father of two sons, Steve and his wife Shirle live in Schaumburg. Here Steve enjoys his two long time hobbies of photography and scuba diving.

Cousteau Series Renewed

by RICK DuBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

The headliners: Jacques Cousteau's superb series of occasional specials about undersea life has been renewed by ABC-TV for this coming season — its sixth — the July 27 premiere of NBC-TV's Bobby Darin hour variety series features Burt Reynolds, Bobbie Gentry and George Burns . . . "Jesse Owens Returns to Berlin — the 1936 Olympics," about the black track star's historic and dramatic triumphs at Germany's summer games when that country was under Adolf Hitler, will be presented on ABC-TV July 31.

Liza Minnelli has an hour musical special on NBC-TV Sept. 10 entitled "Liza With a Z." It was filmed in May before an audience in New York's Lyceum theatre, and is coproduced by two persons associated with her in her acclaimed starring performance in the movie musical "Cabaret." Bob Fosse and Fred Ebb . . . Fosse directed and choreographed the movie, and Ebb wrote the lyrics . . . Jack Paar, who made two outings as the sole guest on Dick Cavett's ABC-TV talk series, told Cavett: "I'm always glad to be with you, Dick, and terribly anxious to hear what I have to say."

PAUL GALLICO, whose famous story "The Snow Goose" won much acclaim in its NBC-TV dramatization this past season, will have another of his tales adapted by the same network for the 1972-73 video semester: "The Small Miracle."

about a little Italian orphan boy who is determined to ask the Pope for assistance for his ill pet donkey . . . the story, which once was made into a movie, will be adapted for television by John Patrick, who wrote the play "Teahouse of the August Moon."

"The Ekn Berry 'Wow' show," an hour summer variety series with a dreadful title and an amiable star, had its debut Saturday night on ABC-TV, and, except for some technical wizardry and a funny spoof of an Elvis Presley movie, was pretty run of the mill. Berry was amusing as Presley, and so were John Astin and Patty Duke in a separate bit. . . . Astin and Miss Duke, who go with each other, will also appear on CBS-TV's David Steinberg summer variety series July 26, along with pop composers-singers James Taylor and Carly Simon.

"Ballad for Americans," inspired by a compositions written by John La Touche and Earl Robinson Jr., and sung years ago by Paul Robeson, the black singer who for so long was politically embattled, is the working title of an hour musical portrait of the United States scheduled for NBC-TV Sept. 9 . . . as it happens, RCA, parent company of NBC, is currently releasing a long-playing record album entitled "Paul Robeson: Songs of My People," billed as "his legendary first Victor recordings" and including such numbers as "Deep River" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" . . . David Wolper productions is doing the NBC-TV show.

"HONEYMOON SUITE," a weekday, afternoon, 90-minute ABC-TV special set for July 26 and concerning the various behind-the-scenes activities at a cosmopolitan hotel, stars Henry Gibson as a bellboy and Rose Marie as a maid, and the action will be seen through their eyes . . . there will be two separate vignettes in the special, whose setting is the Beverly Hills Hotel, with guest stars including Gloria De Haven, Arthur O'Connell, June Lockhart, Martha Scott and Alan Oppenheimer . . . and executive producer Douglas Cramer says the show is "a pilot for a new concept in daytime, a first-run daily half-hour comedy series."

Cousteau Series Renewed

by RICK DuBROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Notes to watch television by:

The headlines: Jacques Cousteau's superb series of occasional specials about undersea life has been renewed by ABC-TV for this coming season — its sixth . . . the July 27 premiere of NBC-TV's Bobby Darin hour variety series features Burt Reynolds, Bobbie Gentry and George Burns . . . "Jesse Owens Returns to Berlin — the 1936 Olympics," about the black track star's historic and dramatic triumphs at Germany's summer games when that country was under Adolf Hitler, will be presented on ABC-TV July 31.

Liza Minnelli has an hour musical special on NBC-TV Sept. 10 entitled "Liza With a Z." It was filmed in May before an audience in New York's Lyceum theatre, and is coproduced by two persons associated with her in her acclaimed starring performance in the movie musical "Cabaret." Bob Fosse and Fred Ebb . . . Fosse directed and choreographed the movie, and Ebb wrote the lyrics . . . Jack Paar, who made two outings as the sole guest on Dick Cavett's ABC-TV talk series, told Cavett: "I'm always glad to be with you, Dick, and terribly anxious to hear what I have to say."

PAUL GALLICO, whose famous story "The Snow Goose" won much acclaim in its NBC-TV dramatization this past season, will have another of his tales adapted by the same network for the 1972-73 video semester: "The Small Miracle,"

about a little Italian orphan boy who is determined to ask the Pope for assistance for his ill pet donkey . . . the story, which once was made into a movie, will be adapted for television by John Patrick, who wrote the play "Teahouse of the August Moon."

"The Ekn Berry 'Wow' show," an hour summer variety series with a dreadful title and an amiable star, had its debut Saturday night on ABC-TV, and, except for some technical wizardry and a funny spoof of an Elvis Presley movie, was pretty run of the mill . . . Berry was amusing as Presley, and so were John Astin and Patty Duke in a separate bit . . . Astin and Miss Duke, who go with each other, will also appear on CBS-TV's David Steinberg summer variety series July 26, along with pop composers-singers James Taylor and Carly Simon.

"Ballad for Americans," inspired by a compositions written by John La Touche and Earl Robinson Jr., and sung years ago by Paul Robeson, the black singer who for so long was politically embattled, is the working title of an hour musical portrait of the United States scheduled for NBC-TV Sept. 9 . . . as it happens, RCA, parent company of NBC, is currently releasing a long-playing record album entitled "Paul Robeson: Songs of My People," billed as "his legendary first Victor recordings" and including such numbers as "Deep River" and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" . . . David Wolper productions is doing the NBC-TV show.

"HONEYMOON SUITE," a weekday, afternoon, 90-minute ABC-TV special set for July 26 and concerning the various behind-the-scenes activities at a cosmopolitan hotel, stars Henry Gibson as a bellboy and Rose Marie as a maid, and the action will be seen through their eyes . . . there will be two separate vignettes in the special, whose setting is the Beverly Hills Hotel, with guest stars including Gloria De Haven, Arthur O'Connell, June Lockhart, Martha Scott and Alan Oppenheimer . . . and executive producer Douglas Cramer says the show is "a pilot for a new concept in daytime, a first-run daily half-hour comedy series."

Park Ridge Stops Arlington

THE HERALD Tuesday, July 18, 1972 Section 2 —1

by TOM CARKEEK
Fred Parker — an unlikely hero.
Unlikely because he hit a home run. He hasn't gotten a single all year.
A hero because his home run broke a 2-2 tie in the first extra inning and presented the Park Ridge Legion baseball team with its third straight victory of the summer over perennial power Arlington Heights.

Park Ridge is now in sole possession of the Ninth District's top spot with a 9-4 mark. Arlington, which would have only one defeat to mar its ledger if Park Ridge wasn't in the league, dropped into a tie with Logan Square for second place at 8-4.

Parker's blast came as he led off the eighth inning in Sunday's game at Recreation Park. Everyone, including Arlington right-fielder Mark Leonhard, knew the ball was really tagged as soon as Parker laid wood to it. Leonhard pivoted and sprinted away from the diamond with the crack of the bat, but he never had a chance. There are no fences or distance markers at Rec Park, but the consensus arrived at a figure of about 375 feet on the fly.

It had to be a heartbreaking loss for Arlington pitcher Jim Hopkins. During the regulation seven innings, Hopkins had allowed two unearned runs on just two hits and had walked only one batter. That's good enough to win 90 per cent of the games a man pitches.

Parker had not entered the game for his offensive abilities. He had come in with runners at first and second, one out, and two men in during the Arlington sixth.

Park Ridge starter Scott Jones had walked Jim Locascio and Leonhard to open the inning and had watched them move up a base each when catcher Mike McDonald threw away a pickoff attempt. Dave Zare then grounded back to Jones, who held the runners and pegged Zare out.

But then Jones saw his club's 2-0 lead dissolve with one swing of Dave Giles' bat as the beefy Arlington first baseman doubled to right, scoring Locascio and Leonhard and knotting the score at 2-2. Jones then gave up his third walk of the inning to Jim Prandini and with that Park Ridge coach Jerry Romes was out of the dugout to yank Jones.

That's when Parker entered the scene. He got the second out of the inning when Hopkins hit into a fielder's choice forcing Prandini at second and putting Giles on third. With Bob Harth at bat, Arlington coach Lloyd Meyer tried one of his favorite plays. He ordered Hopkins off first base, the idea being that Parker would see an easy chance to pick him off and meanwhile Giles would dash home before a play could be made.

But that never materialized. Hopkins was caught between first and second by heads-up shortstop Steve Sarcia and Giles was left stranded on third.

Arlington was not without other opportunities. Post 208 left runners on second and third in the first inning, had two on in the fifth when center fielder Mickey Drews made a diving catch for the third out, and nearly pulled the game out in the seventh when, with a man on second and two out, Locascio sent a sinking liner to left which almost dropped safely and would have scored the winning run. But Park Ridge left fielder Rick Lloyd came up with a fielding gem by sliding across the outfield grass to spear it and sent the game into extra innings.

Giles almost matched Parker's clout in the Arlington eighth. With two out in the bottom of the inning and Parker needing to retire only Giles to clinch the victory, Giles tore into one of the southpaw's offerings and sent a screaming drive down the leftfield line which fell just inside foul territory. But for a few feet the game would have been tied again.

Park Ridge had scored in the first inning when leadoff man Charlie Fahrner walked and took second on Russ Anderson's single. Anderson was the only player from either squad to collect two hits. Arlington and Park Ridge evenly divided six hits.

Then McDonald hit a grounder to Locascio at short, who tossed to second baseman Bert Newman for the first half of an attempted double play only to see Giles drop the throw at first. Fahrner tallied on the error.

Post 247 picked up its second unearned run in the fourth when McDonald was safe on a fielder's choice and then came all the way around when Newman committed two errors on the same play. Lloyd grounded to Newman for what might have been a double play, but Newman booted the ball and when he was slow in going after it, McDonald alertly headed for third. Newman hurried his throw and wound up flinging it past third and allowing McDonald to score.

Tempers flared on several occasions. In the first inning, Romes went jaw-to-jaw with an umpire. In the fifth, Arlington catcher Pat Broderick was thrown out of the game after he questioned the home plate umpire's call on a low strike. And Meyer was far from content over several calls at the plate.

Victorious coach Romes summed it up by saying, "There's nobody the kids and I would rather beat than Lloyd because he's got such a fiery team. It's good to beat one of the best around."

Lots Of Plans On Legion Scene

THERE ARE plenty of interesting things going on these days in American Legion Ninth District baseball besides what transpires on the playing fields. They include lots of plans for the second annual all-star game next Saturday, for the league tournament to pick a representative for the Cook County playoffs, and — last but not least — for the state tournament to be held at Arlington Heights' Recreation Park Aug. 10-13.

These are all readily discussed by the Ninth District's able, dedicated and very busy baseball chairman, Gene Sackett.

First, on the all-star game.

This local classic was kicked off in high successful fashion last year despite obvious problems which came up in staging it for the first time — like picking the most deserving boys possible despite the absence of statistics. (There are no official stats kept for the entire league. They are kept by each team and usually not released until after the season if at all).

Last year, though, there were surprisingly few complaints about selections made or not made. A little of this is to be expected with such a difficult job of choosing from so many fine players.

The game was a big success in 1971 with quite a large crowd turning out on a Sunday afternoon at St. Viator High School. Two of the reasons for this success were perfect weather and an exciting contest. (First-place Logan Square rallied for four runs in the eighth inning to trim the all-stars 6-4).

The weather and the excitement in the game are two factors Sackett cannot control, so we can only hope they turn out favorably again.

The game will be played at 4 p.m. Saturday, instead of Sunday, simply because this was the only time open for all teams. Three games are scheduled Sunday. "We would like to have gone Sunday again," Sackett admitted. "We're playing the game at 4:00 instead of 1:00 because a lot of the kids have to work."

One other note on the all-star contest. It will have the new added attraction this year of a base-running contest. Each team will enter one runner who will be timed all the way around the bases.

Suggestion: How about a home run-hitting contest for next year? These used to be held from time to time before major-league games but seem to have been disappearing in recent years.

A question which came up in my mind, as it has in others years, is: Why isn't the Maine South High School diamond home for the all-star game or finals of the league tournament? This is a beautiful field, always well maintained and kept up, with a permanent fence and all kinds of space for extra bleachers and/or standing spectators.

Sackett agrees that the field is excellent, but says its location prevents the Ninth District from holding its big events there. "Arlington Heights always draws better than anywhere else," he explains. "Maybe it's the tradition of having such fine teams for so many years and also the central location. We just want to do things where the people are. We're thinking of between 300 and 500 people to watch the all-star game."

One of the most widely-discussed topics in the league in recent years has been whether the regular-season champion should get a bye in the tournament and, if so, how long should their bye last?

All kinds of bye and tournament methods have been used in the past. Each had its merits but every year there were gripes from some team which didn't feel it got a fair shake.

This year the system will be very simple. There will be no bye because there are an even number of teams (six) in the tournament. There are seven teams in the league, but Arlington Heights is not required to compete in either the league or County playoffs. It is automatically seeded directly to the state tournament because of the "host post" rule.

Thus, if a team other than Arlington takes first place over the 18-game regular season, it will not receive a bye. But that does not mean such a team will not be rewarded. It will take on Schiller Park in the first round, a team which has yet to win or even come close to doing so.

A question about the tournament is bound to be: Why include all six teams instead of, say, the top four (less, of course, Arlington) to simplify things and include only teams which have merited a playoff chance? Even lowly Schiller Park will start off even with everyone else in the tourney.

In answer, Sackett says, "We want to keep the two new teams (Schiller and Norwood Park) with us, so we're giving them a shot. I am optimistic about having 12 teams next year. We've had three new city posts join this league in the past two years (last year's, Coral Sea, dropped out).

"If we can get enough more, we can have two separate divisions — one in the city and one out here. Then the division winners could play off. You can't tell me that area of Chicago can't come up with enough good players. Look at the teams Lane Tech and Taft High Schools have had."

The Schiller Park and Norwood Park area of Chicago is in the Legion's Ninth District, so if those teams are not included with ours in this area, they can't play in any league. (There is not much sense behind this because of travel requirements, but that's the way it is. How about changing boundaries, at least for baseball, Legion officials?)

Plans are proceeding smoothly for the state tourney in our backyard because of Sackett's ability to organize and get things done and because, as Gene readily praises, "I've got some real good people working on it for me (a committee of 12).

The visiting players will all lodge at the Arlington Heights Nike Site on Central Road courtesy of the U.S. Army. It is not certain yet where they will take meals, but this will likely be at one site also.

Sackett had nothing but kind words also for the Arlington Heights Park District — Director Tom Thornton and his board. "They have been most cooperative and helpful," he said.

There will be enough temporary bleachers moved in for about 1500 reserved seats and perhaps 2000 in all. These could accommodate some of the large crowds in the history of the Legion's state tourney.

An added attraction will be the appearance of Miss Pat Blanchfield, Ninth District Beauty Queen and first runner-up in the County. Pat recently graduated from Wheeling High School.

Another feature at the final session Sunday, Aug. 13 will be the performing of the excellent Color Guard from the 4th Marine Air Wing in Glenview.

Victory Gives Ridge Game Against 9th District Legion All-Star Team

"I think this representation shows how balanced our league is."

This comment from Logan Square American Legion baseball coach Larry Nomellini was unanimously agreed upon just after Ninth District coaches and a Herald representative selected the league's second annual all-star team in a special meeting Sunday night.

It has been frequently opined by many observers of the local legion baseball scene this summer that there is very little to choose among the top five teams. That was borne out by the representation. Arlington Heights and Logan Square — each a half-game out of first place at the time of the meeting — landed six players each. Palatine (one game behind) and Des Plaines (two games out) placed five apiece.

Which team is excluded among the "Big Five"? Why, none other than Park Ridge, which sneaked into first place for the first time Sunday afternoon with an extra-inning 3-2 victory over Arlington Heights. (Details are elsewhere in this section).

This earned Park Ridge the right to take on the all-stars since it was on top at 7 p.m. Sunday, the specified time.

To round out the 24-man squad, Norwood Park and Schiller Park each had two players chosen. Two were picked at each position except pitchers, of which there are nine. (There are eight outfielders, all lumped into one group rather than distinguished as left, right or center).

Each of the six coaches present (one was absent) had one vote, while four Herald writers who have regularly covered league games had one collective vote.

Since the all-stars have such a large squad, Park Ridge coach Jerry Romes will be permitted "free substitution," meaning he can re-enter a player into the lineup after he has been lifted.

The reason for the large pitching staff is that several of the hurlers probably will not be ready for extensive duty. This is because of a heavy league schedule at the end of this week, due in turn to make-up games of earlier rainouts.

At each other position, each all-star will probably play half of the game. Other than pitchers, the squad was purposefully made smaller than last year to permit all of the all-stars to play more.

The game will be played at 4 p.m. this

Logan Square Feasts Again; Sweeps Beloit

Don't be surprised if Beloit, one of the top legion teams in the state of Wisconsin (and Illinois for that matter), isn't too anxious to play Logan Square in years to come.

The Lions of head coach Larry Nomellini journeyed to Beloit July 9 and split a pair of contests, losing 11-3 before winning the nightcap in a 10-8 slugfest. It marked only the second Beloit setback in 16 outings.

On a home-away basis, Beloit waltzed right into the Lion den and rode the long bus trip back saddled with double 2-1 and 4-3 setbacks.

Beloit hadn't lost since the Lions left town and boasted a splendid 23-3 mark when it took the field for the opener. Nomellini tabbed Jim Miller, the 10-4 victor in Wisconsin for the starting assignment and all Miller did was twirl a four-hit masterpiece that featured just three walks against seven strikeouts.

His teammates backed his superb mound performance with an eight-hit barrage that netted single runs in the first and third. Ken Martin opened the bottom of the first with a double to left-center, pilfered third and tallied on Craig Zander's hard single.

The cushion increased to 2-0 after three as Joe Bombicino ripped a booming triple to right-center and crossed on Ed Collins' base hit.

Miller lost his shutout bid in the seventh as Beloit bunched a walk, double and the game's only error for a tally. Martin registered two hits in the opener and was also hit in the eye by his own batted ball, but returned to play the nightcap.

Craig Zander got the nod in the second game and after surviving a three-run Beloit third that included a double, run-scoring single and towering 380-foot homer, he blanked them the rest of the way.

Logan Square immediately went to work on its deficit and pushed all four of its markers home in the fourth. Steve Bobowski reached when the shortstop failed on a tough chance and was powered around on successive singles by Bombicino and Stan Bobowski.

Bob Foster was hit by a pitch to load the bases, but Collins hit into a force at the plate. Jim Bucaro followed with a grounder to third that was thrown away permitting two more Lions to parade home. Zander sent the eventual winner home with a single.

Despite walking five, including four in the second that only a doubleplay bailed him out of, Zander whiffed six. Stan Bobowski paced the winners with a pair of singles and sent Beloit limping home with a 2-5 mark. The Lions retired with an equally dazzling 32-9-1 record.

Park Ridge Stops Arlington

by TOM CARKEEK
Fred Parker — an unlikely hero. Unlikely because he hit a home run. He hasn't gotten a single all year. A hero because his home run broke a 2-2 tie in the first extra inning and presented the Park Ridge Legion baseball team with its third straight victory of the summer over perennial power Arlington Heights.

Park Ridge is now in sole possession of the Ninth District's top spot with a 9-4 mark. Arlington, which would have only one defeat to mar its ledger if Park Ridge wasn't in the league, dropped into a tie with Logan Square for second place at 8-4.

Parker's blast came as he led off the eighth inning in Sunday's game at Recreation Park. Everyone, including Arlington right-fielder Mark Leonhard, knew the ball was really tagged as soon as Parker laid wood to it. Leonhard pivoted and sprinted away from the diamond with the crack of the bat, but he never had a chance. There are no fences or distance markers at Rec Park, but the consensus arrived at a figure of about 375 feet on the fly.

It had to be a heartbreaking loss for Arlington pitcher Jim Hopkins. During the regulation seven innings, Hopkins had allowed two unearned runs on just two hits and had walked only one batter. That's good enough to win 90 per cent of the games a man pitches.

Parker had not entered the game for his offensive abilities. He had come in with runners at first and second, one out, and two men in during the Arlington sixth.

Park Ridge starter Scott Jones had walked Jim Locascio and Leonhard to open the inning and had watched them move up a base each when catcher Mike McDonald threw away a pickoff attempt. Dave Zare then grounded back to Jones, who held the runners and pegged Zare out.

But then Jones saw his club's 2-0 lead dissolve with one swing of Dave Giles' bat as the beefy Arlington first baseman doubled to right, scoring Locascio and Leonhard and knotting the score at 2-2. Jones then gave up his third walk of the inning to Jim Prandini and with that Park Ridge coach Jerry Romes was out of the dugout to yank Jones.

That's when Parker entered the scene. He got the second out of the inning when Hopkins hit into a fielder's choice forcing Prandini at second and putting Giles on third. With Bob Harth at bat, Arlington coach Lloyd Meyer tried one of his favorite plays. He ordered Hopkins off first base, the idea being that Parker would see an easy chance to pick him off and meanwhile Giles would dash home before a play could be made.

But that never materialized. Hopkins was caught between first and second by heads-up shortstop Steve Garcia and Giles was left stranded on third.

Arlington was not without other opportunities. Post 208 left runners on second and third in the first inning, had two on in the fifth when center fielder Mickey Drews made a diving catch for the third out, and nearly pulled the game out in the seventh when, with a man on second and two out, Locascio sent a sinking liner to left which almost dropped safely and would have scored the winning run. But Park Ridge left fielder Rick Lloyd came up with a fielding gem by sliding across the outfield grass to spear it and send the game into extra innings.

Giles almost matched Parker's clout in the Arlington eighth. With two out in the bottom of the inning and Parker needing to retire only Giles to clinch the victory, Giles tore into one of the southpaw's offerings and sent a screaming drive down the leftfield line which fell just inside foul territory. But for a few feet the game would have been tied again.

Park Ridge had scored in the first inning when leadoff man Charlie Fahrner walked and took second on Russ Anderson's single. Anderson was the only player from either squad to collect two hits. Arlington and Park Ridge evenly divided six hits.

Then McDonald hit a grounder to Locascio at short, who tossed to second baseman Bert Newman for the first half of an attempted double play only to see Giles drop the throw at first. Fahrner tallied on the error.

Post 247 picked up its second unearned run in the fourth when McDonald was safe on a fielder's choice and then came all the way around when Newman committed two errors on the same play. Lloyd grounded to Newman for what might have been a double play, but Newman booted the ball and when he was slow in going after it, McDonald alertly headed for third. Newman hurried his throw and wound up flinging it past third and allowing McDonald to score.

Tempers flared on several occasions. In the first inning, Romes went jaw-to-jaw with an umpire. In the fifth, Arlington catcher Pat Broderick was thrown out of the game after he questioned the home plate umpire's call on a low strike. And Meyer was far from content over several calls at the plate.

Victorious coach Romes summed it up by saying, "There's nobody the kids and I would rather beat than Lloyd because he's got such a fiery team. It's good to beat one of the best around."

Lots Of Plans On Legion Scene

THERE ARE plenty of interesting things going on these days in American Legion Ninth District baseball besides what transpires on the playing fields. They include lots of plans for the second annual all-star game next Saturday, for the league tournament to pick a representative for the Cook County playoffs, and — last but not least — for the state tournament to be held at Arlington Heights' Recreation Park Aug. 10-13.

These are all readily discussed by the Ninth District's able, dedicated and very busy baseball chairman, Gene Sackett.

First, on the all-star game.

This local classic was kicked off in high successful fashion last year despite obvious problems which came up in staging it for the first time — like picking the most deserving boys possible despite the absence of statistics. (There are no official stats kept for the entire league. They are kept by each team and usually not released until after the season if at all).

Last year, though, there were surprisingly few complaints about selections made or not made. A little of this is to be expected with such a difficult job of choosing from so many fine players.

The game was a big success in 1971 with quite a large crowd turning out on a Sunday afternoon at St. Viator High School. Two of the reasons for this success were perfect weather and an exciting contest. (First-place Logan Square rallied for four runs in the eighth inning to trim the all-stars 6-4).

The weather and the excitement in the game are two factors Sackett cannot control, so we can only hope they turn out favorably again.

The game will be played at 4 p.m. Saturday, instead of Sunday, simply because this was the only time open for all teams. Three games are scheduled Sunday. "We would like to have gone Sunday again," Sackett admitted. "We're playing the game at 4:00 instead of 1:00 because a lot of the kids have to work."

One other note on the all-star contest. It will have the new added attraction this year of a base-running contest. Each team will enter one runner who will be timed all the way around the bases.

Suggestion: How about a home run-hitting contest for next year? These used to be held from time to time before major-league games but seem to have been disappearing in recent years.

A question which came up in my mind, as it has in other years, is: Why isn't the Maine South High School diamond, home for the all-star game or finals of the league tournament? This is a beautiful field, always well manicured and kept up, with a permanent fence and all kinds of space for extra bleachers and/or standing spectators.

Sackett agrees that the field is excellent, but says its location prevents the Ninth District from holding its big events there. "Arlington Heights always draws better than anywhere else," he explains. "Maybe it's the tradition of having such fine teams for so many years and also the central location. We just want to do things where the people are. We're thinking of between 300 and 500 people to watch the all-star game."

One of the most widely-discussed topics in the league in recent years has been whether the regular-season champion should get a bye in the tournament and, if so, how long should their bye last?

All kinds of bye and tournament methods have been used in the past. Each had its merits but every year there were gripes from some team which didn't feel it got a fair shake.

This year the system will be very simple. There will be no bye because there are an even number of teams (six) in the tournament. There are seven teams in the league, but Arlington Heights is not required to compete in either the league or County playoffs. It is automatically seeded directly to the state tourney because of the "host post" rule.

Thus, if a team other than Arlington takes first place over the 18-game regular season, it will not receive a bye. But that does not mean such a team will not be rewarded. It will take on Schiller Park in the first round, a team which

A question about the tournament is bound to be: Why include all six teams instead of, say, the top four (less, of course, Arlington) to simplify things and include only teams which have merited a playoff chance? Even lowly Schiller Park will start off even with everyone else in the tourney.

In answer, Sackett says, "We want to keep the two new teams (Schiller and Norwood Park) with us, so we're giving them a shot. I am optimistic about having 12 teams next year. We've had three new city posts join this league in the past two years (last year's, Coral Sea, dropped out).

"If we can get enough more, we can have two separate divisions — one in the city and one out here. Then the division winners could play off. You can't tell me that area of Chicago can't come up with enough good players. Look at the teams Lane Tech and Taft High Schools have had."

The Schiller Park and Norwood Park area of Chicago is in the Legion's Ninth District, so if those teams are not included with ours in this area, they can't play in any league. (There is not much sense behind this because of travel requirements, but that's the way it is. How about changing boundaries, at least for baseball, Legion officials?)

Plans are proceeding smoothly for the state tourney in our backyard because of Sackett's ability to organize and get things done and because, as Gene readily praises, "I've got some real good people working on it for me (a committee of 12).

The visiting players will all lodge at the Arlington Heights Nike Site on Central Road, courtesy of the U.S. Army. It is not certain yet where they will take meals, but this will likely be at one site also.

Sackett had nothing but kind words also for the Arlington Heights Park District — Director Tom Thornton and his board. "They have been most cooperative and helpful," he said.

There will be enough temporary bleachers moved in for about 1500 reserved seats and perhaps 2000 in all. These could accommodate some of the large crowds in the history of the Legion's state tourney.

An added attraction will be the appearance of Miss Pat Blanchfield, Ninth District Beauty Queen and first runnerup in the County. Pat recently graduated from Wheeling High School.

Another feature at the final session Sunday, Aug. 13 will be the performing of the excellent Color Guard from the 4th Marine Air Wing in Glenview.

Victory Gives Ridge Game Against 9th District Legion All-Star Team

"I think this representation shows how balanced our league is."

This comment from Logan Square American Legion baseball coach Larry Nomellini was unanimously agreed upon just after Ninth District coaches and a Herald representative selected the league's second annual all-star team in a special meeting Sunday night.

It has been frequently opined by many observers of the local legion baseball scene this summer that there is very little to choose among the top five teams. That was borne out by the representation. Arlington Heights and Logan Square — each a half-game out of first place at the time of the meeting — landed six players each. Palatine (one game behind) and Des Plaines (two games out) placed five apiece.

Which team is excluded among the "Big Five"? Why, none other than Park Ridge, which sneaked into first place for the first time Sunday afternoon with an extra-inning 3-2 victory over Arlington Heights. (Details are elsewhere in this section).

This earned Park Ridge the right to take on the all-stars since it was on top at 7 p.m. Sunday, the specified time.

To round out the 24-man squad, Norwood Park and Schiller Park each had two players chosen. Two were picked at each position except pitchers, of which there are nine. (There are eight outfielders, all lumped into one group rather than distinguished as left, right or center).

Each of the six coaches present (one was absent) had one vote, while four Herald writers who have regularly covered league games had one collective vote.

Since the all-stars have such a large squad, Park Ridge coach Jerry Romes will be permitted "free substitution," meaning he can re-enter a player into the lineup after he has been lifted.

The reason for the large pitching staff is that several of the hurlers probably will not be ready for extensive duty. This is because of a heavy league schedule at the end of this week, due in turn to make-up games of earlier rainouts.

At each other position, each all-star will probably play half of the game. Other than pitchers, the squad was purposefully made smaller than last year to permit all of the all-stars to play more.

The game will be played at 4 p.m. this

Logan Square Feasts Again; Sweeps Beloit

Don't be surprised if Beloit, one of the top legion teams in the state of Wisconsin (and Illinois for that matter), isn't too anxious to play Logan Square in years to come.

The Lions of head coach Larry Nomellini journeyed to Beloit July 9 and split a pair of contests, losing 11-3 before winning the nightcap in a 10-8 slugfest. It marked only the second Beloit setback in 16 outings.

On a home-away basis, Beloit waltzed right into the Lion den and rode the long bus trip back saddled with double 2-1 and 4-3 setbacks.

Beloit hadn't lost since the Lions left town and boasted a splendid 23-3 mark when it took the field for the opener. Nomellini tabbed Jim Miller, the 10-8 victor in Wisconsin for the starting assignment and all Miller did was twirl a four-hit masterpiece that featured just three walks against seven strikeouts.

His teammates backed his superb mound performance with an eight-hit barrage that netted single runs in the first and third. Ken Martin opened the bottom of the first with a double to left-center, pilfered third and tallied on Craig Zander's hard single.

The cushion increased to 2-0 after three as Joe Bombicino ripped a booming triple to right-center and crossed on Ed Collins' base hit.

Miller lost his shutout bid in the seventh as Beloit bunched a walk, double and the game's only error for a tally. Martin registered two hits in the opener and was also hit in the eye by his own batted ball, but returned to play the nightcap.

Craig Zander got the nod in the second game and after surviving a three-run Beloit third that included a double, run-scoring single and towering 380-foot homer, he blanked them the rest of the way.

Logan Square immediately went to work on its deficit and pushed all four of its markers home in the fourth. Steve Bobowski reached when the shortstop failed on a tough chance and was powered around on successive singles by Bombicino and Stan Bobowski.

Bob Foster was hit by a pitch to load the bases, but Collins hit into a force at the plate. Jim Bucaro followed with a grounder to third that was thrown away permitting two more Lions to parade home. Zander sent the eventual winner home with a single.

Despite walking five, including four in the second that only a doubleplay bailed him out of, Zander whiffed six. Stan Bobowski paced the winners with a pair of singles and sent Beloit limping home with a 2-3 mark. The Lions retired with an equally dazzling 32-9-1 record.

The 'Curse' Of The Chicago White Sox

by IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

CHICAGO — True White Sox fans are often described in Homeric terms as "the long-suffering White Sox fans."

So it came as no surprise that when their team, now in second place in the American League West, returned to Chicago to start a recent home stand against the league-leading Oakland A's, the day would be dark with drizzle and a star player, Bill Melton, would be freshly injured.

Such things are not coincidental, Sox fans will tell you; they are historical. They actually think their team is cursed.

Whammies are integral to baseball: you risk spoiling a no-hitter if you mention it; never cross bats; don't change your underwear (if you wear any) during a hot streak. Often these are, however, considered mere superstitions (accompanied by nervous laughter). But the White Sox curse is discussed with a cold, unblinking horror.

It is the only team to have two players, Moose Solters and Jackie Hayes, eventually go blind from on-the-field accidents.

A star pitcher, Monte Stratton, shot himself in the leg during a winter hunting trip.

Carlos May shot off part of a thumb on Marine duty.

Just this spring, a young hard-thrower named Bart Johnson quit pitching to become an outfielder because, he mysteriously said, he is afraid of hitting a batter.

And everyone feared for Smead Jolley's life. Jolley was a Sox outfielder in the early '30s. He denied the charge that fly balls used to hit him on the head. "Never," he boasted. "They hit me on the shoulders."

Lending credence to the curse theory was the 40 consecutive years in which the Sox went pennantless, from 1919 to 1959. And the 16 straight second-division finishes in the '30s and '40s.

The alleged curse that devastated the White Sox very nearly dragged all of baseball down, too. The eight players on the 1919 pennant winners who took bribes to throw the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds jeopardized national confidence in the game. Author Nelson Algren, a boy then, wrote what it did to White Sox fans in particular, especially those like Algren who lived on the North Side. "Cub country."

"(On) a single sunless morning of early Indian summer all of my own gods proved me false," wrote Algren in "Chicago: City on the Make." Mine was the guilt of association.

Another Chicago writer and White Sox fan, James T. Farrell, described in "My Baseball Diary" the peculiar agony for him.

On the day the scandal broke in the newspapers, Sept. 23, 1920, 11-year-old Jimmy Farrell was under the Comiskey Park stands after the game. A crowd of fans greeted Joe Jackson and Happy Felsch, two of the suspected players, as they emerged from the clubhouse.

"The crowd followed them in a slow disorderly manner," wrote Farrell. "A fan called out, 'It ain't true, Joe.' The two players did not turn back. 'It ain't true, Joe.' This call followed them as they walked all the way under the stands to the 35th Street side of the ball park and out to the parking lot," where they drove "sportive roadsters" through a double file of silent fans.

No one knows why the White Sox were chosen for this terrible destiny. But White Sox fans never felt they were getting the best out of life, anyway.

The South Side, where the ball park is situated, is the back-of-the-yards district. Once it was the worst slum in Chicago. The stench of slaughtered animals from the stockyards pervaded the area. Men worked in steel mills. All this contrasted to the Cubs and "beautiful Wrigley Field on the north side, where, White Sox fans thought, "the sun always seemed to shine."

Until Bill Veeck bought the White Sox in 1959, the park, which is now the oldest in baseball, was left dirty and moldy. At times it seemed a smelly, musty haunted cavern.

And odd things happened even in 1959 when the White Sox won their first pennant since the scandal.

"We won 35 of our games by one run, and it seemed as if we won most of them

Dick Donovan

Gus Zernial

Bart Johnson

in the ninth inning or extra innings," said Bill Veeck. "At the end of the season I offered my services to the Heart Fund. Having brought them so much unsolicited business, I felt as if I owed them a year."

On the night that pennant was won,

Chicago's fire commissioner authorized the sounding of the air raid sirens to commemorate the glorious feat. He did not tell the citizenry. The wail brought panic in the streets.

"If you were a White Sox fan," said Veeck, "you had to figure that it was just your luck for The Bomb to be dropped right after the White Sox won the pennant. What else could follow 1919?"

This: Before the opening game of the 1959 Series the Sox would lose to the Dodgers, Nat (King) Cole forgot the words to the "Star Spangled Banner" while the American flag was getting stuck halfway up the flag pole. So the game was played with the Stars and Stripes, symbolically, flying at half mast.

Palatine Splits With St. Charles

Coach Bob Grybasz's boys tried Sunday to even up their showing outside the Ninth District, but were left with a 4-6 non-league mark. They are 8-5 in the league, including three forfeit wins.

Keith Steelman continued to be the big story in latest action. Steelman (who has an athletic last name and talent to match) has been wielding a smoldering-hot bat and with a three-for-seven performance in Sunday's twin bill (three for four in the first game), Steelman now is 25 for 58 in all games. That's a soaring average of .431.

Other hot Palatine hitters and their averages through the weekend included Dave Hauswirth with 36 for 94 (.382), Bill Arkins with 31 for 81 (.381), Gary Pemberton with 31 for 84 (.329) and John Gimmier with 15 for 55 (.272).

In the pitching department, George Pattee has a fancy 1.71 earned-run average for 49 innings pitched with 40 strikeouts and 13 walks. You'd never know it by his record, which is 3-4 after some tough losses.

All of the above except late-comer Gimmier were deservedly named to the Ninth District all-star squad Sunday night.

In Sunday's first game, Ken Roggenbuck hurled a six-hitter to lead Palatine to a 5-1 triumph. Steelman had three hits and Jene Bell and Pemberton two apiece.

Palatine started the scoring in the third inning on a fielder's choice and stolen base by Hauswirth and single by Pemberton.

St. Charles matched that with its only tally and it remained 1-1 until the sixth when a three-run burst put it away for Palatine. A double by John Slack highlighted the rally.

Stelman clouted a home run in the seventh for a little icing on the cake.

SCORE BY INNINGS
Palatine 001 003 1-5-9-3
St. Charles 001 000 0-1-6-1

Palatine took a tough 3-2 loss in the second game after St. Charles pushed across the winning run in the sixth on two hit batsmen and a single. Randy Jones went all the way for Palatine, pitching a six-hitter as Roggenbuck had done.

Hauswirth held the hot hand in this contest with three for four while steady Pemberton collected two more hits for a four-for-eight showing on the day.

The late-inning 2-2 tie was forged after a two-run Palatine third during which Hauswirth blasted a solo homer, Pemberton belted a triple and scored on Bruce Eberle's single.

Pemberton later doubled but Palatine managed only two more hits and no more runs in the last four innings.

Chemplex Golfers Play Amid Rain

Heavy showers failed to keep the Chemplex Twilight Golf League from completing its ninth round at the Golden Acres Country Club in Schaumburg. Playing almost half of the match in the rain, Team No. 1 — Jack Jacobs, Milk Kostner, Sven Solvik, and George Laybourne — took six points to maintain its slim one-point lead over Team No. 6 — Ray Cameron, Hank Gudrian and Bill Abbey.

soggy course to his liking as he captured low gross with a 41, the fifth time this season Cameron has earned this honor. Low net at 36 was shared by three golfers — Ray Cameron, Larry Kaufman and Hank Gudrian.

Prellberg Wins In Nationals

Mike Prellberg, 14 years old and formerly of this area, took first place in his division in the National AAU United States Judo Federation national tournament at the Chicago Circle campus of the University of Illinois last week.

Some 750 boys competed in different age groups from nine to 16 years.

Prellberg, now of Highland Park, won eight matches on his way to the victory, for which he earned a trophy. He was the only one of four Chicago-area boys to win a title.

The 'Curse' Of The Chicago White Sox

by IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

CHICAGO — True White Sox fans are often described in Homeric terms as "the long-suffering White Sox fans."

So it came as no surprise that when their team, now in second place in the American League West, returned to Chicago to start a recent home stand against the league-leading Oakland A's, the day would be dark with drizzle and a star player, Bill Melton, would be freshly injured.

Such things are not coincidental, Sox fans will tell you; they are historical. They actually think their team is cursed.

Whammies are integral to baseball: you risk spoiling a no-hitter if you mention it; never cross bats; don't change your underwear (if you wear any) during a hot streak. Often these are, however, considered mere superstitions (accompanied by nervous laughter). But the White Sox curse is discussed with a cold, unblinking horror.

It is the only team to have two players, Moose Solters and Jackie Hayes, eventually go blind from on-the-field accidents.

A star pitcher, Monte Stratton, shot himself in the leg during a winter hunting trip.

Carlos May shot off part of a thumb on Marine duty.

Just this spring, a young hard-thrower named Bart Johnson quit pitching to become an outfielder because, he mysteriously said, he is afraid of hitting a batter.

And everyone feared for Smead Jolley's life. Jolley was a Sox outfielder in the early '30s. He denied the charge that fly balls would to hit him on the head. "Never," he boasted. "They hit me on the shoulders."

Lending credence to the curse theory was the 40 consecutive years in which the Sox went pennantless, from 1919 to 1959. And the 16 straight second-division finishes in the '30s and '40s.

The alleged curse that devastated the White Sox very nearly dragged all of baseball down, too. The eight players on the 1919 pennant winners who took bribes to throw the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds jeopardized national confidence in the game. Author Nelson Algren, a boy then, wrote what it did to White Sox fans in particular, especially those like Algren who lived on the North Side. "Cub country."

"(On) a single sunless morning of early Indian summer all of my own gods proved me false," wrote Algren in "Chicago: City on the Make." Mine was the guilt of association.

Another Chicago writer and White Sox fan, James T. Farrell, described in "My Baseball Diary" the peculiar agony for him.

On the day the scandal broke in the newspapers, Sept. 23, 1920, 11-year-old Jimmy Farrell was under the Comiskey Park stands after the game. A crowd of fans greeted Joe Jackson and Happy Felsch, two of the suspected players, as they emerged from the clubhouse.

"The crowd followed them in a slow disorderly manner," wrote Farrell. "A fan called out, 'It ain't true, Joe.' The two players did not turn back. 'It ain't true, Joe.' This call followed them as they walked all the way under the stands to the 35th Street side of the ball park and out to the parking lot," where they drove "sportive roadsters" through a double file of silent fans.

No one knows why the White Sox were chosen for this terrible destiny. But White Sox fans never felt they were getting the best out of life, anyway.

The South Side, where the ball park is situated, is the back-of-the-yards district. Once it was the worst slum in Chicago. The stench of slaughtered animals from the stockyards pervaded the area. Men worked in steel mills. All this contrasted to the Cubs and "beautiful Wrigley Field on the north side, where, White Sox fans thought, 'the sun always seemed to shine.'"

Until Bill Veeck bought the White Sox in 1959, the park, which is now the oldest in baseball, was left dirty and moldy. At times it seemed a smelly, musty haunted cavern.

And odd things happened even in 1959 when the White Sox won their first pennant since the scandal.

"We won 35 of our games by one run, and it seemed as if we won most of them in the ninth inning or extra innings," said Bill Veeck. "At the end of the season I offered my services to the Heart Fund. Having brought them so much unsolicited business, I felt as if I owed them a year."

Dick Donovan

On the night that pennant was won,

Gus Zernial

Chicago's fire commissioner authorized the sounding of the air raid sirens to commemorate the glorious feat. He did not tell the citizenry. The wail brought panic in the streets.

"If you were a White Sox fan," said Veeck, "you had to figure that it was just your luck for The Bomb to be dropped right after the White Sox won the pennant. What else could follow 1919?"

This: Before the opening game of the 1959 Series the Sox would lose to the Dodgers, Nat (King) Cole forgot the words to

Carlos May

the "Star Spangled Banner" while the American flag was getting stuck halfway up the flag pole. So the game was played with the Stars and Stripes, symbolically, flying at half mast.

Coach Bob Grybush's boys tried Sunday to even up their showing outside the Ninth District, but were left with a 4-6 non-league mark. They are 8-5 in the league, including three forfeit wins.

Keith Steelman continued to be the big story in latest action. Steelman (who has an athletic last name and talent to match) has been wielding a smoldering-hot bat and with a three-for-seven performance in Sunday's twin bill (three for four in the first game), Steelman now is 25 for 58 in all games. That's a soaring average of .431.

Other hot Palatine hitters and their averages through the weekend included Dave Hauswirth with 36 for 94 (.382), Bill Arkus with 31 for 81 (.381), Gary Pemberton with 31 for 94 (.329) and John Gimmier with 15 for 55 (.272).

In the pitching department, George Pattee has a fancy 1.71 earned-run average for 49 innings pitched with 40 strikeouts and 13 walks. You'd never know it by his record, which is 3-4 after some tough losses.

All of the above except late-comer Gimmier were deservedly named to the Ninth District all-star squad Sunday night.

In Sunday's first game, Ken Roggenbuck hurled a six-hitter to lead Palatine to a 5-1 triumph. Steelman had three hits and Jene Bell and Pemberton two apiece.

Palatine started the scoring in the third inning on a fielder's choice and stolen base by Hauswirth and single by Pemberton.

St. Charles matched that with its only tally and it remained 1-1 until the sixth when a three-run burst put it away for Palatine. A double by John Slack highlighted the rally.

Steelman clouted a home run in the seventh for a little icing on the cake.

SCORE BY INNINGS

Palatine	001	003	1	5-9-3
St. Charles	001	000	0	1-6-1

Palatine took a tough 3-2 loss in the second game after St. Charles pushed across the winning run in the sixth on two hit batsmen and a single. Randy Jones went all the way for Palatine, pitching a six-hitter as Roggenbuck had done.

Hauswirth held the hot hand in this contest with three for four while steady Pemberton collected two more hits for a four-for-eight showing on the day.

The late-inning 2-2 tie was forged after a two-run Palatine third during which Hauswirth blasted a solo homer, Pemberton belted a triple and scored on Bruce Eberle's single.

Pemberton later doubled but Palatine managed only two more hits and no more runs in the last four innings.

Chemplex Golfers Play Amid Rain

Heavy showers failed to keep the Chemplex Twilight Golf League from completing its ninth round at the Golden Acres Country Club in Schaumburg. Playing almost half of the match in the rain, Team No. 1 — Jack Jacobs, Milt Kostner, Sven Solvik, and George Laybourne — took six points to maintain its slim one-point lead over Team No. 6 — Ray Cameron, Hank Gudrian and Bill Abbey.

soggy course to his liking as he captured low gross with a 41, the fifth time this season Cameron has earned this honor. Low net at 36 was shared by three golfers — Ray Cameron, Larry Kaufman and Hank Gudrian.

Flight leaders for the second half of the season are: Flight A — Ray Cameron and Walt Ramsey (tie); Flight B — Mike Melchior; Flight C — Tom Burke; and Flight D — Bill Abbey and Bill Wu (tie).

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — About a year ago, my husband and I saw a TV special concerning cholesterol and triglycerides and the effect they have on people's hearts. They showed a chart classifying possible heart attack victims and my husband was in the high-risk group because of a strong family history of heart disease and personality factors. He bottles up his problems and has already had two-thirds of his stomach removed because of ulcers. He had a blood test done and his cholesterol was normal but the triglycerides were too high. The doctor prescribed Atromid S (clofibrate). He has been taking it a year without any apparent difficulty.

We have read your comments about some medicines and we would like to know if this medicine can cause him any harm. Since dieting alone kept his cholesterol level down, does he really need it?

Dear Reader — One way to find out if a person can tolerate a medicine is to give it. Your husband has tolerated his medicine for a year without difficulty.

It is difficult to know for certain what you mean by normal cholesterol, since normal means different things to different physicians. Risk factors can never be applied directly to the individual, since some people can have high blood cholesterol levels and live for years without any significant difficulty. The cholesterol measurement is an index of the amount of fat particles in the blood stream. The fatty particle is a combination of cholesterol, the triglyceride fat and a blood protein.

Many people can significantly lower their blood-fat levels (both the cholesterol and triglycerides measurement) by proper dietary control. This means limiting calories sufficiently to eliminate or prevent even minimal amounts of obesity. Dietary failure often is the result of failure to carry it to its conclusion. If a person needs to lose 50 pounds, losing five won't help a great deal.

Clofibrate has been around for several years now and many authorities think it is quite good. It should certainly be tried in individuals whose blood-fat levels cannot be controlled by a good diet and exercise program. There have been some recent enthusiastic reports about this medicine. In the main, they claim that individuals taking this medicine are less likely to have heart attacks than individuals who do not, even if it doesn't lower the cholesterol level. Since these have been relatively selected populations that have been studied, perhaps a longer and more definitive study will be needed before these enthusiastic claims can be generally accepted.

MY ADVICE to you would be that if your husband still has any evidence of obesity at all, he should take measures to eliminate it. Also, if he is smoking he should stop. This is also true because of his ulcer problem.

For someone with the temperament you describe he has, who's already lost two-thirds of his stomach, I would certainly feel that all coffee and other beverages that include caffeine should be discontinued. If he just loves the taste of coffee, he can use a product that is relatively free of caffeine. And unless he develops some evidence of intolerance to his medicine, he should continue taking it.

AEC Accused Of Hiding Lake Radiation Danger

Abe Eiserman, trustee of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) has accused the Atomic Energy Commission of keeping secret from the public the radiation dangers to Lake Michigan from nuclear power plants on hits shores.

Eiserman, chairman of the Industrial Waste & Water Pollution Committee at the MSD told a group of concerned citizens, at a recent meeting in his district office to file petitions with the Atomic Energy Commission Safety & Licensing Board to fight the issuance of a license to operate nuclear power plants. He asked the group to act immediately because less than 30 days remain in which to file the petition.

Attending the meeting were David D. Comey, environmental research director for Chicago's Businessmen for the Public Interest; Myron Cherry, an attorney; Mrs. Lee Botts, executive secretary of the Lake Michigan Federation; Catherine Quigg of the Pollution Priority Committee; and Mrs. Samuel Rome, chairman, National Program of Environmental Quality, Illinois League of Women Voters.

"THE ATOMIC Energy Commission has kept hidden from the public the fact that toxic chemicals, such as chromium and phosphates go into Lake Michigan as a result of the process of eliminating the organisms that grow in the cooling tubes," Eiserman told the group. "I am concerned about all this radioactive waste material going into Lake Michigan. The standards set by the Atomic Energy Commission governing radioactive waste does not protect the environment."

Today's hand was played almost 40 years ago at New York's Cavendish Club by a new member named Helen White.

Helen won the spade lead in her own hand and after some thought played her ace of clubs. West's singleton queen dropped and from then on it was an easy matter for Helen to collect a second club trick and win the rubber.

West was one of the Cavendish experts of the day and was rather unhappy about losing the rubber so he proceeded to explain carefully that her play of the club ace had worked but it was still a frightful play and if she wanted to be a good bridge player she should learn how to play card combinations.

Helen thanked him, but didn't bother to explain that her play of the club ace had insured her two club tricks against any and all card combinations. Just look it over carefully.

She was sure of two club tricks against any 3-2 break. How about 5-0? Clench. Suppose 4-1 with both honors in either hand. A second club lead toward dummy would show the situation.

For the record, young Helen married tournament director Al Sobel shortly thereafter and as Helen Sobel is remembered as the greatest woman bridge player of all time.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — About a year ago, my husband and I saw a TV special concerning cholesterol and triglycerides and the effect they have on people's hearts. They showed a chart classifying possible heart attack victims and my husband was in the high-risk group because of a strong family history of heart disease and personality factors. He bottles up his problems and has already had two-thirds of his stomach removed because of ulcers. He had a blood test done and his cholesterol was normal but the triglycerides were too high. The doctor prescribed Atromid S (clofibrate). He has been taking it a year without any apparent difficulty.

We have read your comments about some medicines and we would like to know if this medicine can cause him any harm. Since dieting alone kept his cholesterol level down, does he really need it?

Dear Reader — One way to find out if a person can tolerate a medicine is to give it. Your husband has tolerated his medicine for a year without difficulty.

It is difficult to know for certain what you mean by normal cholesterol, since normal means different things to different physicians. Risk factors can never be applied directly to the individual, since some people can have high blood cholesterol levels and live for years without any significant difficulty. The cholesterol measurement is an index of the amount of fat particles in the blood stream. The fatty particle is a combination of cholesterol, the triglyceride fat and a blood protein.

Many people can significantly lower their blood-fat levels (both the cholesterol and triglycerides measurement) by proper dietary control. This means limiting calories sufficiently to eliminate or prevent even minimal amounts of obesity. Dietary failure often is the result of failure to carry it to its conclusion. If a person needs to lose 50 pounds, losing five won't help a great deal.

Clofibrate has been around for several years now and many authorities think it is quite good. It should certainly be tried in individuals whose blood-fat levels cannot be controlled by a good diet and exercise program. There have been some recent enthusiastic reports about this medicine. In the main, they claim that individuals taking this medicine are less likely to have heart attacks than individuals who do not, even if it doesn't lower the cholesterol level. Since these have been relatively selected populations that have been studied, perhaps a longer and more definitive study will be needed before these enthusiastic claims can be generally accepted.

MY ADVICE to you would be that if your husband still has any evidence of obesity at all, he should take measures to eliminate it. Also, if he is smoking he should stop. This is also true because of his ulcer problem.

For someone with the temperament you describe he has, who's already lost two-thirds of his stomach, I would certainly feel that all coffee and other beverages that include caffeine should be discontinued. If he just loves the taste of coffee, he can use a product that is relatively free of caffeine. And unless he develops some evidence of intolerance to his medicine, he should continue taking it.

AEC Accused Of Hiding Lake Radiation Danger

Abe Eiserman, trustee of the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) has accused the Atomic Energy Commission of keeping secret from the public the radiation dangers to Lake Michigan from nuclear power plants on its shores.

Eiserman, chairman of the Industrial Waste & Water Pollution Committee at the MSD told a group of concerned citizens, at a recent meeting in his district office to file petitions with the Atomic Energy Commission Safety & Licensing Board to fight the issuance of a license to operate nuclear power plants. He asked the group to act immediately because less than 30 days remain in which to file the petition.

Attending the meeting were David D. Comey, environmental research director for Chicago's Businessmen for the Public Interest; Myron Cherry, an attorney; Mrs. Lee Botts, executive secretary of the Lake Michigan Federation; Catherine Quigg of the Pollution Priority Committee; and Mrs. Samuel Rome, chairman, National Program of Environmental Quality, Illinois League of Women Voters.

"THE ATOMIC Energy Commission has kept hidden from the public the fact that toxic chemicals, such as chromium and phosphates go into Lake Michigan as a result of the process of eliminating the organisms that grow in the cooling tubes," Eiserman told the group. "I am concerned about all this radioactive waste material going into Lake Michigan. The standards set by the Atomic Energy Commission governing radioactive waste does not protect the environment."

$1.3 Million Storm Damage Most Ever Here

Damage to Elk Grove Village businesses and homes totaled nearly $1.3 million last weekend in one of the worst storms ever to hit the village, Village Mgr. Charles Willis said Monday.

"In the dollar amount of damage, last Friday night's storm was undoubtedly the worst in the history of the village," Willis said. He added that it will take a week or two before all the debris, mainly from the wind damage, could be removed.

Rain and high winds from the storm damaged 47 buildings in the industrial park blew off roofs and knocked down walls. Especially hard hit was the business district north of Rte. 72 and east of Arlington Heights Road.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett, Fire Capt. John Mergens and Building Comr. Tom Reitenbacher surveyed the damage building by building early Saturday morning and estimated the loss to buildings and equipment at $1,293,950.

Members of the fire, police, streets and water departments worked through the weekend assisting property owners and helping to clean up debris from damaged buildings and to clear downed trees from the streets.

HULETT SAID his men were busy Friday night making sure no one was caught in buildings and securing gas and electric lines. He said Saturday the men spent most of the day covering windows, walls and roofs with a heavy plastic covering.

"The heavy plastic sheets saved thousands of dollars in possible damage from rains that came late Saturday," Hulett said.

Willis said there was little damage to residential property, but that trees and limbs were downed in many parts of the village. He said more than 40 trees on public property were uprooted and broken off.

"There is nothing like a crisis situation in the village; now it's mainly a big cleanup effort," Willis said.

Tom Ryan, manager of Atlas Chain Co., 135 Kelly Blvd., said business was as usual Monday with everyone working around the wreckage of a wall and a roof that collapsed during the storm. He said he was planning to move to a temporary plant in the village until the damage could be repaired.

Paulux Tool and Mold Co., 935 Lee St., was closed Monday and power was off as cleanup began to uncover equipment buried under a wall and half the building's roof.

SEVEN EMPLOYEES WERE working in the rear of the Paulux plant Friday when they heard what they called "a big explosion" as the wall collapsed. None of the seven were hurt. A company official last weekend estimated damage to equipment at $25,000 and said the company may be closed down a month.

A third of the roof at National Heat and Power Co., Inc., 170 Lively Blvd., was ripped off, but the plant was in partial operation Monday. One employee said the roof would be patched temporarily with tar until more permanent roofing could be added.

Also looking for temporary quarters Monday was Telecontrols Inc., 95 Randall Blvd. A company official said the building housing some $40,000 worth of equipment, was almost a total loss. He said the roof was blown away and two side walls were down. A third wall was unstable and will have to be demolished, and only the front wall was in good condition, he said.

NEARLY $1.3 MILLION in property damage was sustained by Elk Grove Village businesses and homes Friday in the worst storm in the village's history. Businesses north of Rte. 72 and east of Arlington Heights Road were especially hard hit. Here firemen use heavy plastic sheeting to patch holes in one damaged roof.

Consider Utility Company Property

Parks Seek To Link Bike Trails

Park district representatives from eight Northwest suburban communities huddled Thursday to coordinate bike trails in the area. Most trail plans are still on the drawing boards in Palatine, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Buffalo Grove, Des Plaines and Salt Creek Rural park districts.

Rights-of-way belonging to Commonwealth Edison and Northern Illinois Gas Co. may be the answer to land acquisition for trails where existing streets aren't desirable for bike routes.

Some areas, such as Des Plaines, rely almost entirely on little-travelled streets for designated bike trails. Others, such as Palatine, may lease rights-of-way from utility companies and build bike trails away from auto traffic.

"Our ultimate hopes here are that our individual local plans will relate area- and region-wide," Roger Bjorvik said. Bjorvik, who organized the trail coordination, is chairman of regional planning and recreation for the Council of Governments, a group of approximately 100 government bodies in Cook County.

IN TWO WEEKS, the Palatine Park District will sign a lease for a two-mile-long right of way with Commonwealth Edison, which may be used as a model for other park districts in the area, Bjorvik said.

Since an initial meeting in June, park district representatives in the eight communities have plotted their individual current bike trail plans. Rough comparisons of routes were made at Thursday's meeting, as members attempted to fit pieces of their area-wide jigsaw puzzle together. Representatives at the meeting hoped to include Rolling Meadows and Schaumburg districts in the plans.

"I think we're each aware of what our neighbors are doing now," Bjorvik said. By the next meeting, one map with all the planned bike trails drawn in will be inspected.

Until now, area bicyclists have had to rough it, according to two authorities, Willard and Phyllis Harmon, 356 Robert Ave., Wheeling. The Harmons are officers of the League of American Wheelmen, a national bicyclist group.

"WE'VE HAD TO learn to be devious to get through these different areas (around the Northwest suburbs)," Mrs. Harmon told the group. Some routes include weaving across parking lots to get to through-routes, and railroad tracks are particularly imposing barriers to the bicyclist, Harmon said.

Coordinating bike trails isn't being limited to the eight suburbs. Bjorvik is meeting with other regional planning organization members in an attempt to get $30,000 from the Dept. of Conservation for a detailed analysis of a possible northeastern Illinois trail plan. Eventually, bicycle trails throughout Illinois may link up into a continuous route.

The group's next meeting is set for Aug. 24 at 1:30 p.m. in the Arlington Heights Park District administration building, 660 N. Ridge Ave.

Over objections from the plaintiffs, Associate Circuit Court Judge Anthony J. Scottillo Friday upheld the defense attorney's motion to continue the trial of John D. Fender to Aug. 25.

Fender has been charged with battery by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Calvert of Arlington Heights on behalf of their daughter, Linda. A language arts teacher at Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights, Fender allegedly struck Linda Calvert several times across the face.

Mrs. Calvert told Judge Scottillo she thought a month was sufficient time for Fender's attorneys to prepare the case.

The Calverts, however, have no intention of dropping the case under any circumstance, Mrs. Calvert said.

On Aug. 25, the case will be heard at 9 a.m. in the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Road.

Express Lanes Eliminated

Tollway Traffic Jams Get Worse

Commuters yesterday experienced the worst traffic jams on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways since construction began there in May because of elimination of all express lanes.

An Illinois Tollway Authority official said the express lanes were barricaded Sunday morning after a series of serious auto accidents within the last week on the route which had been designated for speedier traffic.

"We had three or four serious accidents on the express lanes last week," the official said, adding, "We closed them because people were driving too fast for conditions."

A Chicago man was killed in a crash on the Northwest Tollway Saturday afternoon when his car crossed the center line and collided with a vehicle in the express lane. The decision to eliminate the express lanes was made Saturday night.

Commuters who ventured onto the eastbound Northwest Tollway yesterday found bumper to bumper traffic which choked Chicago-bound drivers to a standstill. Drivers reported at least an hour back-up on the single eastbound lane yesterday.

The southbound Tri-State Tollway, also funneled to a single lane, had lengthy traffic tie-ups.

DRIVERS CAN expect no relief on the Northwest Tollway until construction is completed Aug. 1, while the Tri-State work may be finished next Tuesday, according to highway officials.

Because of the tangle of traffic, tollway engineers blockaded entrances to the Northwest Tollway at Arlington Heights Road and Elmhurst Road. They now are considering blocking the Touhy Avenue entrance onto the Tri-State to stop drivers from entering there.

Dozens of cars have stalled on the tollway due to the stop-and-go conditions, and the fleet of emergency tollway repair vehicles has been increased.

Tollway officials suggest that drivers take alternate routes to prevent further traffic problems.

The resurfacing projects extend for 11 miles on both toll roads and are being completed at an estimated cost of more than $5.5 million. Both tollways were built in 1958, and this is the first major resurfacing work, consisting of adding layers of blacktop to the existing pavement.

Also included in the event will be a bake sale.

Wheeling Location Chosen

Library District Move Welcomed

A plan to move the North Suburban Library District to Dundee Road east of the Wheeling post office received a welcome from the Wheeling Plan Commission last week.

The commission waived the preliminary plat for the project because it involves only a two-lot subdivision and requires no engineering. The library district's proposed building would occupy the west 175 feet of street front on 7.8 acres owned by Chrysler Realty Corp. of Detroit.

In 1970, the land was rezoned for a Chrysler automobile dealership. The plan was later abandoned, and the property put up for sale. Plans for the remaining property are indefinite.

The North Suburban Library District is a service organization for 31 libraries in the northern Chicago suburbs — one of 17 such organizations in the state. The proposed 10,000-15,000 square foot building would be the home office for the district, housing a library reference center and the inter-library loan system in the area.

"WHEELING MARKS the approximate center of this north suburban district," said Robert R. McClarren, systems director for the district. "It seemed appropriate to move to Wheeling from our Morton Grove location, which we now lease."

The library district chose the Dundee Road property because it is in the center of town. "One of the criteria for the selection of this property was its visibility," McClarren said. He explained people often come from out of town to visit the library district.

"And because of its nighttime use by board members, there was a concern about being in an isolated area," he added.

McClarren estimated that the center would have 10 to 12 visitors a day in addition to the district's eight employees. The only other traffic would be generated by a fleet of three small vans and two station wagons that transport books in the inter-library loan operation.

Because the district is a governmental body operated with state funds, the operation is tax exempt. In spite of its tax exempt status, the members of the commission expressed enthusiasm for the plan.

"I like the idea of being in here with something that wouldn't generate a lot of traffic," commission member Wilfred Sommer said. "It sounds good to me."

Commission member Raymond Waymel added, "Anything would be a welcome addition to gas stations, restaurants and parking."

Because the library is anxious to move as quickly as possible, representatives have scheduled presentation of the final plat at the next plan commission meeting.

IN OTHER ACTION, the commission approved plans for a new 32,000-square-foot Sears catalog surplus store next to the Dunhurst Shopping Center. The new store would be southwest of the National Food Store with an entrance to the store parking lot from Jenkins Court as well as Dundee Road.

Commission members expressed concern that the entrance from Jenkins Court would bring truck traffic into that residential area. Plans for the store were sent on to the village board with a recommendation that if traffic problems should develop on Jenkins Court, a weight limit should be posted on the road.

The commission also approved the final plat for the first addition to Sandpebble Walk condominiums, noting there were still a few minor corrections and additions that needed to be made.

Most speakers would be disappointed if they put their audience to sleep during a talk. But Justine Tarpy is not disappointed when her audience goes to sleep. In fact, she is pleased when they do.

The children come to the story hour in their pajamas, carrying their favorite cuddly bedtime toy.

Books and stories are specially selected to appeal to the 4 and 5-year-olds who attend the reading hour.

Bedtime story hour is a new idea for the summer at the Elk Grove Public Library. The reading hour is held at 7:30 p.m. every Tuesday evening until Aug. 15 at the library, 101 Kennedy Blvd.

Howard Alton New President Of Mt. Prospect State Bank

Howard W. Alton, 66, of Barrington, has been elected president and chairman of the board of the Mount Prospect State Bank.

Alton replaces William J. Busse, 57, who died earlier this month of leukemia. Busse, a member of one of the founding families of Mount Prospect, had been with the bank 33 years.

Involved in planning the bank's expansion, Alton became senior vice president and vice chairman of the board earlier this year. He first joined the bank as a director in 1957 while serving as president and chairman of the board at Columbian Lithographing Co. of Chicago. Alton became vice president of marketing of the bank in 1965 and during this period to the present, the bank jumped in assets from $33,950,251 to $99,938,378.

"It has been the policy of the bank under Mr. Busse's leadership to pursue opportunities for continued improvement of bank services and facilities," Alton said. "Studies in this direction are continuing to move along in good fashion."

Alton and his wife, Martha, have two sons, Louis and Jeffrey. His son Howard Jr. is currently vice president of marketing at the bank.

Mount Prospect Seeks Housing For Elderly

Mount Prospect, working with the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA) will apply for federal funds to build low-income housing for the elderly here.

The Mount Prospect Village Board is expected to pass a resolution today that will authorize the CCHA to ask the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for a preliminary loan and program reservation.

A recommendation for the board to approve the resolution came at last week's public health and safety committee meeting. Mayor Robert Teichert and the four trustees at the meeting all indicated support for the project.

Victor Walchirk, a CCHA representative at the meeting estimated it would take 2½ years to complete the project after the application was filed. Actual construction time for the project would be 15-16 months.

AN INITIAL STEP is for HUD to review the request and then make a program reservation with a specific number of units set aside for Mount Prospect. This takes a minimum of 90 days.

Walchirk his group would ask for $50,000 for survey and planning of a 250-unit building.

"I think there's enough to go into HUD with an application. I don't think there would be any real difficulty in supporting a structure of 100 to 125 units in the community," Walchirk said.

He explained they would request twice as many units as they feel are needed because HUD has a tendency to cut requests in half. When Trustee Daniel J. Ahern asked him what would happen if all 250 were granted, Walchirk said, "It's never happened." He then suggested they could tell HUD the first estimate had been overly optimistic.

AHERN, HOWEVER, said he felt they could fill even 250 units. But Walchirk said the 124 units would create no threat of vacancies, would have construction feasibility and would be acceptable to the community. Over 200 units would mean a 17 or 18-story building, he said, whereas the 125 units could be put in a 10-story building.

Walchirk said he could see no problem with convincing "HUD the community can fill them all by itself." He was referring to a recently completed survey in which senior citizen respondents were in favor by a 4-1 margin for low-income housing. Some 629 replied favorable.

"We will need at least an acre and a half of land, maybe two," Walchirk said. He added the highest cost they have paid for land is $2,000 per living unit. An appraisal would be made before an offer to the owner, and possible condemnation could follow. The land cannot be previously zoned to permit such a project, he said.

It is still possible for the village to set up priorities for filling the units, Walchirk said. The usual order is residents, parents of residents and then township residents. In Skokie, he said, the building was filled just by village residents.

THE UPPER INCOME limits for tenants are $4,500 for a single person and $5,000 for a couple. They cannot have assets of over $15,000.

The village board also will authorize a cooperative agreement with the CCHA. One provision is that in lieu of real estate taxes, 10 per cent of the rents paid, less utilities is paid to the county. The village then receives its regular percentage of county tax money.

The only cost to the village for the proposed building would be for police and fire protection, Walchirk said.

Hearing Continued On Forgery Charges

A hearing for Douglas Yedla, 21, of 3037 Southport Ave., Chicago, on forgery charges was continued Wednesday to Sept. 13 in the Elk Grove Village branch of Cook County circuit court.

Elk Grove Village Police arrested Yedla June 15 after he attempted to open a checking account at the Bank of Elk Grove, on Higgins Road, using allegedly stolen credit cards.

He was charged with forgery, possession of stolen credit cards and identification, and possession of marijuana which police said they found with him.

He has been released on $3,500 bond.

During Storms, Know What CD Warning Sirens Mean

One of the first lines of warning in the event of crippling storms like last Friday's is the Civil Defense siren alert network.

Most towns in this area are served by CD siren systems that are activated to warn residents when a tornado has been sighted in the area.

"The sirens will not blast during a tornado watch," explained John Fascia, CD coordinator for Region 2-A.

A tornado watch is in effect when "weather conditions are such that a tornado could occur," he said.

A tornado warning, on the other hand, means that a funnel cloud has been sighted in the area and people should take shelter.

The sirens, Fascia said, will blow a "three to five-minute steady monotone blast" during a tornado warning.

He said when people hear this signal they should take cover in the nearest, safe location.

Fascia said the tornado warning was blown Friday for the first time since last summer.

Korean Girl Adjusting Well

Jennifer Finds Her New Home

by MARY HUTCHINGS

A 17-month-old Korean girl has a new home in Hoffman Estates.

Jennifer Ann made the 24-hour flight here more than a week ago to meet her new parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bakos, 204 W. Concord Ln.

The first child to be adopted by the Bakoses, her parents say she is making an "unbelievably good" adjustment to her new situation. In Seoul, she lived in a foster home after being abandoned by her real mother.

The Bakoses worked through the International Social Service of America, New York, and it took two years to bring their girl here. They first saw her picture a year ago.

SHE'S AS PRETTY AS can be now as she toddles about her new home, babbling in Korean and using the few English words she knows — Mama, bye-bye and Hi. Though she was named "Hi" in Korea, her new parents thought it would be difficult for her to live here with that name. They chose Jennifer for Bakos' sister.

"Abandonment is the ultimate rejection," Peter Bakos said. "We fell in love with her."

The Bakoses plan to have two children of their own, and then adopt again, probably another Korean. "The Koreans seem to be in the most need," Mrs. Bakos said.

Though they had hoped to adopt an American Indian child, they found the Indians "very race conscious. They don't want their children adopted," Bakos said.

Jennifer Ann's first day here might have been a little traumatic for her, with both the shock of separation and the cultural differences she faced immediately.

WITH SPECIAL attention to her diet, her new mother made a rice dinner for her with beef chunks. She picked out the beef and ate only the rice, but now she likes meat, although citrus fruits and orange juice are still "icky."

"She's going to be a great connoisseur of food," her father says.

Family and neighbors, the couple said, were enthusiastic about Jennifer's arrival, and with the stream of company to their home, she is gradually getting used to people and to the fact that she is with the Bakoses for good — the visitors haven't come to take her away again.

Mrs. Bakos will get her registered nurses degree in August and hopes to work part-time. Now her husband works the evening shift at Aerosol Research so that he can be home with Jennifer during the day. A neighbor, Mrs. Vee Yackey, babysits for Jennifer during the one-hour gap in her parents' schedules.

THE CATHOLIC charities refused to help the Bakoses adopt a foreign child because of Mrs. Bakos' plans to work. The next time they adopt, the couple plans to use the Holt Agency, Seattle, because they said it is supposed to be faster.

Though Mrs. Bakos was apprehensive when she took Jennifer out for the first time, she found that Jennifer was the center of attraction at the doctor's office and in shopping centers.

The Bakoses hope to teach Jennifer something of her culture as she grows up, and expect that by "showing enough love and affection in the early stages," she will have few problems as she adapts and grows in her new society.

JENNIFER ANN, WHO came to the United States from Seoul, Korea, enjoys playing with her father, Peter, in her new Hoffman Estates home. The 17-month-old adopted daughter of the Bakoses is making a remarkably fast adjustment to her new culture and life here, her parents report.

Howie-In-Hills Hearing Turns Into An Auction

Looking more like an old-fashioned auction than a federal court hearing, the Howie-in-the-Hills subdivision in Hoffman Estates was sold for $5.3 million to a New York-based housing corporation yesterday.

The spirited bidding for the 500-acre parcel of land adjacent to the Winston Knolls subdivision in the northwest corner of the village took place before Senior Federal District Court Judge William J. Campbell. He acted as auctioneer by encouraging competing developers several times to raise their offers.

Campbell's efforts worked to some success as the bids for the land jumped to more than $400,000 in a matter of minutes. Meridian Investment and Development Corp., outbid Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. for the land. Kaufman and Broad is the developer of Barrington Square in Hoffman Estates.

The sale of the property was conditioned on clear title being obtained and rezoning satisfactory to all parties involved.

Both conditions could represent major hurdles for the confirmation of the sale of the property, which represents a major portion of the assets of the now defunct City Savings and Loan Association. The financial institution went bankrupt in 1964 after its president, C. Oran Mensik, allegedly bilked it of more than $28 million.

THE PROPERTY presently has more than $2 million in lawsuits filed against it. The biggest suit, now pending in the Cook County Circuit Court, has been filed by the Central States Pension Fund of the Teamsters Union. Judge Campbell has scheduled a closed conference for the pension funds representative and others in an effort to iron out the difficulties. Confirmation of the sale has been set for July 31.

Meridian and Kaufman and Broad emerged as the major bidder on the property when a bid from Miller Builders of Skokie was withdrawn and a $4.75 million from 3-H Builders was dropped because of the extensive conditions placed on the bid.

The initial K & B bid offered two prices, $1,075,000 with no rezoning considerations, or $5.26 million with rezoning adequate for six units-per-acre development.

The offer was countered almost immediately by Meridian attorney Gerald Gittles with a $5.3 million bid. Then attorneys for Kaufman and Broad requested permission to contact other officials about an increased bid.

Judge Campbell, who had publicly stated that he hoped to get at least $5.75 million for the land, encouraged the conference.

A few minutes later Kaufman and Broad offered $5.325 million.

Gittles, telling Judge Campbell that he did not even need to record the other offer, jumped Meridian's bid to $5.5 million.

KAUFMAN AND BROAD asked and got another closed door conference and emerged to offer $5.5 million asking the only condition on the bid be a clear title.

Meridian then ended the bidding with a final offer of $5.6 million. Kaufman and Broad representatives declined to remain in the bidding after the offer.

Gittles described the Howie-in-the-Hills purchase as the first Illinois venture for the firm.

He would not say what the firm planned to do with the land or how high the bidding might have continued if Kaufman and Broad had not dropped out.

Officials of Hoffman Estates could not be reached for comment on the sale or what their plans might be for a request on rezoning of the property from Meridian.

It is anticipated that any developer would ask the property be rezoned to accommodate some form of multiple-family housing. The land presently is zoned for single-family residences.

Board Called 'Uncooperative' By Commission

by LYNN ASINOF

Even if the Wheeling public relations commission is cut from nine members to five, commission members say they will still not get much done because there is little cooperation from village officials.

At a special meeting of the public relations commission Friday night, members roundly criticized the village board for not supporting projects sponsored by the commission. The meeting was called to discuss the proposed cut in the membership of several village commissions to a maximum of five.

Trustee Albert Lang introduced the membership cut two weeks ago in order to make the commissions more workable.

COMMISSION MEMBER Mrs. Sheila Schultz said reducing the number of persons serving on commissions would not make the commissions more workable. "I think that when you look at the whole picture and see people coming and going, you have to ask why," she said. "And I don't think this is being done."

Lang told the members that several commissions have been unable to operate because they lacked quorums. "In some cases we're having trouble getting people, and we're having trouble with people resigning," he said. "It just seemed like we were spinning our wheels."

Mrs. Schultz pointed out that the village board had not been checking with the commissions before making appointments. "The problem is that when you appoint people who haven't been showing up or don't wish to serve, you don't check with us," she said.

Other members of the commission said they felt the commission's present activities are not what they had expected when they joined the commission. "The commission is far more than what this commission is doing or is being allowed to do," said James Des Biens, a commission member.

Presently the commission's only function is putting out a quarterly newsletter to keep residents informed of village business and functions. "We've even had trouble getting information for the newsletter," commission member Mrs. Ida O'Reilly said.

MEMBERS SAID their recent effort to maintain a beautification program in the village was thwarted by local officials. Mrs. Schultz said the commission could not get paper for mailings, that the village office staff would not run off their information, and that they could not get the mailings sent first class.

"These are the things that are driving people away from the commissions," she said.

According to Mrs. Lillian Stiller, the commission is supposed to put out brochures about the village. "The last one we did was 1966," she said. "We can't get funds. We have the layout ready and everything."

"With all this influx of population and development, I think it's time," she added. "I can't even tell you where half of the streets in Wheeling are anymore."

The members of the commission noted that Buffalo Grove has recently put out a two-color brochure on their village. "Now that couldn't be that expensive," Mrs. Stiller said.

Mrs. Schultz pointed out that the public relations commission has a hard time even getting the money that is in their budget. "On the things that we have a budget for, we are going around begging services from other people in the village," she said.

The members also criticized the village officials for failing to provide them with copy for a special mailing to attract residents to the last town meeting. "We never got the copy," Mrs. Schultz said. "Maybe we should have come and asked for it. But when you ask and you ask and you ask... I'm just saying that the village board does not look on this commission as a useful arm of the village board."

TRUSTEE LANG said he had not been aware of the problems of the public relations commission. "Possibly we're lax on this, possibly the commissions are to blame," he said. "The blame probably falls on both sides."

Mrs. Schultz told Lang that the commission probably has better members now than in the past. "But we're going to lose them," she warned. "No one is going to come month after month and not get anything accomplished."

"We sit here constantly with egg on our face," Mrs. Schultz said. "You just get tired of banging your head against a wall."

She said she felt the public relations commission should serve as a liaison between commissions, with the newspaper, and should be used for communication in controversial matters.

"WHEN SOMETHING controversial comes up in the village, like the tree thing, I think it is our job to forestall it," she said. She said the commission often has to go outside of the village offices — to the local newspaper — for information on village happenings.

Lang said the newspaper could also be blamed for "poor cooperation" in publicizing local events like the Wheeling flag contest. He said the Herald should be more conscientious because it is the only paper in town.

"I don't think we can blame the paper," Mrs. Schultz said. "We've had nothing but cooperation from Paddock."

Des Biens said the commission was having trouble promoting Wheeling because the village does not have its own distinctive identity. "The problem is, what do we promote? Wheeling has no personality," he said.

"You've got to develop a theme," he said. "Call it the dandelion capital or the beer drinking capital. Call it anything, but you've got to have a theme."

Des Biens also said that at the last meeting Lang attended he felt Lang was serving as a member of the commission rather than as a liaison between the commission and the board. "I felt you were doing more than sitting on the commission," he said. "I felt you were dictating to the commission rather than letting the commission run its business."

HITTING AND CATCHING the ball take a back seat to fun for the members of the women's softball league. Three teams from Wheeling are competing this summer with teams from Rolling Meadows, Prospect Heights and River Trails. Games in Wheeling are at 7 p.m. Wednesdays at the Wheeling High School diamond.

Board Passes Nine Tax Resolutions

Dist 21 school board members were passing resolutions as though it was a New Year's celebration last Thursday night.

The board passed resolutions in nine areas for tax levies, three for related areas, and one giving the board the right to borrow money from the working cash fund.

The nine resolutions for the tax levies were on funds totaling nearly $5 million. The largest funds were education, $3,600,000, Building, $700,000, transportation, $200,000.

The three "Related Area" resolutions give the president or board secretary permission to issue tax anticipation warrants in these three funds if they feel it necessary.

The board also resolved to continue membership in the I.A.S.B. (Illinois Association of School Boards) at an increased rate of $370. That will raise the price of the dues for the 1972-73 school year to $1,100 for membership in the organization.

It was also resolved to keep the book rental fee in the district the same as the past school year. The prices are $5 for kindergarten students and $8 for all other students in the district.

Board member Ronald Cole was appointed representative to the North Subdivision Board of the I.A.S.B. by a unanimous decision of the board. Board Pres. Lillian Stiller volunteered to be the alternate delegate to that board.

The final resolution of the night came in the acceptance of the donation of the 17th school site, near the Lamplighter Apartments at Wolf and Willow Roads. The $225,000 plot of land was donated to the district at no cost.

In other matters the board directed Asst. Supt. John Barger to write the Buffalo Grove Park district giving permission to tie into a transformer at Joyce Kilmer School. The tie-in will allow the park districts to light the proposed tennis courts at that site.

The board also heard reports from Barger on the 16th and 17th school sites.

Parchment Book Sale Funds To Medi-Check

Parchment books of American historical documents will be on sale in the Wheeling business district Friday as part of the Phillip Carpenter Amvets Auxiliary Post 66 drive to provide free medical tags for children.

The books will sell for $1, and the money collected will go to the Medi-Check Foundation, Inc. The tags provided by Medi-Check are designed to protect children who have defects or allergies from improper medical treatment in case of an accident.

More than 10,000 of the Liberty Collection books were donated by Folk Bros. for the drive. The Buffalo Grove Amvets Auxiliary Post 255 is also helping with the drive by selling books at the Buffalo Grove Mall.

Wisconsin Outing Set For Thursday

Complete with sack lunches, bathing suits and towels, children from the Wheeling Park District will be heading to Wisconsin Thursday for a day of fun on the farm.

Buses will leave Heritage Park at 9 a.m. for Green Meadow Farm in Watertown, Wis., and will return at 6 p.m. The trip will cost $2.50, and children should bring pocket money for drinks.

2 Charged On Robbery Count

A Wheeling station attendant and another youth are being held on theft charges in connection with a robbery report at a Clark Service Station last week.

Wheeling police have charged Michael Johnson and James Gilliam, both of Wheeling, with theft of more than $130 from the station last week. Johnson is also being charged with disorderly conduct for allegedly giving police false information in relation to the theft.

Police said Johnson was the attendant at the station the night they were called to respond to an armed robbery.

According to police, Johnson told them a male youth came into the station near closing time last Wednesday and demanded money.

Johnson reportedly said the youth held what felt like a gun to his back.

Johnson also told police that while the robbery was in progress someone pulled into the station for gas and the alleged robber handled the business transaction.

How much should you tip the cabbie for a 120-mile trip?

Perhaps a better question is where to find a cab service in Schaumburg Township that will take you there. One such company is Schaumburg Village Cab, Inc., the first local taxi service in the area.

Its manager is unique, for Mickey Mandel heads "a man's business."

When she started the taxi service from her home 2½ years ago, her husband Jerry was still in the insurance business. His company didn't believe she actually ran the cab operation.

That's not a woman's business," her husband was told.

THOUGH THE COUPLE and their three sons are "in it together" now, Mrs. Mandel has guided the company's growth from a single car to a fleet of six, with two more to be added this winter.

A woman who "adores being a mother" and "hates being a housekeeper," Mrs. Mandel dispatches taxis from her home radio unit and drives the rush hour 6-9 a.m. and 3-6 p.m. shifts.

She prefers to employ college-age men. In the relatively short time she has had found there are certain problems in being the woman invader on traditionally male soil.

Some garage owners won't even talk to me," she said. And that gets her women's lib up.

ONCE A NOVICE about cars, Mrs. Mandel says she now knows everything, from what kind of repair is needed to how serious and how expensive it should be.

"I try to be feminine, but I can't ask for any favors because I'm a woman," she said. "I want to be respected as a coworker. I was the original cab driver, and I'm not asking anyone to do anything I haven't done myself."

"I enjoy being a woman but I feel when a woman does equal work she should get equal respect and equal pay — in that respect I'm militantly women's lib," she added.

Driving a cab at night can be very difficult, the cabbie relates. "It can be frightening, too," she says, remembering that occasionally drunks call the taxis for rides home after late nights at the bar.

WHEN THE COMPANY started, the first three weeks brought in five calls each; after a month it had soared to 25. Now the cab company services a 100-square-mile area with several hundred calls a week. Business is particularly heavy during the Monday morning rush to O'Hare airport.

Each of the six cars averages 5,000 miles a month.

Before moving to Schaumburg eight years ago, Mrs. Mandel was a drama teacher in Chicago. On the organization circuit, she presented a monologue and comedy act after studying at Goodman Theater.

The decision to run a cab company curtailed most of her community activities, including her work with the Hoffman Estates Guild Players. She was the first president of Jane Addams Junior High PTA, and was a candidate for the Dist. 54 School Board.

SPARE-TIME IS SAVED for the family, and her sons Mark, 14; Glenn, 11, and Scott, 8, keep her busy attending little league games and swim meets.

Jerry managed a little league team and is active in Boy Scouts.

The drivers are almost like sons to her as she finds herself providing free counseling as well as cookies-and-cupcakes sustenance for the troops. Often the drivers are guests at the Mandel's new summer home at Lake Koshkonong, Wisconsin, where the boys enjoy skiing and boating.

SHE SAYS SHE DIDN'T realize at the time the business would grow to be such an "all-consuming thing" but her family comes first. "As children get older, they need you even closer to them," she said.

"No matter how big the business gets, the boys would never be sacrificed to it. They have to come first. After all, we did this for them."

The boys are involved in all decisions relating to the taxi business. "We couldn't run the business without them," the proud mother said.

Sometimes the business is an inconvenience, but Mrs. Mandel has also found times when the service her company provides is absolutely essential. From emergency calls to driving wives in frantic, fruitless searches for their husbands, she is often more than a cabbie, but a friend and shoulder to cry on as well.

As an extra service, the only locally-owned cab company in Schaumburg accepts checks from area residents.

Kids Plan Hobo Hike To Woods

A rag-tag bunch of kids will leave Heritage Park Wednesday for a hobo hike to Potawatomi Woods for an old-fashioned picnic.

The hikers will leave for the two-mile hike at 9 a.m. Races, scavenger hunts and singalongs will highlight the day, and prizes will be given for the best costumes.

Although the Wheeling Park District will supply cold drinks, marchers should bring their own sack lunches.

Tollway Traffic Jams Get Worse; One Killed

Commuters yesterday experienced the worst traffic jams on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways since construction began there in May because of elimination of all express lanes.

An Illinois Tollway Authority official said the express lanes were barricaded Sunday morning after a series of serious auto accidents within the last week on the route which had been designated for speeder traffic.

"We had three or four serious accidents on the express lanes last week," the official said, adding, "We closed them because people were driving too fast for conditions."

A Chicago man was killed in a crash on the Northwest Tollway Saturday afternoon when his car crossed the center line and collided with a vehicle in the express lane. The decision to eliminate the express lanes was made Saturday night.

Commuters who ventured onto the eastbound Northwest Tollway yesterday found bumper to bumper traffic which choked Chicago-bound drivers to a standstill. Drivers reported at least an hour back-up on the single eastbound lane yesterday.

The southbound Tri-State Tollway, also funneled to a single lane, had lengthy traffic tie-ups.

DRIVERS CAN expect no relief on the Northwest Tollway until construction is completed Aug. 1, while the Tri-State work may be finished next Tuesday, according to highway officials.

Because of the tangle of traffic, tollway engineers blockaded entrances to the Northwest Tollway at Arlington Heights Road and Elmhurst Road. They now are considering blocking the Touhy Avenue entrance onto the Tri-State to stop drivers from entering there.

Dozens of cars have stalled on the tollway due to the stop-and-go conditions, and the fleet of emergency tollway repair vehicles has been increased.

Tollway officials suggest that drivers take alternate routes to prevent further traffic problems.

The resurfacing projects extend for 11 miles on both toll roads and are being completed at an estimated cost of more than $5.5 million. Both tollways were built in 1958, and this is the first major resurfacing work, consisting of adding layers of blacktop to the existing pavement.

$1.3 Million Storm Loss In Elk Grove

Damage to Elk Grove Village businesses and homes totaled nearly $1.3 million last weekend in one of the worst storms ever to hit the village, Village Mgr. Charles Willis said Monday.

"In the dollar amount of damage, last Friday night's storm was undoubtedly the worst in the history of the village," Willis said. He added that it will take a week or two before all the debris, mainly from the wind damage, could be removed.

Rain and high winds from the storm-damaged 47 buildings in the industrial park blew off roofs and knocked down walls. Especially hard hit was the business district north of Rte. 72 and east of Arlington Heights Road.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett, Fire Capt. John Mergens and Building Comm. Tom Rettenbacher surveyed the damage by building early Saturday morning and estimated the loss to buildings and equipment at $1,293,950.

Members of the fire, police, streets and water departments worked through the weekend assisting property owners and helping to clean up debris from damaged buildings and to clear downed trees from the streets.

HULETT SAID his men were busy Friday night making sure no one was caught in buildings and securing gas and electric lines. He said Saturday the men spent most of the day covering windows, walls and roofs with a heavy plastic covering.

"The heavy plastic sheets saved thousands of dollars in possible damage from rains that came late Saturday," Hulett said.

Willis said there was little damage to residential property, but that trees and limbs were downed in many parts of the village. He said more than 40 trees on public property were uprooted and broken off.

"There is nothing like a crisis situation in the village; now it's mainly a big cleanup effort," Willis said.

Tom Ryan, manager of Atlas Chain Co., 135 Kelly Blvd., said business was as usual Monday with everyone working around the wreckage of a wall and a roof that collapsed during the storm. He said he was planning to move to a temporary plant in the village until the damage could be repaired.

Paulex Tool and Mold Co., 935 Lee St., was closed Monday and power was off as cleanup began to uncover equipment buried under a wall and half the building's roof.

SEVEN EMPLOYEES WERE working in the rear of the Paulex plant Friday when they heard what they called "a big explosion" as the wall collapsed. None of the seven were hurt. A company official last weekend estimated damage to equipment at $25,000 and said the company may be closed down a month.

A third of the roof at National Heat and Power Co. Inc., 170 Lively Blvd., was ripped off, but the plant was in partial operation Monday. One employee said the roof would be patched temporarily with tar until more permanent roofing could be added.

Also looking for temporary quarters Monday was Telecontrols Inc., 95 Randall Blvd. A company official said the building housing some $40,000 worth of equipment, was almost a total loss. He said the roof was blown away and two side walls were down. A third wall was unstable and will have to be demolished, and only the front wall was in good condition, he said.

How To Find Nursing Home

Looking for a nursing home, but you aren't sure how to select a good one? Aside from living quarters, food and activities, another factor to consider is handling of drugs and medication.

G. Arthur Applequist, assistant administrator at Addolorata Villa in Wheeling, has suggested some things to look for when choosing a good nursing home:

—Residents in a home for the aged should not be permitted to have drugs or medication in their possession without specific orders by their personal physicians.

—There should be no shortages of drug dosages.

—Any medications administered to patients should be ordered and administered on the written request of the patient's doctor.

—An individual record card should be kept on file at the home.

—A pharmacist should check the residents' medications weekly, deleting discontinued or outdated medications, and disposing of them.

—Medications should be stored in a locked compartment in a well-lighted place. Narcotics, tranquilizers, barbiturates and control drugs should be locked up safely.

—A supervising nurse should be responsible for the handling and administration of all medications. She should keep the keys to the compartment, and make sure the keys are passed on to the nurse who relieves her.

During Storms, Know What CD Warning Sirens Mean

One of the first lines of warning in the event of crippling storms like last Friday's is the Civil Defense siren alert network.

Most towns in this area are served by CD siren systems that are activated to warn residents when a tornado has been sighted in the area.

"The sirens will not blast during a tornado watch," explained John Fascia, CD coordinator for Region 2-A.

A tornado watch is in effect when "weather conditions are such that a tornado could occur," he said.

A tornado warning, on the other hand, means that a funnel cloud has been sighted in the area and people should take shelter.

The sirens, Fascia said, will blow a "three to five-minute steady monotone blast" during a tornado warning.

He said when people hear this signal they should take cover in the nearest, safe location.

Fascia said the tornado warning was blown Friday for the first time since last summer.

Howie-In-Hills Hearing Turns Into An Auction

Looking more like an old-fashioned auction than a federal court hearing, the Howie-in-the-Hills subdivision in Hoffman Estates was sold for $5.6 million to a New York-based housing corporation yesterday.

The spirited bidding for the 500-acre parcel of land adjacent to the Winston Knolls subdivision in the northwest corner of the village took place before Senior Federal District Court Judge William J. Campbell. He acted as auctioneer by encouraging competing developers several times to raise their offers.

Campbell's efforts worked to some success as the bids for the land jumped to more than $400,000 in a matter of minutes. Meridian Investment and Development Corp. outbid Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. for the land. Kaufman and Broad is the developer of Barrington Square in Hoffman Estates.

The sale of the property was conditioned on clear title being obtained and rezoning satisfactory to all parties involved.

Both conditions could represent major hurdles for the consummation of the sale of the property, which represents a major portion of the assets of the now defunct City Savings and Loan Association. The financial institution went bankrupt in 1964 after its president C. Oran Mensik, allegedly bilked it of more than $28 million.

THE PROPERTY presently has more than $2 million in lawsuits filed against it. The biggest suit, now pending in the Cook County Circuit Court, has been filed by the Central States Pension Fund of the Teamsters Union. Judge Campbell has scheduled a closed conference for the pension funds representative and others in an effort to iron out the difficulties. Confirmation of the sale has been set for July 31.

Meridian and Kaufman and Broad emerged as the major bidder on the property when a bid from Miller Builders of Skokie was withdrawn and a $4.75 million from J-H Builders was dropped because of the extensive conditions placed on the bid.

The initial K & B bid offered two prices, $4,075,000 with no rezoning considerations, or $5.26 million with rezoning adequate for six units-per-acre development.

The offer was countered almost immediately by Meridian attorney Gerald Gittles with a $5.3 million bid. Then attorneys for Kaufman and Broad requested permission to contact other officials about an increased bid.

Judge Campbell, who had publicly stated that he hoped to get at least $5.75 million for the land, encouraged the conference.

A few minutes later Kaufman and Broad offered $5.325 million. Gittles, telling Judge Campbell that he did not even need to record the other offer, jumped Meridian's bid to $5.5 million.

KAUFMAN AND BROAD asked and got another closed door conference and emerged to offer $5.5 million asking the only condition on the bid be a clear title.

Meridian then ended the bidding with a final offer of $5.6 million. Kaufman and Broad representatives declined to remain in the bidding after the offer.

Gittles described the Howie-in-the-Hills purchase as the first Illinois venture for the firm.

He would not say what the firm planned to do with the land or how high the bidding might have continued if Kaufman and Broad had not dropped out.

Officials of Hoffman Estates could not be reached for comment on the sale or what their plans might be for a request on rezoning of the property from Meridian.

It is anticipated that any developer would ask the property be rezoned to accommodate some form of multiple-family housing. The land presently is zoned for single-family residences.

Police Get 4% Pay Hike; May Push For More Money

Palatine patrolmen will receive at least a 4 per cent salary hike this year, but may continue their efforts to get more.

The 4 per cent increase was adopted last night by the Palatine Village Board, retroactive to May 1, when the police contract expired.

The Combined Counties Police Assn. (CCPA), which represents 21 Palatine patrolmen, had opened salary negotiations in the spring with a request for a 5 1/2 per cent pay hike and has since lowered that request to 5 per cent.

The bargaining group indicated it may pursue salary talks.

The village had opened the talks with a 3 per cent offer, and later raised it to the 4 per cent figure.

OTHER VILLAGE employees received a 4 per cent across the board salary increase this year and the village is reluctant to give a greater pay boost to the policemen.

As one village employee put it yesterday: "If all it takes to get a larger salary raise is to be organized, let's all organize."

Village Manager Berton G. Braun suggested that the village board adopt a 4 per cent salary increase for the patrolmen "to avoid a hardship" for those counting on the extra wages.

Palatine Patrolman Michael McDonald, president of the local chapter of the CCPA, said yesterday, however, he believed the village was acting "in bad faith" by approving the 4 per cent figure at this time.

McDonald said he thought the move was "an attempt to close down the negotiations," which he said he regarded as an impasse.

MAYOR JACK MOODIE indicated last night however that the continuation of negotiations is "up to them" (CCPA).

Before the 4 per cent hike, patrolmen received a minimum of $10,080 a year and a maximum of $12,600.

The village and the CCPA have agreed on most other items in the contract.

According to McDonald the village has withdrawn its proposal that police be compensated for a percentage of convictions. Instead, police would receive a flat fee of $25 for each overtime court appearance.

3 Men Charged In Theft Case

By allegedly stuffing record albums under their coats, two men nearly got away with 60 records Sunday from the Palatine Zayre department store, 1300 Northwest Hwy.

Arrested and charged with theft were Stanley Orzolek, 55, New Haven, Conn.; and John O'Shea, 42, from Chicago.

The men allegedly picked up some records and left the store. The guard then notified Palatine police. Also charged was Robert Boyer, 53, of Chicago, who was driving the car with the stolen goods when police apprehended the three men.

Value of the records was $271. Court date for all three men is set for July 27 at 1:30 p.m. in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Students Top Average—Not In English

However, their scores in the English portions of the ACT and SAT college entrance tests are much closer to the national averages than their scores in other areas.

Dist. 211 Supt. Richard Kolze said last week the difference between the English scores and others may mean the district needs to re-examine its English curriculum. However, he said, "The scores may also mean we don't place the same emphasis on some things that the test does."

In the ACT, the test required by Illinois state schools and many other Midwestern schools, students at the four Dist. 211 high schools scored between three and five points on a scale of 36 above the national average in math, social science and natural science. In English they scored between five-tenths and two points higher than the national average.

On the SAT test, which is required by many private colleges, students at the four high schools scored between 43 and 68 points higher on a scale of 800 than the national average on math and much closer to the average in the (English) language category.

One school, Conant in Hoffman Estates, scored three points below the national average on language in the SAT and the other schools scored between eight and 26 points higher.

Kolze said department heads in all the schools are aware of the difference in English scores and are looking at the curriculum to see if it needs changing.

He said the main reason students are scoring lower in English than in other areas may be the schools do not emphasize grammar, spelling and other mechanics as much as the tests do.

"I THINK EDUCATION in this area has gotten away from the mechanics of English that we have emphasized in the past," he said. "I don't think that is necessarily bad."

Kolze said district officials will relate the test scores to other records of student success in evaluating them. "One measure is how our students do once they get to college," he said.

About 57 per cent of the students in High School Dist. 211 this year plan to go on to college, according to school guidance directors. Of those, 42 per cent will attend Harper College in Palatine.

Express Lanes Eliminated

Tollway Traffic Jams Get Worse

Commuters yesterday experienced the worst traffic jams on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways since construction began there in May because of elimination of all express lanes.

An Illinois Tollway Authority official said the express lanes were barricaded Sunday morning after a series of serious auto accidents within the last week on the route which had been designated for speedier traffic.

"We had three or four serious accidents" on the express lanes last week, the official said, adding, "We closed them because people were driving too fast for conditions."

A Chicago man was killed in a crash on the Northwest Tollway Saturday afternoon when his car crossed the center line and collided with a vehicle in the express lane. The decision to eliminate the express lanes was made Saturday night.

Commuters who ventured onto the eastbound Northwest Tollway yesterday found bumper to bumper traffic which choked Chicago-bound drivers to a standstill. Drivers reported at least an hour back-up on the single eastbound lane yesterday.

The southbound Tri-State Tollway, also funneled to a single lane, had lengthy traffic tie-ups.

DRIVERS CAN expect no relief on the Northwest Tollway until construction is completed Aug. 1, while the Tri-State work may be finished next Tuesday, according to highway officials.

Because of the tangle of traffic, tollway engineers blockaded entrances to the Northwest Tollway at Arlington Heights Road and Elmhurst Road. They now are considering blocking the Touhy Avenue entrance onto the Tri-State to stop drivers from entering there.

Dozens of cars have stalled on the tollway due to the stop-and-go conditions, and the fleet of emergency tollway repair vehicles has been increased.

Tollway officials suggest that drivers take alternate routes to prevent further traffic problems.

The resurfacing projects extend for 11 miles on both toll roads and are being completed at an estimated cost of more than $5 million. Both tollways were built in 1953, and this is the first major resurfacing work, consisting of adding layers of blacktop to the existing pavement.

Batteries May Have Kept Alarm Silent

Worn-down batteries may have prevented the alarm at Palatine High School from sounding after 24 windows were broken on three sides of the building sometime during the weekend.

The school's alarm apparently had been active all weekend, but a school employee said the alarm becomes less sensitive as the batteries weaken. Windows on the north, east and west sides of the building at 150 E. Wood were broken.

At Pleasant Hill School, 434 W. Illinois, Palatine, two downspouts valued at $25 were pulled down and 15 school books that may have been taken from the school were strewn in the parking lot early Saturday morning. The alarm bell was triggered but no entry into the school was apparent.

Area Men Ask For Charter To Build Bank Of Palatine

An application has been made to charter another bank in Palatine.

The proposed facility, the Bank of Palatine, would be on the southeast corner of Northwest Highway and Plum Grove Road.

Six area executives, including a bank vice president, applied for the charter last week to Robert Bartell, commissioner of banks and trust companies for the state.

Organizers of the proposed bank are Richard P. Coleman, vice president, Kehe, Foy and Snelken, Inc., Arlington Heights; Lyle C. Davidson, president, Davco, Inc., Rolling Meadows; Winn C. Davidson, vice president, The First National Bank of Des Plaines; David M. Haller, partner, R. & S. Development Co., Palatine; John Mangel, president, Mangel and Co., Chicago and Long Grove, and Adolph P. Raymond, real estate developer.

WINN DAVIDSON indicated construction could begin on the facility when the state grants a charter, which he estimated would be in nine to 12 months.

THE ONE-ACRE site has the proper zoning for a bank, B-2, general service district. An adjoining six acres along Northwest Highway between Plum Grove Road and Benton Street, currently zoned R-1, single-family residential district, may be purchased by the bank's organizers subject to rezoning by the village to allow construction of retail stores and some offices, Davidson said.

The property, across from the North View subdivision, lies between two shopping areas, the Palatine Plaza on the east and the Village Oasis on the west.

According to Davidson, the proposed two-story bank would include drive-up windows with access from Benton, Plum Grove and Northwest Highway.

The bank would have a capitalization of $750,000, consisting of 30,000 shares of stock at $25 each. Davidson said stock will be available to the public with approval of the charter.

Palatine currently has three banks and, a savings and loan institution. Davidson said the bank's proponents believe Palatine is an area of "almost explosive growth" and will need additional commercial facilities to accommodate it.

REMNANTS OF an earlier day, these twin silos which stand west of Rte. 53 near Palatine Road have been condemned by the Village of Arlington Heights and soon will be torn down. A March fire destroyed a barn near the silos. Although the property, owned by Carl Reinke of Dundee, lies west of Rte. 53 it is within Arlington Heights. Intermittent efforts have been made to transfer the five-acre sliver of property to the Village of Palatine.

Elk Grove Storm Damage Totals $1.3 Million

Damage to Elk Grove Village businesses and homes totaled nearly $1.3 million last weekend in one of the worst storms ever to hit the village. Village Mgr. Charles Willis said Monday.

"In the dollar amount of damage, last Friday night's storm was undoubtedly the worst in the history of the village," Willis said. He added that it will take a week or two before all the debris, mainly from the wind damage, could be removed.

Rain and high winds from the storm-damaged 47 buildings in the industrial park blew off roofs and knocked down walls. Especially hard hit was the business district north of Rte. 72 and east of Arlington Heights Road.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett, Fire Capt. John Mergens and Building Comr. Tom Rettenbacher surveyed the damage building by building early Saturday morning and estimated the loss to buildings and equipment at $1,293,950.

Members of the fire, police, streets and water departments worked through the weekend assisting property owners and helping to clean up debris from damaged buildings and to clear downed trees from the streets.

HULETT SAID his men were busy Friday night making sure no one was caught in buildings and securing gas and electric lines. He said Saturday the men spent most of the day covering windows, walls and roofs with a heavy plastic covering.

"The heavy plastic sheets saved thousands of dollars in possible damage from rains that came late Saturday," Hulett said.

Willis said there was little damage to residential property, but that trees and limbs were downed in many parts of the village. He said more than 40 trees on public property were uprooted and broken off.

"There is nothing like a crisis situation in the village; now it's mainly a big cleanup effort," Willis said.

Tom Ryan, manager of Atlas Chain Co., 135 Kelly Blvd., said business was as usual Monday with everyone working around the wreckage of a wall and a roof that collapsed during the storm. He said he was planning to move to a temporary plant in the village until the damage could be repaired.

Paulex Tool and Mold Co., 935 Lee St., was closed Monday and power was off as cleanup began to uncover equipment buried under a wall and half the building's roof.

SEVEN EMPLOYEES WERE working in the rear of the Paulex plant Friday when they heard what they called "a big explosion" as the wall collapsed. None of the seven were hurt. A company official last weekend estimated damage to equipment at $25,000 and said the company may be closed down a month.

A third of the roof at National Heat and Power Co., Inc., 170 Lively Blvd., was ripped off, but the plant was in partial operation Monday. One employee said the roof would be patched temporarily with tar until more permanent roofing could be added.

Also looking for temporary quarters Monday was Telecontrols Inc., 95 Randall Blvd. A company official said the building housing some $40,000 worth of equipment, was almost a total loss. He said the roof was blown away and two side walls were down. A third wall was unstable and will have to be demolished, and only the front wall was in good condition, he said.

Open-School Concept Gets Good Appraisal

An evaluation of Lincoln School in Palatine and Willow Bend School in Rolling Meadows after the first year of operation is favorable to the open concept.

The two schools were the first real departure from the traditional classroom approach to school architecture in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

Instead of the traditional classroom with four walls and a door, both Willow Bend in Rolling Meadows and Lincoln in Palatine have folding walls and no door allowing a flexible use of the classroom space.

The plan and design committee for the two identical schools was reactivated in November to evaluate the schools and the open concept. The committee evaluation was favorable to the open concept but recommended several changes in building design.

Joseph Kiszka, deputy superintendent, said the early evaluation of the two schools was necessary in order to initiate planning for future buildings.

The major problem in the design of the buildings cited by the teachers was acoustics. Several teachers indicated they would like to see doors added so they could shut the noise out.

KISZKA SAID THE committee felt the noise level could be controlled without the necessity of adding doors. The committee recommended the library and commons which received favorable comments from the teachers, not be located in a traffic pattern and continued by stating they don't need to occupy a central location in the building.

Carpeting in the classrooms received high appraisals from the teachers and the committee. The committee did recommend additional consideration to the treatment of the floor in the entryways and tiled areas in the classrooms near the source of water to minimize carpet damage.

The committee indicated an "L" shaped classroom adjoining another "L" shaped classroom might provide more flexibility in space. It was further stated there would be advantages to providing small flexible spaces adjacent to the library resource center and other areas. The committee stated there might be an advantage to having craft areas in more than one location in the schools.

Speaker To Explain Health, Safety Act

A federal law requiring employers whose business involves interstate commerce to provide safe and healthful working conditions for employees will be explained at a luncheon meeting to be sponsored by the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

The meeting is scheduled for noon on Aug. 1 at the Lancer Steak House, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg.

Guest speaker will be Leonard Day, manager of the labor relations department in the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

Day will discuss the Williams-Steiger Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, which applies to virtually all businesses.

Under the provisions of the act, any employer can request a compliance officer to inspect equipment and working conditions at a business. If a serious hazard is found, an employer can be ordered to close down all or part of his operation.

Inspectors have conducted more than 23,000 safety checks since the act became law, and have issued citations for 63,573 violations of the act.

Violations can carry a fine of up to $1,000 for each infraction and a jail term up to six months.

Firms which belong to the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry as well as others are eligible to attend the meeting. Reservations can be made with the chamber office, 235 N. Northwest Hwy., until July 28.

Howie-In-Hills Hearing Turns Into An Auction

Looking more like an old-fashioned auction than a federal court hearing, the Howie-in-the-Hills subdivision in Hoffman Estates was sold for $5.6 million to a New York-based housing corporation yesterday.

The spirited bidding for the 500-acre parcel of land adjacent to the Winston Knolls subdivision in the northwest corner of the village took place before Senior Federal District Court Judge William J. Campbell. He acted as auctioneer by encouraging competing developers several times to raise their offers.

Campbell's efforts worked to some success as the bids for the land jumped to more than $400,000 in a matter of minutes. Meridian Investment and Development Corp. outbid Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. for the land. Kaufman and Broad is the developer of Barrington Square in Hoffman Estates.

The sale of the property was conditioned on clear title being obtained and rezoning satisfactory to all parties involved.

Both conditions could represent major hurdles for the confirmation of the sale of the property, which represents a major portion of the assets of the now defunct City Savings and Loan Association. The financial institution went bankrupt in 1964 after its president C. Oran Mensik, allegedly bilked it of more than $28 million.

THE PROPERTY presently has more than $2 million in lawsuits filed against it. The biggest suit, now pending in the Cook County Circuit Court, has been filed by the Central States Pension Fund of the Teamsters Union. Judge Campbell has scheduled a closed conference for the pension funds representative and others in an effort to iron out the difficulties. Confirmation of the sale has been set for July 31.

Meridian and Kaufman and Broad emerged as the major bidder on the property when a bid from Miller Builders of Skokie was withdrawn and a $4.75 million from 3-H Builders was dropped because of the extensive conditions placed on the bid.

The initial K & B bid offered two prices, $4,075,000 with no rezoning considerations, or $5.26 million with rezoning adequate for six units-per-acre development.

The offer was countered almost immediately by Meridian attorney Gerald Gilles with a $5.3 million bid. Then attorneys for Kaufman and Broad requested permission to contact other officials about an increased bid.

Judge Campbell, who had publicly stated that he hoped to get at least $5.75 million for the land, encouraged the conference.

A few minutes later Kaufman and Broad offered $5.325 million.

Gilles, telling Judge Campbell that he did not even need to record the offer, jumped Meridian's bid to $5.5 million.

KAUFMAN AND BROAD asked and got another closed door conference and emerged to offer $5.5 million asking the only condition on the bid be a clear title.

Meridian then ended the bidding with a final offer of $5.6 million. Kaufman and Broad representatives declined to remain in the bidding after the offer.

Gilles described the Howie-in-the-Hills purchase as the first Illinois venture for the firm.

He would not say what the firm planned to do with the land or how high the bidding might have continued if Kaufman and Broad had not dropped out.

Officials of Hoffman Estates could not be reached for comment on the sale or what their plans might be for a request on rezoning of the property from Meridian.

It is anticipated that any developer would ask the property be rezoned to accommodate some form of multiple-family housing. The land presently is zoned for single-family residences.

Students Learn, Enjoy

Evaluation Shows Project Success

Students enjoyed school more and did as well academically during the pilot-differentiated-staffing program at Lincoln School in Palatine last year.

An evaluation of the differentiated staffing was generally favorable. The evaluation was based on responses from parents, students and teachers to a questionnaire and the results of standardized tests administered to the students and to students at two other schools in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, which were used as a control.

The differentiated staffing entailed assigning one teacher and three teacher aides to every two classes.

Despite the apparent success of the program, the staffing will be altered next year by increasing the number of classroom teachers by 5.5, one for each class, and reducing the number of clerical and instructional aides by 19.5. Larry Stillebauer, principal of Lincoln School explained the change was necessitated because of anticipated high enrollments and their consequent problems at the school.

STILLEBAUER SAID the idea of differentiated staffing was not being abandoned and might be reinstated when the student population at Lincoln School stabilizes. He emphasized he had been generally happy with the pilot project.

The results of the questionnaire indicated the students adjusted more readily to the change than the adults and parents.

Of the 25 teachers surveyed, 58 per cent indicated they had less time than last year to emphasize learning rather than managerial functions, 38 per cent said they had less time to act as a resource person to the students, 35 per cent indicated they had less time for students who needed special help, 40 per cent indicated they had less time to learn about the students' interests and hobbies and 56 per cent said they had less time to consult the students individually about their progress.

Marion Omiatek, assistant superintendent of instruction, said these results were not necessarily negative and had some positive aspects. He explained the role of teachers is changing and they are becoming more involved with personnel management and resource coordination so they can make more effective use of their talents. As an example, instead of running off 30 dittos of something they will have a clerical aide to do it.

While the teachers did not have an opportunity to get to know their students as well or consult with them individually, the students had more adult contact because of the teacher aides, said Omiatek.

THE MAJORITY of the teachers indicated they made use of the open classroom concept of the school to allow more flexible seating and student moving, had more time to plan to meet individual student needs, made good use of the resources at the school, gave students more opportunity to be involved in planning classroom activities and had been encouraged to employ useful innovations in preparing student instruction. Sixty per cent of the teachers indicated they would like more planning time and 40 per cent said fewer students.

The majority of students responded positively to each question they were asked indicating they liked the differentiated staffing better than the traditional classroom situation. The students indicated they felt their success was better this year and also that they were expected to do more work.

Parents expressed the most reservations about the program. Asked to describe facets in the program that require change or improvement, 70 per cent said decrease class size, 50 per cent said more discipline, 33 per cent said less noise level, 25 per cent said more parent-teacher-administration cooperation and understanding.

A comparison of standardized test scores at each grade level with students at Lincoln, Hunting Ridge and Willow Bend schools indicated the differentiated staffing plan did not affect the students' achievement.

Handbag With $400 Inside Is Returned

Leave a handbag with $400 in it lying in a laundromat, come back and find it taken, and what's the best you could expect? To possibly get everything but the $400 returned?

Better than that, Heidi S. Hodges, an Arlington Park Race Track employee, got the purse and all its contents back, including the money, last week after David Lieder turned it in to Palatine police. Lieder, a Lake Zurich resident, found the purse shortly after it had been taken.

During Storms, Know What CD Warning Sirens Mean

One of the first lines of warning in the event of crippling storms like last Friday's is the Civil Defense siren alert network.

Most towns in this area are served by CD siren systems that are activated to warn residents when a tornado has been sighted in the area.

"The sirens will not blast during a tornado watch," explained John Fascia, CD coordinator for Region 2-A.

A tornado watch is in effect when "weather conditions are such that a tornado could occur," he said.

A tornado warning, on the other hand, means that a funnel cloud has been sighted in the area and people should take shelter.

The sirens, Fascia said, will blow a "three to five-minute steady monotone blast" during a tornado warning.

He said when people hear this signal they should take cover in the nearest, safe location.

Fascia said the tornado warning was blown Friday for the first time since last summer.

Drug Abuse Film Set

Drug abuse is the topic of "High on the Campus," a film scheduled by the Palatine Bible Church, 312 E. Wood, Palatine, for Wednesday at 7 p.m. How the drug problem can be solved and the dangers of drug abuse are the central themes of the film.

Auto Tires Slashed

A tire slasher ruined the tires on Henry Ward's car for the second time in six months early Friday. Ward, of 268 N. Fremont in Palatine, found three tires slashed.

A neighbor, Ed LaCroix, of 338 N. Oak, had all four tires ruined the same morning. Although police have no leads on the vandal, they believe that either an ice pick or a thin-blade knife was used to do the damage. Estimated value of the tires was $90 for Ward and $160 for LaCroix.

Little League Unit To Install Officers

New officers in the Palatine North Little League Auxiliary were installed last night.

Mrs. Richard Abrahamson is the new president; Mrs. Steven Loverde, vice president; Mrs. William Landeene, secretary; Mrs. Donald Anderson, treasurer; and Mrs. Gordon Long, newsletter editor. Mrs. Robert Greenhill is the retiring president of the group.

A recent Auxiliary-sponsored benefit raffle resulted in a four-day San Juan, Puerto Rico trip for Mr. and Mrs. B. Kessler, 1361 Joan St., Palatine, the raffle's grand prize winners. Other Palatine winners were Michael Cagliano, 853 Carpenter, who won a hind quarter of beef, and Kelly Kohn, 1048 Lillie Ln., winner of a grill.

Wheeling Panel Backs Library System Move

A plan to move the North Suburban Library District to Dundee Road east of the Wheeling post office received a welcome from the Wheeling Plan Commission last week.

The commission waived the preliminary plat for the project because it involves only a two-lot subdivision and requires no engineering. The library district's proposed building would occupy the west 175 feet of street front on 7.8 acres owned by Chrysler Realty Corp. of Detroit.

In 1970, the land was rezoned for a Chrysler automobile dealership. The plan was later abandoned, and the property put up for sale. Plans for the remaining property are indefinite.

The North Suburban Library District is a service organization for 31 libraries in the northern Chicago suburbs — one of 17 such organizations in the state. The proposed 10,000-15,000 square foot building would be the home office for the district, housing a library reference center and the inter-library loan system in the area.

"WHEELING MARKS the approximate center of this north suburban district," said Robert R. McClarren, systems director for the district. "It seemed appropriate to move to Wheeling from our Morton Grove location, which we now lease."

The library district chose the Dundee Road property because it is in the center of town. "One of the criteria for the selection of this property was its visibility,"

McClarren said. He explained people often come from out of town to visit the library district.

"And because of its nighttime use by board members, there was a concern about being in an isolated area," he added.

McClarren estimated that the center would have 10 to 12 visitors a day in addition to the district's eight employees. The only other traffic would be generated by a fleet of three small vans and two station wagons that transport books in the inter-library loan operation.

Because the district is a governmental body operated with state funds, the operation is tax exempt. In spite of its tax exempt status, the members of the commission expressed enthusiasm for the plan.

"I like the idea of being in here with something that wouldn't generate a lot of traffic," commission member Wilfred Sommer said. "It sounds good to me."

Commission member Raymond Waymel added, "Anything would be a welcome addition to gas stations, restaurants and parking."

Because the library is anxious to move as quickly as possible, representatives have scheduled presentation of the final plat at the next plan commission meeting.

IN OTHER ACTION, the commission approved plans for a new 32,000-square-foot Sears catalog surplus store next to the Dunhurst Shopping Center. The new store would be southwest of the National Food Store with an entrance to the store parking lot from Jenkins Court as well as Dundee Road.

Commission members expressed concern that the entrance from Jenkins

Court would bring truck traffic into that residential area. Plans for the store were sent on to the village board with a recommendation that if traffic problems should develop on Jenkins Court, a weight limit should be posted on the road.

The commission also approved the final plat for the first addition to Sandpebble Walk condominiums, noting there were still a few minor corrections and additions that needed to be made.

Korean Girl Adjusting Well

Jennifer Finds Her New Home

by MARY HUTCHINGS

A 17-month-old Korean girl has a new home in Hoffman Estates.

Jennifer Ann made the 24-hour flight here more than a week ago to meet her new parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bakos, 204 W. Concord Ln.

The first child to be adopted by the Bakoses, her parents say she is making an "unbelievably good" adjustment to her new situation. In Seoul, she lived in a foster home after being abandoned by her real mother.

The Bakoses worked through the International Social Service of America, New York, and it took two years to bring their girl here. They first saw her picture a year ago.

SHE'S AS PRETTY AS can be now as she toddles about her new home, babbling in Korean and using the few English words she knows — Mama, bye-bye and Hi. Though she was named "Hi" in Korea, her new parents thought it would be difficult for her to live here with that name. They chose Jennifer for Bakos' sister.

"Abandonment is the ultimate rejection," Peter Bakos said. "We fell in love with her."

The Bakoses plan to have two children of their own, and then adopt again, probably another Korean. "The Koreans seem to be in the most need," Mrs.

Bakos said.

Though they had hoped to adopt an American Indian child, they found the Indians "very race conscious. They don't want their children adopted," Bakos said.

Jennifer Ann's first day here might have been a little traumatic for her, with both the shock of separation and the cultural differences she faced immediately.

WITH SPECIAL attention, to her diet, her new mother made a rice dinner for her with beef chunks. She picked out the beef and ate only the rice, but now she likes meat, although citrus fruits and orange juice are still "icky."

"She's going to be a great connoisseur of food" her father says.

Family and neighbors, the couple said, were enthusiastic about Jennifer's arrival, and with the stream of company to their home, she is gradually getting used to people and to the fact that she is with the Bakoses for good — the visitors haven't come to take her away again.

Mrs. Bakos will get her registered nurses degree in August and hopes to work part-time. Now her husband works the evening shift at Aerocool Research so that he can be home with Jennifer during the day. A neighbor, Mrs. Vee Yackey, babysits for Jennifer during the one-hour gap in her parents' schedules.

THE CATHOLIC charities refused to help the Bakoses adopt a foreign child because of Mrs. Bakos' plans to work. The next time they adopt, the couple plans to use the Holt Agency, Seattle, because they said it is supposed to be faster.

Though Mrs. Bakos was apprehensive when she took Jennifer out for the first time, she found that Jennifer was the center of attraction at the doctor's office and in shopping centers.

The Bakoses hope to teach Jennifer something of her culture as she grows up, and expect that by "showing enough love and affection in the early stages," she will have few problems as she adapts and grows in her new society.

Traffic Jams Plague Motorists On NW Tollway

Commuters yesterday experienced the worst traffic jams on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways since construction began there in May because of elimination of all express lanes.

An Illinois Tollway Authority official said the express lanes were barricaded Sunday morning after a series of serious auto accidents within the last week on the route which had been designated for speedier traffic.

"We had three or four serious accidents on the express lanes last week," the official said, adding, "We closed them because people were driving too fast for conditions."

A Chicago man was killed in a crash on the Northwest Tollway Saturday afternoon when his car crossed the center line and collided with a vehicle in the express lane. The decision to eliminate the express lanes was made Saturday night.

Raiders Lead League

The Raiders are leading the Rolling Meadows Park District Men's 16-inch softball "B" league with a 7 and 0 record.

In a three-way tie for second place with a 6 and 1 record are the Rolling Meadows Bowl, Nite Hawks and Eagles. The Red Onion team is 1½ games out of first with a 5 and 1 record.

Commuters who ventured onto the eastbound Northwest Tollway yesterday found bumper to bumper traffic which choked Chicago-bound drivers to a standstill. Drivers reported at least an hour back-up on the single eastbound lane yesterday.

The southbound Tri-State Tollway, also funneled to a single lane, had lengthy traffic tie-ups.

DRIVERS CAN expect no relief on the Northwest Tollway until construction is completed Aug. 1, while the Tri-State work may be finished next Tuesday, according to highway officials.

Because of the tangle of traffic, tollway engineers blockaded entrances to the Northwest Tollway at Arlington Heights Road and Elmhurst Road. They now are considering blocking the Touhy Avenue entrance onto the Tri-State to stop drivers from entering there.

Dozens of cars have stalled on the tollway due to the stop-and-go conditions, and the fleet of emergency tollway repair vehicles has been increased.

Tollway officials suggest that drivers take alternate routes to prevent further traffic problems.

The resurfacing projects extend for 11 miles on both toll roads and are being completed at an estimated cost of more than $5.5 million. Both tollways were built in 1958, and this is the first major resurfacing work, consisting of adding layers of blacktop to the existing pavement.

Stan Pace Gives Pool A New Look

by JOANN VAN WYE

A new look and image have been added to the Rolling Meadows Park District swimming pool this year.

Instead of the usual dull, drab public pool, the Rolling Meadows pool comes close to resembling what one might find at a private country club.

Colorful deck furniture has been added to an area enclosed for the exclusive use and image is Stan Pace, park district aquatic director. Technically, Pace is a summer employee of the park district but he started working on the renovation plans for the pool area last February.

PACE HAS BEEN the park district's aquatic director for two years. S aquatic director he coordinates the programs at the pool, is in charge of the concession stand and hires the personnel to work at the pool and concession stand.

Pace, who can frequently be found working in the adult section of the pool deck, claims the change at the pool this year is more than just physical.

"We really have a learning and teaching situation in our learn to swim classes this year," said Pace, who claims not much teaching was going on last year.

He attributes the change in character of the classes to a new and highly qualified staff. Out of the staff of 10 at the pool, nine are water safety instructors.

Last year the staff was the same size but only two persons were water safety instructors.

"The biggest problem now (with the learn to swim classes) is the mothers," said Pace. He said he would prefer to see the mothers drop their children off for the classes and leave rather than stay and hang over the fences watching the children. He feels this is a definite deterrent in the child's progress.

DURING THE PUBLIC swim sessions Pace keeps six guards on the deck at all times and two off. The guards are on the deck for an hour and a half and off for 30 minutes. Without the break apathy sets in and the guards are not as alert, according to Pace.

There is a 10-minute break every hour during the public swim sessions when only adults are allowed in the pool. Pace says the breaks are designed to give the youngsters a break because they often don't now when they are tired and when they get tired accidents are more likely to occur.

When not working as aquatic director, Pace teaches geology at Morton College and night courses at Triton College. He has been teaching at Morton College for four years and he had previously taught at Morton West High School.

While involved with intramural swimming, Pace's main interest during the winter and spring months are baseball and basketball. He has coached baseball for 15 years, two of which have been at Morton College. He has also coached freshman basketball for 13 years at the high school.

His previous experience with park districts includes six years as assistant director during the summer and two years as interim director for the Berwyn Park Commission and one year as pool manager in Forest Park.

Stolen Checks Turn Up

Approximately $1,100 in bad checks, all allegedly written by one man on checks stolen from an Arlington Park jockey, have turned up recently at Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows businesses.

Rolling Meadows Detective Charles Smith said the first of a series of bad checks was written June 17, but the irregularities were not caught until Christopher J. Rogers, a jockey at the racetrack, tried to make a $1,100 withdrawal last week from his account at the Bank of Rolling Meadows and learned that someone had written checks against his account.

Smith said Rogers' blank checks apparently had been stolen from the racetrack mailroom. He apparently was not aware of the theft until last week.

The bad checks have surfaced at currency exchanges and shoe stores in Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows. All but one of the checks was for $100, Smith said.

High Winds, Rain Rip Area

A severe storm with torrential rains swept through the area last night causing severe flooding, power failures and a rash of auto accidents.

Schaumburg police said a tornado was reportedly sighted near the village at about 9 p.m. but there was no indication the funnel had touched down.

Businesses along Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights were without electrical power and several traffic signals were not functioning. Police used flares to direct traffic at Golf and Algonquin roads where the highway was under water.

A spokesman for Commonwealth Edison said last night power lines were down throughout the suburban area but he expected all power to be restored today.

The Central and Arlington Heights Road area, which is under construction, was severely flooded. Public works crews worked to clear drains for several hours.

Rolling Meadows police reported an auto crash with three persons injured at 3201 Algonquin Road at 9 p.m.

Winston Park homeowners entered the Palatine Village Board meeting last night to seek relief from the perennial flooding in their subdivision. They offered to help finance a village flood protection program.

St. Colette Welcomes Sister Joann

Sister Joann Brdecka, who will start a new program in pastoral ministry, was welcomed to St. Colette Church in Rolling Meadows Sunday.

Sister Joann of the Order of St. Francis will spend this week visiting the sick and shut-ins of the parish at their homes and in the hospital. Later her duties will be expanded to include pastoral home visits throughout the parish. She will also take part in liturgical development at St. Colette and all staff meetings.

The pastoral ministry program under which Sister Joann was sent to St. Colette is a relatively new one in the Chicago Archdiocese. It has been in existence approximately five years and there are currently seven nuns engaged in similar activities throughout the archdiocese.

Asked about her own goals within the program, Sister Joann said most important in her mind is the strengthening of the faith in the adults with whom she comes in contact. She also hopes to help people become more attentive to the needs of others.

Sister Joann was born in Chicago. Her family later moved to Glenview where they still reside.

AFTER GRADUATION from Glenbrook High School, Sister Joann attended

Alverno College in Milwaukee, Wis. She received a degree in home economics with a minor in sociology and physical education. She continued her studies at Garrett Theological Seminary in Evanston where she received her master's degree in divinity. She then spent a year at the Divine Word International Center of Religious Education in London, Ont.

Sister Joann spent three and a half years at St. Dominic's parish in Chicago's Cabrini Green area doing work similar to that which she will be doing at St. Colette.

Sister Joann will live at the St. James Convent in Arlington Heights.

Migrant Summer Program

School Is Fun For Them

Summer school usually doesn't rank as a favorite summer pastime among students.

That is unless they're among the 55 students in the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 summer migrant program at Plum Grove School in Rolling Meadows.

To these youngsters summer school is something to look forward to. It means field trips, swimming, sewing, cooking, typing, videotaping, workshop, games, singing, hot lunches and even a little work which is fun for the most part.

The activities open up a world of new experiences for most of these students and are part of an effort to improve their educational level and enhance their life style.

The program, now in its fourth summer, is 100 per cent funded by the federal government's Title I program.

LAST YEAR more than 80 children were in the program. A change in federal guidelines making only the children of true agricultural migrants eligible and not the children of migrants who have settled in the area has reduced the eligible participants.

Children in the program range in age from 3 to 15 years old. The eight-week program meets five days a week from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Practical arts were added on the intermediate level of the summer migrant program this year. After they picked out their material, the girls are sewing aprons and beach bags. When they finish their own projects they will start on beach bags for the girls in the primary group.

The beach bags come in handy Wednesday mornings when the 55 students take swimming lessons at the Palatine Community Pool. A favorite with the students, one can often overhear them asking, "How many days until we go swimming?" None of the students are afraid of the water and their teacher says some are becoming pretty good swimmers.

While the girls are sewing the boys are in woodshop. Having completed the base for a lamp, they are now working on a fish wall plaque.

THE LAST three weeks of the program the girls will spend in cooking. The primary youngsters are receiving an introduction to basic cooking in their regular classes. To date they have made applesauce and jello.

At the end of each day the intermediate students spend an hour learning to type. Another addition to the curriculum this year is videotaping. Seven of the students are learning to operate the videotape equipment. Their big project for the summer will be making a film of activities in the program to show to the parents during a fiesta at the end of the program.

Like Wednesday, Friday is another day the students look forward to. Friday is set aside each week for a field trip. So far these have included a train ride to the Fox River Grove where the group had a picnic, a trip to Pioneer Park for the primary students and to Woodfield Mall and Alexian Brothers Hospital for the intermediate students.

Trips in the planning include a visit to O'Hare Airport, a boat ride in Chicago, a visit to the Chicago and Palatine police stations and the Brookfield Zoo.

THE MORNING hours are devoted to reading, writing, mathematics and other basic skills. Instruction is on an individual or small groups basis. This is necessary because some of the students have attended school and others haven't and all are on different levels, according to Mrs. Peggy Bishop, coordinator of the program.

Several learning kits and machines are used in the program to make learning more enjoyable.

Another important aspect of the program is developing an appreciation and understanding of their own culture among the students. This is done through songs, art projects and discussions.

Working with the students during the day is a team of two certified teachers and certified teachers in practical arts, two teacher aids, two parent aids and six high school volunteers.

Not as enthusiastically greeted by the students is the dental hygiene program. In groups of six the students are taken to Harper College where they have their teeth cleaned. This is followed by instructions on dental hygiene and then the students are given toothbrushes and toothpaste. The students are also given immunization shots if they haven't had them as well as tuberculosis tests during the summer.

A rummage sale is in the planning with two rooms already filled with clothes, utensils, games and other objects to be sold. The money from the rummage sale will be used by the students to put on a fiesta for their parents at the end of the program.

$1.3 Million Storm Loss In Elk Grove

Damage to Elk Grove Village businesses and homes totaled nearly $1.3 million last weekend in one of the worst storms ever to hit the village, Village Mgr. Charles Willis said Monday.

"In the dollar amount of damage, last Friday night's storm was undoubtedly the worst in the history of the village," Willis said. He added that it will take a week or two before all the debris, mainly from the wind damage, could be removed.

Rain and high winds from the storm-damaged 47 buildings in the industrial park blew off roofs and knocked down walls. Especially hard hit was the business district north of Rte. 72 and east of Arlington Heights Road.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett, Fire Capt. John Mergens and Building Commr. Tom Rettenbacher surveyed the damage building by building early Saturday morning and estimated the loss to buildings and equipment at $1,293,950.

Members of the fire, police, streets and water departments worked through the weekend assisting property owners and helping to clean up debris from damaged buildings and to clear downed trees from the streets.

GETTING SOME POINTERS from his teacher, Paul Hanson, Victor Villarrial is ready to put the finishing touches on his lamp base. Practical arts was added to the summer migrant program curriculum for the first time this year. While the boys are in woodshop, the girls are in sewing class.

SECURING A PIECE of yarn in place, David Torres works on what will be a medallion when completed as his teacher, Miss Rhonda Motzkus, looks on ready to be of assistance. David is one of 55 students in Dist. 15's summer migrant program.

During Storms, Know What CD Warning Sirens Mean

One of the first lines of warning in the event of crippling storms like last Friday's is the Civil Defense siren alert network.

Most towns in this area are served by CD siren systems that are activated to warn residents when a tornado has been sighted in the area.

"The sirens will not blast during a tornado watch," explained John Fascia, CD coordinator for Region 2-A.

A tornado watch is in effect when "weather conditions are such that a tornado could occur," he said.

A tornado warning, on the other hand, means that a funnel cloud has been sighted in the area and people should take shelter.

The sirens, Fascia said, will blow a "three to five-minute steady monotone blast" during a tornado warning.

He said when people hear this signal they should take cover in the nearest, safe location.

Fascia said the tornado warning was blown Friday for the first time since last summer.

Compromise May Allow Apartment Complex Here

A compromise has been reached that may allow development of an apartment complex and a business use at the northwest corner of Foundry and River roads in Mount Prospect.

The new proposal, which will be presented to the village board tonight, will allow a four-story, 140-unit apartment building and a B-2 business use to be built on the site. Under B-2 zoning, a small shopping center or professional and business offices or a funeral parlor may be built.

The compromise was worked out by members of the village's judiciary committee and the petitioners. It came last week, after the Mount Prospect Plan Commission had earlier voted 9-0 against the original request for 172 units in a five-story building and a higher commercial use on the corner.

Throughout all of the discussions, the extremely high density asked for has bothered village officials. According to Trustee Donald B. Furst, the compromise, which is subject to certain conditions, is an effective solution to the problem.

BEFORE THE property was annexed to the village last year, it had been zoned by Cook County authorities to allow the construction of two separate five-story buildings with commercial use on the first floor of the first building, 140 apartment units in the first building, and all commercial in the second building.

Furst said that a review of the utilities available and the proposed engineering have answered many of the plan commission's objections to the project.

The village board also will hear arguments for a White Hen Pantry store to be located on the north side of Camp McDonald Road just west of River Road. Here, the judiciary committee made no recommendation as the question of an easement to the west of the proposed stores has still not been answered to their liking.

The easement is tied in with a third case, as it is owned by the J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp., which wishes to build 85 condominium units and 13,000 square feet of commercial use in a six-story building just to the north of the White Hen property.

Plan commission members have said they do not want to see this easement used as a thoroughfare to the Brickman development. If the White Hen is built, however, they fear there will be problems of enforcing such a prohibition as the White Hen people will use the easement to reach the rear of their building.

As for the Brickman request, which was also before the judiciary committee, no action will be taken until the Aug. 1 village board meeting at the earliest. Furst said his committee took no vote because they wanted more information about the project.

A HEAVILY DAMAGED SPORTS car is removed from intersection of Rte. 83 and Euclid Avenue, Mount Prospect, after it collided with a truck Friday morning. Edward Brown, 47, Bensenville, was trapped in the car about 10 minutes before firemen were able to extricate him. He was taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines with head and back injuries. Brown was charged with failure to obey a red light and will appear in court Aug. 30. The truck driver, Robert Davern, 40, Chicago, escaped serious injury.

Tollway Traffic Jams Get Worse; One Killed

Commuters yesterday experienced the worst traffic jams on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways since construction began there in May because of elimination of all express lanes.

An Illinois Tollway Authority official said the express lanes were barricaded Sunday morning after a series of serious auto accidents within the last week on the route which had been designated for speedier traffic.

"We had three or four serious accidents on the express lanes last week," the official said, adding, "We closed them because people were driving too fast for conditions."

A Chicago man was killed in a crash on the Northwest Tollway Saturday afternoon when his car crossed the center line and collided with a vehicle in the express lane. The decision to eliminate the express lanes was made Saturday night.

Commuters who ventured onto the eastbound Northwest Tollway yesterday found bumper to bumper traffic which choked Chicago-bound drivers to a standstill. Drivers reported at least an hour back-up on the single eastbound lane yesterday.

The southbound Tri-State Tollway, also funneled to a single lane, had lengthy traffic tie-ups.

DRIVERS CAN expect no relief on the Northwest Tollway until construction is completed Aug. 1, while the Tri-State work may be finished next Tuesday, according to highway officials.

Because of the tangle of traffic, tollway engineers blockaded entrances to the Northwest Tollway at Arlington Heights Road and Elmhurst Road. They now are considering blocking the Touhy Avenue entrance onto the Tri-State to stop drivers from entering there.

Dozens of cars have stalled on the tollway due to the stop-and-go conditions, and the fleet of emergency tollway repair vehicles has been increased.

Tollway officials suggest that drivers take alternate routes to prevent further traffic problems.

The resurfacing projects extend for 11 miles on both toll roads and are being completed at an estimated cost of more than $5.5 million. Both tollways were built in 1958, and this is the first major resurfacing work, consisting of adding layers of blacktop to the existing pavement.

School Board To Discuss Budget

River Trails Dist. 26 School Board members examined proposed 1972-73 expenditures Thursday, preparing for tentative budget approval next month.

Board members will discuss the budget at tonight's meeting, which starts at 7:30 in the administration building, 1800 E. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Board members stress they will not have a clear financial picture of the district until the teachers' contract is settled. Teachers and Richard Zwieback, professional negotiator hired by the board, have called a moratorium on bargaining for the summer. They have been meeting since February.

"We won't know what our deficit is until we have a settlement," Board Pres. Lloyd Demel said Friday. Last year's budget in September showed a $442,000 deficit.

THE PROPOSED $3 million education fund now includes no increase for salaries. Board member Ted Wattenberg suggested adding a tentative five per cent raise for teachers into the $1.2 million figure, but other members disagreed.

Board members are still unsure of the district's revenue for the 1972-73 fiscal year. State aid, based on average daily attendance, cannot be computed until the actual formula is known, according to Supt. Tom Warden. The state legislature recently passed a bill that would increase state aid for districts like Dist. 26, but Gov. Richard Ogilvie has not yet signed it.

In looking over expenditures, board members decided to eliminate a specific allocation for a professional negotiator. They agreed to take $6,500 from that account and move it to a contingency fund. The money had been included to pay for a negotiator if the board decides to hire one next year.

The move was made because several board members felt people reading the budget would assume a negotiator had already been hired for 1973-74 talks.

"I think it throws up a red flag," said board member Ted Wattenberg, who opposes hiring a negotiator. Teachers and some residents protested earlier this year when the board hired Zwieback to negotiate.

WARDEN SAID he felt the money should stay in the negotiator account. "I think we want to explain to teachers that we're prepared to go that route (hiring a negotiator) again." He agreed to put the money in a contingency fund "where fees for a negotiator could come if we need them."

Also included in the proposed budget is $20,000 for teacher aides. The aides, paraprofessionals, will work with teachers in the classroom.

"We can't afford the luxury anymore of having 18 or 19 in a class," said Retzlaff, explaining that aides are added to help lower the pupil/instructor ratio.

Howard Alton New President Of Mt. Prospect State Bank

Howard W. Alton, 66, of Barrington, has been elected president and chairman of the board of the Mount Prospect State Bank.

Alton replaces William J. Busse, 57, who died earlier this month of leukemia. Busse, a member of one of the founding families of Mount Prospect, had been with the bank 33 years.

Involved in planning the bank's expansion, Alton became senior vice president and vice chairman of the board earlier this year. He first joined the bank as a director in 1957 while serving as president and chairman of the board at Columbian Lithographing Co. of Chicago.

Alton became vice president of marketing of the bank in 1965 and during this period to the present, the bank jumped in assets from $33,950,251 to $99,938,378.

"It has been the policy of the bank under Mr. Busse's leadership to pursue opportunities for continued improvement of bank services and facilities," Alton said. "Studies in this direction are continuing to move along in good fashion."

Alton and his wife, Martha, have two sons, Louis and Jeffrey. His son Howard Jr. is currently vice president of marketing at the bank.

Marilyn Hallman

His parents may see him as a gangly teenager with an insatiable appetite and his eye on the family car. His teacher may see him as that quiet kid in the third row who usually turns in his homework promptly. But the Little League players see him as a tyrant with 20-80 vision who always favors the other team.

This fellow is, of course, the Little League umpire. Reminiscing about the just-closed baseball season, one small ball player observed:

"You find that the umpire usually makes the exact opposite call of what you want. The way we usually have it is the umpire and the other team against us. A majority of umpires call pretty cruddy calls, but some of the time they make good calls. They probably try to do a good job."

Just who is this much-maligned fellow behind home plate? Probably a nice high school or college student much like the one next door.

ONE YOUNG umpire, who expertly officiated at one of the season's final games last weekend, is 15-year-old George Savage of 213 N. Fairview Ave. He will be a sophomore at Prospect High School this fall.

George was on the high school baseball team last year, and this summer he's been playing on the Prospect summer training team. Before that, he played Little League ball for four years.

However, all this experience isn't necessary, says George. All would-be umpires take an eight-week training course. During these Wednesday night sessions, they study thoroughly the baseball rule book. Then they umpire some pre-season scrimmage games for on-the-field practice.

"It is not as tough as I thought it would be," George observed. "I have really enjoyed umpiring."

His only complaint is that it gets pretty hot on the field. During one particularly long, hot day, he officiated at four consecutive games — at 1, 3, 5, 30 and 8 p.m. During the latter two, he was filling in for a friend.

DISGRUNTLED LITTLE League parents and team managers seldom give George much trouble.

"I never have had them get on me that much," he said. "There were two managers, though, that they warned us about during our training."

Mike Wells, 113 S. We-Go Tr., had a rougher time.

"You have to take a lot from the people in the stands," he said. "If I made a bad call, they'd be on me. Some of them are really immature, and sometimes they don't know the rules."

An example is where the baseman must tag the runner for the out, said Mike. The spectators may think he only has to tag the base. Then when the runner is ruled "safe," the fans yell, "He (the baseman) stepped on the bag! Are you dumb!"

MIKE SAID he just pretends not to hear all this. "You've got to keep your cool," he explained. "Once I started laughing. People are so dumb sometimes." Occasionally team coaches gave him a hard time, too.

In one game Mike recalled that a coach yelled at him "face to face like Leo Durocher yells at his umpires." After the game, Mike discovered that one of the kids had let the air out of his bicycle tires.

"It's important to be consistent," said Mike. "If I'm calling low strikes, I have to call them that way for both teams."

Like George, Mike will be a sophomore at Prospect in September. He has gone through six years of Little League play and was on the high school team last year. He also plays on the Prospect summer training team.

Both boys see Little League umpiring as a good part-time summer job. Umpires earn from $4 to $7 per game, depending on the league and whether they are assigned to a base or home plate.

"It was pretty much fun," added Mike. "I think I'll do it again next year."

WHILE I was talking to George about baseball, he passed along some not-too-good news about the Lowell Ackmann family of 308 N. Dale Ave. Lee and Bob, both Prospect High School students, were injured in a cable car accident in San Francisco, Calif. Yesterday they expected to have surgery on their legs. Bob's spleen also had to be removed.

George is one of several friends who have called Mary Help Hospital in Daly City, Calif., to talk with Lee and Bob.

They would probably appreciate receiving cards and notes from other friends. Both boys are in Room 509 and will be hospitalized for at least the remainder of this week.

Forest View Still Trying To Estimate Wind Damage

Officials at Forest View High School are busy estimating the amount of damage caused by tornado-like winds that struck the school Friday night.

Principal Larry Jenness said he was not yet sure what the total cost of damages will be at the school. Architects and insurance adjusters were on the scene Monday.

Jenness said the damage has not interfered so far with the school's summer school program. "The only effect on summer school it will have is that we will have to reorganize our physical education classes on the days they have to meet indoors," he said.

The main damage at the school was to the roof of the gym, Jenness said, where a large portion of insulation and two sheets of steel were ripped away by the wind.

The roof was damaged once before by high winds, Jenness said, and has caused persistent problems because it leaks. However, he added, "when we took a look at it this morning we decided it couldn't be too bad a roof because it stayed on."

Jenness said repairs will be planned as soon as the district gets a recommendation from its architects on whether to simply repair the roof or to make changes in it to try to prevent recurring problems.

IN ADDITION, Jenness said, floors in both the boys and girls' gyms at the school will have to be replaced because they were buckled by rain coming through the damaged roof.

The upstairs girls' locker room was extensively damaged by beams thrown through windows from the roof, he said. "One 2-by-6 was slammed into the steel cage surrounding the towel room," he said. "The cage was not damaged, but it was moved back about two feet."

About 12 driver education cars parked near the building at the time of the storm also were damaged, he said. One was picked up and slammed into another car and two were apparently lifted up and replaced in exactly the same spot.

"We can tell they were lifted," Jenness said, "because some of the roofing was under their tires."

Hearings Tonight For 2 Principals

The River Trails Dist. 26 school board will hold private hearings tonight for two principals involved in a reassignment controversy.

Bea Amundson and James Ackley will have a chance to formally protest their reassignments, recommended by Supt. Tom Warden and approved by the board. Both requested the hearings which will be held before the board meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Warden said that Miss Amundson, Feehanville School principal for seven years, was reassigned as a teacher because of a conflict in administrative philosophy. He gave no reasons, however, for Ackley's reassignment as media coordinator. Ackley, principal at River Trails Junior High School for three years, also served as principal at Indian Grove School.

Miss Amundson said the hearings are "what we wanted in the first place." She said the board "was totally unfair in not listening to our side before making its decision."

Board Pres. Lloyd Demel said he did not know if the board would change its decision after the hearings.

Board Passes Nine Tax Resolutions

Dist. 21 school board members were passing resolutions as though it was a New Year's celebration last Thursday night.

The board passed resolutions in nine areas for tax levies, three for related areas, and one giving the board the right to borrow money from the working cash fund.

The nine resolutions for the tax levies were on funds totaling nearly $5 million. The largest funds were education, $3,600,000; building, $700,000; transportation, $200,000.

The three "Related Area" resolutions give the president or board secretary permission to issue tax anticipation warrants in these three funds if they feel it necessary.

The board also resolved to continue membership in the I.A.S.B. (Illinois Association of School Boards) at an increased rate of $570. That will raise the price of the dues for the 1972-73 school year to $1,100 for membership in the organization.

It was also resolved to keep the book rental fee in the district the same as the past school year. The prices are $5 for kindergarten students and $8 for all other students in the district.

Board member Ronald Cole was appointed representative to the North Subdivision Board of the I.A.S.B. by a unanimous decision of the board. Board Pres. Lillian Stiller volunteered to be the alternate delegate to that board.

The final resolution of the night came in the acceptance of the donation of the 17th school site, near the Lamplighter Apartments at Wolf and Willow Roads. The $225,000 plat of land was donated to the district at no cost.

In other matters the board directed Asst. Supt. John Barger to write the Buffalo Grove Park district giving permission to tie into a transformer at Joyce Kilmer School. The tie-in will allow the park districts to light the proposed tennis courts at that site.

The board also heard reports from Barger on the 16th and 17th school sites.

Barger told board members construction will begin on both sites as soon as bids are received. Bid opening will be at 3 p.m. Thursday in the board room of the Administration Building and the board is expected to award contracts at its next meeting July 27.

The 16th school site in Dist. 21 is on Arlington Heights Road, just south of Mill Creek Apartments.

Freak Accident Injures Worker

Mount Prospect public works employee was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when a stone pillar fell on him, the result of an automobile accident.

Rodney Pike, of 5 N. Main St., was admitted to Holy Family Hospital in "very bad" condition with multiple fractures, according to police.

He was one of a crew righting a stone pillar on Lowden Lane near Wolf Road. The pillar was elevated on a hoist when the village truck was struck by a car, causing the pillar to fall on Pike shortly before 2 p.m.

Police said charges are pending against the driver of the car, William J. Cunningham, 17, of 1900 Cholo Ln.

Cunningham and two of his three passengers also were admitted to the hospital. They were Jo R. Pifciotta, 17, of 712 Boulder Dr. and Mark T. Petersen, 17, of 1830 Camp McDonald Rd.

Police said the pillar had been knocked down Saturday night in a hit-and-run accident.

Library Trailer Gains Board OK

The Mount Prospect Library Board received approval last week from the Mount Prospect Zoning Board of Appeals to set up a trailer for temporary office space in the library employee parking lot. Approval was also given for a fence to block off the addition.

A window and part of the wall of the present library building will be removed to allow access to the trailer from within the library. The trailer is expected to remain until either a new library building or addition is built.

Also, a concrete ramp has been installed at the library's Busse Avenue entrance for patrons in wheelchairs. As this is normally an emergency exit, persons wanting to use the ramp should call the library first so they can have someone open the door.

Susan Lubeck, Miss Mount Prospect of 1972, starts competition tomorrow night in the Miss Illinois contest at Aurora.

Miss Lubeck will perform a modern jazz dance routine for the talent category, the first round of competition. Miss Illinois will be named Saturday after evening gown and swimsuit competition.

"We'd like to have everybody show their support by sending her flowers, cards and telegrams," said Gordon Heisler of the Mount Prospect Jaycees. The Jaycees are sponsoring Miss Lubeck, who lives at 415 S. Ojibwa Tr. in Mount Prospect.

Traffic Jams Plague Motorists On NW Tollway

Commuters yesterday experienced the worst traffic jams on the Northwest and Tri-State Tollways since construction began there in May because of elimination of all express lanes.

An Illinois Tollway Authority official said the express lanes were barricaded Sunday morning after a series of serious auto accidents within the last week on the route which had been designated for speedier traffic.

"We had three or four serious accidents on the express lanes last week," the official said, adding, "We closed them because people were driving too fast for conditions."

A Chicago man was killed in a crash on the Northwest Tollway Saturday afternoon when his car crossed the center line and collided with a vehicle in the express lane. The decision to eliminate the express lanes was made Saturday night.

Commuters who ventured onto the eastbound Northwest Tollway yesterday found bumper to bumper traffic which choked Chicago-bound drivers to a standstill. Drivers reported at least an hour back-up on the single eastbound lane yesterday.

The southbound Tri-State Tollway, also funneled to a single lane, had lengthy traffic tie-ups.

DRIVERS CAN expect no relief on the Northwest Tollway until construction is completed Aug. 1, while the Tri-State work may be finished next Tuesday, according to highway officials.

Because of the tangle of traffic, tollway engineers blockaded entrances to the Northwest Tollway at Arlington Heights Road and Elmhurst Road. They now are considering blocking the Touhy Avenue entrance onto the Tri-State to stop drivers from entering there.

Dozens of cars have stalled on the tollway due to the stop-and-go conditions, and the fleet of emergency tollway repair vehicles has been increased.

Tollway officials suggest that drivers take alternate routes to prevent further traffic problems.

The resurfacing projects extend for 11 miles on both toll roads and are being completed at an estimated cost of more than $5.5 million. Both tollways were built in 1958, and this is the first major resurfacing work, consisting of adding layers of blacktop to the existing pavement.

REMNANTS OF an earlier day, these twin silos destroyed a barn near the silos. Although the property, owned by Carl Reinke of Dundee, lies west of Rte. 53 it is within Arlington Heights. Intermittent efforts have been made to transfer the five-acre sliver of property to the Village of Palatine.

Five Named To Housing Commission

Arlington Heights Village President John Woods last night appointed five members with concurrence of the village board, to the Arlington Heights Housing Commission.

Appointed were: John F. Pittas, chairman; Howard Pollard, Mrs. Robert Silberman, Thomas Wade, and Mrs. Patricia Gardner.

Pittas, an administrative vice president for Universal Oil Products Co. process division was named chairman of the five-member housing commission which has been assigned the task of helping to implement 50 units of low and 150 to 250 units of moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights within the next two years.

Pollard, a personnel director with United Air Lines, had served as chairman of the real estate review board in Arlington Heights and was an unsuccessful candidate for the Harper College Board of Trustees in April.

Wade is the village-designated liaison between the village and Norwesco, the Northwest Cook County Opportunity Center which is the governing board of the Northwest Opportunity Center. Wade is also a professor at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Mrs. Silberman is chairman of the District 21 General Caucus and has also been active in the Northgate Parent-Teacher Assn.

The village board voted to confirm the appointments after a 15-minute executive session during last night's regular meeting of the trustees.

Swim Team Loses

Northbrook swimmers beat the Arlington Heights Red team last week in a 350 to 201 decision. Wednesday, the Reds will host Glenview at Olympic Pool, 660 N. Ridge, at 6 p.m.

The only Arlington Heights winner in the diving competition was Ray Hollenbach.

In the 15 and over category, Arlington bested Northbrook as Jan Takata came in with a triple win and Barb Volden and Sue Dragon each took a first place. In the boy's 15 and over division, Charlie Dunn, Jeff Young, and Jim McWherter were first-place winners, along with the relay teams of Dunn, Young, McWherter and Mike Nitch and Mike Nitch, Joe Nitch, Dave Hartman and Dunn.

Other first-place winners for Arlington were Cheryl Takata, Christine Takata, Laura Clotfelter, Keirnan Mack, Mark Rusche and Chris Prinslow.

High Winds, Rain Rip Area

A severe storm with torrential rains swept through the area last night causing severe flooding, power failures and a rash of auto accidents.

Schaumburg police said a tornado was reportedly sighted near the village at about 9 p.m. but there was no indication the funnel had touched down.

Sell $700,000 Bonds For Tennis

The Arlington Heights Park District last night sold $700,000 worth of revenue bonds with which it will construct an indoor tennis facility adjacent to Forest View High School in south Arlington Heights.

The selling of the bond marks the final step on the part of the parks board to build the facility before construction bids are let.

"We expect to open bids on Aug. 8, and let a contract on Aug. 28 for the job," said Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation. "The construction work should start in late September, and should take from six months to a year to complete."

The bonds will cost the park district $476,165 in interest, which is 6.84 per cent, according to Van Kampen, Wauterlek & Brown, Inc. and Columbian Securities, Inc., the bond purchasers, the 15-year bonds will be sold in $5,000 denominations.

The Bank & Trust Company of Arlington Heights has already said it would purchase over $200,000 worth of bonds. Several local citizens have also pledged themselves to buying some of the bonds.

The six-court facility will be financed solely by the revenue bonds, and will not affect the tax rate of park district residents. The bonds will be paid back from revenue generated by the facility.

School Board OKs New Post, Promotions

In the first part of Arlington Heights public school administration reorganization, one new position and two promotions have been approved by the School Dist. 25 Board of Education.

Donald S. Monroe, director of personnel, will become director of administration and planning, and James E. Riebock, principal of the Rand-Berkley Campus, will become director of personnel.

"The net effect of the changes will not mean an increase in the number of administrators," said Donald V. Strong, superintendent. "We feel, however, that it is critical to refill the position of director of administration and planning."

That position was phased out last year as a result of budget cuts. Strong, however, said some administrative positions will be phased out yet this summer.

Major positions in the district left to fill include principals for Patton and Rand-Berkley. There are also about five teacher vacancies in the K-5 schools and five to six teacher vacancies in the junior high schools, according to Monroe.

During Storms, Know What CD Warning Sirens Mean

One of the first lines of warning in the event of crippling storms like last Friday's is the Civil Defense siren alert network.

Most towns in this area are served by CD siren systems that are activated to warn residents when a tornado has been sighted in the area.

"The sirens will not blast during a tornado watch," explained John Fascia, CD coordinator for Region 2-A.

A tornado watch is in effect when "weather conditions are such that a tornado could occur," he said

Elk Grove Storm Damage Totals $1.3 Million

Damage to Elk Grove Village businesses and homes totaled nearly $1.3 million last weekend in one of the worst storms ever to hit the village, Village Mgr Charles Willis said Monday.

"In the dollar amount of damage last Friday night's storm was undoubtedly the worst in the history of the village,"

Willis said. He added that it will take a week or two before all the debris mainly from the wind damage, could be removed.

Rain and high winds from the storm damaged 47 buildings in the industrial park blew off roofs and knocked down walls. Especially hard hit was the business district north of Rte 72 and east of Arlington Heights Road.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett, Fire Capt John Mergens and Building Comr Tom Rettenbacher surveyed the damage building by building early Saturday morning and estimated the loss to buildings and equipment at $1,297,950.

Members of the fire, police, streets and water departments worked through the weekend assisting property owners and helping to clean up debris from damaged buildings and to clear downed trees from the streets.

HULETT SAID his men were busy Friday night making sure no one was caught in buildings and securing gas and electric lines. He said Saturday the men spent most of the day covering windows, walls and roofs with a heavy plastic covering.

"The heavy plastic sheets saved thousands of dollars in possible damage from rains that came late Saturday," Hulett said.

Willis said there was little damage to residential property, but that trees and limbs were downed in many parts of the village. He said more than 40 trees on public property were uprooted and broken off.

"There is nothing like a crisis situation in the village now it's mainly a big cleanup effort," Willis said.

Tom Ryan, manager of Atlas Chain Co. 135 Kelly Blvd. said business was as usual Monday with everyone working around the wreckage of a wall and a roof that collapsed during the storm. He said he was planning to move to a temporary plant in the village until the damage could be repaired.

Paulex Tool and Mold Co. 935 Lee St., was closed Monday and power was off as cleanup began to uncover equipment buried under a wall and half the building's roof.

SEVEN EMPLOYEES WERE working in the rear of the Paulex plant Friday when they heard what they called "a big explosion" as the wall collapsed. None of the seven were hurt. A company official last weekend estimated damage to equipment at $25,000 and said the company may be closed down a month.

A third of the roof at National Heat and Power Co., Inc. 170 Lively Blvd., was ripped off, but the plant was in partial operation Monday. One employee said the roof would be patched temporarily with tar until more permanent roofing could be added.

Also looking for temporary quarters Monday was Telecontrols Inc., 95 Randall Blvd. A company official said the building housing some $40,000 worth of equipment was almost a total loss. He said the roof was blown away and two side walls were down. A third wall was unstable and will have to be demolished and only the front wall is in good condition, he said.

Forest View Still Estimating Damage

Officials at Forest View High School are busy estimating the amount of damage caused by tornado-like winds that struck the school Friday night.

Principal Larry Jenness said he was not yet sure what the total cost of damages will be at the school. Architects and insurance adjusters were on the scene Monday.

Jenness said the damage has not interfered so far with the school's summer school program. "The only effect on summer school it will have is that we will have to reorganize our physical education classes on the days they have to meet indoors," he said.

The main damage at the school was to the roof of the gym. Jenness said, where a large portion of insulation and two sheets of steel were ripped away by the wind.

The roof was damaged once before by high winds, Jenness said, and has caused persistent problems because it leaks. However, he added, "when we took a look at it this morning we decided it couldn't be too bad a roof because it stayed on."

Jenness said repairs will be planned as soon as the district gets a recommendation from its architects on whether to simply repair the roof or to make changes in it to try to prevent recurring problems.

IN ADDITION, Jenness said floods in both the boys and girls' gyms at the school will have to be replaced because they were buckled by rain coming through the damaged roof.

The upstairs girls' locker room was extensively damaged by beams thrown through windows from the roof, he said. "One 2 by-6 was slammed into the steel cage surrounding the towel room," he said. "The cage was not damaged but it was moved back about two feet."

About 12 driver education cars parked near the building at the time of the storm also were damaged, he said. One was picked up and slammed into another car and two were apparently lifted up and replaced in exactly the same spot.

"We can tell they were lifted," Jenness said, "because some of the roofing was under their tires."

Korean Girl Adjusting Well

Jennifer Finds Her New Home

by MARY HUTCHINGS

A 17-month-old Korean girl has a new home in Hoffman Estates.

Jennifer Ann made the 24-hour flight here more than a week ago to meet her new parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bakos, 204 W. Concord Ln.

The first child to be adopted by the Bakoses, her parents say she is making an "unbelievably good" adjustment to her new situation. In Seoul, she lived in a foster home after being abandoned by her real mother.

The Bakoses worked through the International Social Service of America, New York, and it took two years to bring their girl here. They first saw her picture a year ago.

SHE'S AS PRETTY AS can be now as she toddles about her new home, babbling in Korean and using the few English words she knows — Mama, bye-bye and hi. Though she was named "Hi" in Korea, her new parents thought it would be difficult for her to live here with that name. They chose Jennifer for Bakos' sister.

"Abandonment is the ultimate rejection," Peter Bakos said. "We fell in love with her."

The Bakoses plan to have two children of their own, and then adopt again, probably another Korean. "The Koreans seem to be in the most need," Mrs.

Bakos said.

Though they had hoped to adopt an American Indian child, they found the Indians "very race conscious." They don't want their children adopted," Bakos said.

Jennifer Ann's first day here might have been a little traumatic for her, with both the shock of separation and the cultural differences she faced immediately.

WITH SPECIAL attention, to her diet, her new mother made a rice dinner for her with beef chunks. She picked out the beef and ate only the rice, but now she likes meat, although citrus fruits and orange juice are still "icky."

"She's going to be a great connoisseur of food," her father says.

Family and neighbors, the couple said, were enthusiastic about Jennifer's arrival, and with the stream of company to their home, she is gradually getting used to people and to the fact that she is with the Bakoses for good — the visitors haven't come to take her away again.

Mrs. Bakos will get her registered nurses degree in August and hopes to work part-time. Now her husband works the evening shift at Aerosol Research so that he can be home with Jennifer during the day. A neighbor, Mrs. Vee Yackey, babysits for Jennifer during the one-hour gap in her parents' schedules.

THE CATHOLIC charities refused to help the Bakoses adopt a foreign child because of Mrs. Bakos' plans to work. The next time they adopt, the couple plans to use the Holt Agency, Seattle, because they said it is supposed to be faster.

Though Mrs. Bakos was apprehensive when she took Jennifer out for the first time, she found that Jennifer was the center of attraction at the doctor's office and in shopping centers.

The Bakoses hope to teach Jennifer something of her culture as she grows up, and expect that by "showing enough love and affection in the early stages," she will have few problems as she adapts and grows in her new society.

JENNIFER ANN, who came to the United States from Seoul, Korea, enjoys playing with her father, Peter, in her new Hoffman Estates home. The 17-month-old adopted daughter of the Bakoses is making a remarkably fast adjustment to her new culture and life here, her parents report.

Board Passes Nine Tax Resolutions

Dist. 21 school board members were passing resolutions as though it was a New Year's celebration last Thursday night.

The board passed resolutions in nine areas for tax levies, three for related areas, and one giving the board the right to borrow money from the working cash fund.

The nine resolutions for the tax levies were on funds totaling nearly $5 million. The largest funds were education, $3,600,000; Building, $700,000; transportation $200,000.

The three "Related Area" resolutions give the president or board secretary permission to issue tax anticipation warrants in these three funds if they feel it necessary.

The board also resolved to continue membership in the I.A.S.B. (Illinois Association of School Boards) at an increased rate of $370. That will raise the price of the dues for the 1972-73 school year to $1,100 for membership in the organization.

It was also resolved to keep the book rental fee in the district the same as the past school year. The prices are $5 for kindergarten students and $8 for all other students in the district.

Board member Ronald Cole was appointed representative to the North Sub-division Board of the I.A.S.B. by a unanimous decision of the board. Board Pres. Lillian Stiller volunteered to be the alternate delegate to that board.

The final resolution of the night came in the acceptance of the donation of the 17th school site, near the Lamplighter Apartments at Wolf and Willow Roads. The $225,000 plot of land was donated to the district at no cost.

In other matters the board directed Asst. Supt. John Barger to write the Buffalo Grove Park district giving permission to tie into a transformer at Joyce Kilmer School. The tie-in will allow the park districts to light the proposed tennis courts at that site.

The board also heard reports from Barger on the 16th and 17th school sites.

Barger told board members construction will begin on both sites as soon as bids are received. Bid opening will be at 8 p.m. Thursday in the board room of the Administration Building and the board is expected to award contracts at its next meeting July 27.

The 16th school site in Dist. 21 is on Arlington Heights Road, just south of Mill Creek Apartments.

Mount Prospect Man Faces Four Traffic Counts

A Mount Prospect man was charged with four moving traffic violations Saturday night after the car he was driving knocked down a traffic signal standard and hit two other cars at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Rand roads.

Edwin Wozniak, 940 E. Northwest Highway, Mount Prospect, was charged with damage to public property, driving on the wrong side of the road, driving too fast for conditions and running a red light.

According to police reports, Wozniak was driving southeast on Rand Road when his car struck a traffic signal standard mounted on the median at the intersection of Rand and Arlington Heights roads.

Wozniak's car then struck a second car which was traveling north on Arlington Heights Road, jumped into the northwest bound lane of Rand Road and hit a third car, police report.

Wozniak was thrown out of his car and was taken to Northwest Community Hospital where he was treated and released.

The drivers of the other two cars were not injured.

Housing Study Opponent Named To Commission

The Des Plaines City Council last night appointed the president of a Des Plaines anti low and moderate-income housing group to serve as a member of the city's new special housing commission.

Joseph Botte, who had campaigned to deny the new commission permission to study low and moderate-income housing was named to the commission by a seven-member panel by a 9-8 vote in a council secret ballot.

Botte, president and founder of the "Des Plaines Citizens Opposed to Low and Moderate Income Housing," told the Herald that he was "gratified" by the vote.

He thinks he can make a "positive contribution" to investigations into city housing problems, and that the "people of Des Plaines will be represented."

Rejecting all of Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel's recommendations, the council also appointed John Brennan, 142 Westgate Rd., a research chemist for Universal Oil Products; Harold Harvey, president of the Northpoint State Bank of Arlington Heights, and a board member of Elk Grove Township Elementary District 59 Board of Education; and Edward Sherwood, of 2080 Webster Lane, president of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

THE COUNCIL ALSO appointed three "professionals" to the commission, who will serve as members and technical advisers.

They are a Des Plaines attorney, William Vedral, 942 W. Villa Dr.; Lee Marconi, a contractor; and Ralph Martin, a former alderman who will serve as a real estate consultant.

Following Mayor Behrel's recommendations, the council named Martin as chairman of the panel, which will have responsibility for investigating city housing problems for one year before making final recommendations for city actions.

Low and moderate-income housing for families has been under public discussion since last summer when a pro-housing group asked the city council to change zoning laws and city priorities to create new housing. The city had previously taken steps to develop government-subsidized low and moderate-income housing for the elderly.

AFTER REJECTING these housing proposals, because of "lack of information" the council created a housing commission in February. Following several controversies concerning the commission, the council was unable to clarify whether the commission will be allowed to study low and moderate-income housing.

However, the Herald learned that a move by the city council to block a study of low and moderate-income housing would cause future rejections of federal grants for senior citizen housing.

Behrel had stated that he did not want to propose Botte's name for consideration for appointment because he did not want to appoint residents who had already formed unalterable opinions on housing issues.

However, the council included Botte's name for consideration at Botte's request.

Behrel had recommended appointment of the Rev. Donald Hallberg, who had spoken publicly for low and moderate-income housing; Mrs. Frances Lapides, who had conducted a League of Women Voters survey which recommended new housing; Drake Mertes, a 21-year-old Northwestern University student, and George Mott, former chairman of the city's human relations commission.

Botte, a gas company service man, and a one-year Des Plaines resident, had led angry shouting at a meeting on housing last fall. His group had also proposed impeachment of an alderman who had favored study of low and moderate-income housing.

RUBBLE LIES ON the ground where the Lystrom-Buescher Inc., factory stood prior to Friday night's storm. Two other buildings near Lystrom-Buescher located on the 1200 block of Rand Rd. in Des Plaines were heavily damaged. Art Lystrom told the Herald he plans to start rebuilding his factory as soon as possible.

2,000 Trees Hit By Friday's Storm

Damage To School Set At $200,000

It may cost Des Plaines Elementary Dist. 62 up to $200,000 to repair damage caused by last Friday night's storm which ripped off the roof on the west wing of Cumberland School, 700 Golf Rd., Des Plaines.

According to Dist. 62 director of business services Harold Brieshke, eight classrooms were exposed when high winds from the storm tore off the roof, sending flying debris into homes 100 yards away.

Brieshke told the Herald 14 classrooms were damaged and nine were a "complete loss." He said the cost of repairing and rebuilding as well as cleaning up the debris will reach $150,000 to $200,000.

Part of the roof on the east wing of the school was torn off by the tornado-like winds which damaged some of the walls, Brieshke said.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS have authorized architects Holmes and Fox, 72 N. Broadway, Des Plaines, to hire a structural engineer to inspect wall and roof supports throughout the building.

Brieshke said cleanup and repair work has already started but added "it's too early to tell" whether all classrooms in the school will be used in the fall.

Several thousand Des Plaines homes were left without electric power after the storm swept through the city.

J. J. Stephens, district superintendent for Commonwealth Edison, told the Herald 125 employees worked through the weekend until power was restored to all the homes by noon Sunday.

Joseph Schwab, Des Plaines public works commissioner, said 2,000 trees were damaged by the storm's high winds and added that 600 of those trees were completely destroyed.

Schwab said 60 men using 55 pieces of equipment worked 22 hours clearing trees from streets and notifying the electric company of downed power lines.

At least 40 traffic signals had to be installed in city intersections where traffic lights were not operating because of the power failure, according to Schwab.

Police reported at least 15 automobiles were damaged by flying debris and fallen tree limbs during the storm and speculated many more were not reported.

Young Opens Campaign, Blasts Mikva

Samuel Young of Glenview, Republican candidate in the North Suburban 10th District Congressional race, launched his campaign yesterday by reopening charges that his opponent, U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-2nd, is an "ultra-liberal" and a carpetbagger.

Echoing the stands of Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase, who was defeated 2-1 by Mikva in the Democratic primary, Young called Mikva impractical and said Mikva would be unable to represent the views of his new district.

Young, terming himself a "pragmatic" independent Republican who knows the needs and desires of the five-township district, said he will have to fight as an "underdog" against Mikva's apparently overflowing war chest and congressional publicity.

YOUNG ALSO emphasized that he has gained firm GOP organizational support, including the support of Floyd Fulle, Maine Township GOP committeeman who was defeated by Young in the March Republican primary. Fulle had accused Young of using smear tactics, and shortly after his defeat refused to back Young. Fulle was unavailable for comment yesterday.

Young, speaking at a press conference yesterday in Skokie, said he will "receive a bigger plurality in Maine" than he would in Northfield, his native township.

He also told the Herald that he will try to create a volunteer organization in Maine Township, which will have at least one representative in each precinct.

About one-third of his speech—which also included comments on Vietnam, tax and congressional reform—was taken up with comments about Mikva. "Many of the programs he advocates would strike hardest at the kind of people who live in the 10th district," Young said.

HE SAID Mikva is "blinded by principles" and cannot "see the whole picture. My opponent can only see one side of the coin. I wish I was as sure about anything as my opponent is about everything."

Young hit several times at Mikva's moving into the 10th district, after his South Side Chicago district was reapportioned. Mikva moved late last year to Evanston.

"The center of Mr. Mikva's present district is roughly 103rd and Stony Island. That's a long CTA ride—with a lot of transferring. But it is just a short jaunt compared to the distance Mr. Mikva has to travel to change most of his views so that they will be reflective of the views of the majority of the people in the 10th district," Young said.

Trinity Church Opens Campaign For Low-Income Housing

by LEON SHURE

One of the largest Des Plaines churches has begun a campaign to win public support for construction of low and moderate-income housing here.

Several members of Trinity Lutheran Church, 657 Algonquin Rd., will ask eight large Des Plaines churches to join in urging the city council to create new housing for low and moderate-income families, the Herald has learned.

Spearheaded by a Trinity study group which has won support from the 12-member Trinity church council, the petition effort is "aimed at showing the city council that people are concerned about the issue, and they want it studied," according to Warren McCune, 540 N. 5th Ave., study group chairman.

TRINITY ALSO wants the council to know, McCune said, that the Des Plaines Citizens Opposed to Low and Moderate Income Housing does not represent the views of all local residents.

Those churches which will be asked to join with Trinity include the Christ Evangelical and Reformed Church, Cora and Henry streets; the First Congregational Church, 766 Graceland Ave.; Immanuel Lutheran Church, Lee and Thacker streets; St. Martin's Episcopal Church, Thacker and Margaret streets; St. Mary's Catholic Church, Pearson Street and Prairie Avenue; St. Stephen's Catholic Church, 1267 Everett Ave., and St. Zachary's Catholic Church, 567 Algonquin Rd.

Two other churches which also have Des Plaines memberships, St. Emily's Church in Mount Prospect and Our Lady of Hope Church in Rosemont, will also be asked to approve the petition to the council, which was scheduled last night to appoint members to a special housing commission that may study low and moderate-income housing.

The Trinity petition, written by the church's social ministry study group and approved early this month by the church council — headed by the Rev. Mark Bertram, church pastor — urges "immediate action to provide low-rise low and moderate-income housing on scattered sites" in Des Plaines and other suburban communities.

"It is a moral, social, and political indictment of our society that a people able to provide life, liberty and happiness to all its citizens lacks the will and courage to do so," it says.

NOTING GOVERNMENT reports since 1949 have shown that many thousands of housing units are needed, the statement says "the suburbs have done virtually nothing to ease our housing crisis."

"Our past and present housing policies as a people have resulted in a society of striking contrast between suburban and city housing.

"The well-to-do have generally fled to the suburbs, and then enforced zoning and housing codes restrictive to low and moderate-income people. Within the central city, public housing has had to compete for land with profitable shums and office buildings. The result has been the concentration and segregation of the poor into impersonal steel and concrete structures," it says.

"The situation is an agony for those who are forced to survive in such concentration camps, but just as important, it has corrupted the quality of life of the entire society.

"We strongly and urgently declare that the paradox of simultaneous rot in our cities and dynamism in our suburbs . . . is totally unacceptable to us as concerned and active citizens.

"In order to provide racial and economic justice, it is necessary to reverse now the discriminatory patterns which suburban areas have practiced in the past," it says.

"We therefore, urge our village and city governments to take immediate action to provide low-rise housing on scattered sites in every suburban community so that people of all incomes and racial ethnic groups can have access to decent housing in the north and northwest suburban areas," it says.

MCCUNE SAID last week that Trinity members will appear at church council meetings of the 10 other churches, and ask that discussion of the petition statement be placed on council agendas. Because many church councils don't meet until the fall, he does not anticipate gaining full support from these churches until this winter.

The Trinity congregation, which includes about 600 families, will also vote in January to determine whether they will finally support the decision of their church council representatives.

Eight out of 12 council members voted to approve the petition statement, McCune said.

Nineteen clergymen from almost all of the largest Des Plaines churches signed petitions last October favoring proposals for zoning and city policy changes to encourage low and moderate-income housing here.

They were Pastor Bergman; the Rev. Robert Bruhl, pastor and the Rev. Charles Kepler, associate pastor of First United Methodist; the Rev. Ernest Grant, associate pastor of First Congregational; the Rev. Howard Peck-enpugh pastor of St. Martin's; the Rev. Bernhard Johanson, minister at First Presbyterian.

ALSO THE REV. R. K. Wobbe, pastor and the Rev. James Jackson, associate pastor of Christ Evangelical and Reformed; the Rev. Albert Weidlich, pastor of Grace Evangelical Lutheran; the Rev. Lloyd Wolters, pastor of First Christian Reformed; the Rev. Allen Fedder, pastor of Immanuel Lutheran, and Rabbi Jay Karzen, of the Maine Township Jewish Congregation.

Also the Rev. Martin Farrell, pastor of St. Mary's; the Rev. Donald Hughes, associate pastor at St. Stephen's and Des Plaines Youth Commission chairman; the Rev. Robert Melcher, associate pastor of St. Stephen's, the Rev. Gerald Dodge, associate pastor at St. Mary's; and the Rev. William O'Connor, associate pastor at St. Zachary's.

amnesty to draft dodgers, pushed for liberalized federal abortion laws, supported busing to establish racial balance, opposed all defense spending, favors consideration of the Mills bill to eliminate federal deductions for charitable contributions, mortgage interest and real estate taxes, and proposed and supports gigantic additional federal spending programs, find happiness and votes in the 10th district?

"Will most of those who vote on Nov. 7 remember with favor my opponent's harsh, intemperate and personal criticism of President Nixon? Will they remember with favor his simplistic promises to end the war?"

In a week? Will they remember with favor his programs which would vastly increase public spending and redistribute incomes by increasing the tax load on people who have incomes of more than $10,000?"

Commenting on these statements late yesterday, Mikva said that Young "really ought to stick to the truth." He said he will send Young a copy of the Code of Fair Campaign Practices, which prohibits "use of campaign material that distorts the views of candidates, or which creates doubts without justification."

"Young knows very well I have never advocated or voted for impeachment of Nixon. I never promised to end the war in a week. What I did say was that if the President or Congress could end the war and withdraw troops in 30 or 60 days, that this is physically possible."

AS FOR TAX reform, Mikva said he has never advocated raising the taxes of people with incomes of more than $10,000. What he has favored is closing tax loopholes which allow some corporations and individuals who earn more than $200,000 a year to pay no taxes, Mikva said.

On defense spending, Mikva said he has voted for defense appropriations but has been careful not to vote for unneeded programs. In his public statements, Mikva has said he would not consider amnesty to draft dodgers until the war is ended. He has said that he would support busing under some conditions, but feels that increased aid and better education is also one answer to problems of integration.

MIKVA HAS SAID the real issue is not whether he is a carpetbagger but whether he would best serve the district. "Lincoln was a carpetbagger. It's a great old tradition," he has said.

Mikva told the Herald he is "tired of" answering the same distortions of his position. He had hoped, he said, that this would end with the defeat of Blase. Young's tactic is "offensive," especially since the two candidates have legitimate differences of opinion on some issues, Mikva said.

Repeating his stands of the primary race, Young spoke in favor of congressional reform, and an end to the seniority system. Echoing former President Harry Truman, Young called the Democratic congress a "do nothing" legislative body, and said many of the nation's current domestic problems are the result of inaction and lack of leadership by a Democratic Congress.

He called for a "fairer, simpler and more efficient system of taxation," and said the tax burden should not be increased for those families now earning between $4,000 and $20,000.

HE WOULD NOT approve of ending deductions on mortgage interest and real estate taxes, because they "encourage home ownership." Tax breaks on capital gains on home sales and stocks and tax free municipal bonds, also should not be changed, Young said.

He emphasized his opposition to "illogical busing" which he termed busing children away from good schools to poorer schools. He said integration should be a goal achieved through education and good will and not forced upon the suburbs.

Running on the same ticket with Nixon may help his campaign, Young said, and McGovern's candidacy, "may be a plus" for Republicans. At present, Young supporters are examining possible campaign aid from prominent state and national Republicans, he said. However, he doesn't feel that outside help will make a difference. This is a "man to man" campaign.

Young announced appointment of Harriet Damish, wife of a prominent Chicago attorney and a campaign worker in past Republican campaigns, as his campaign manager.

Linda Jenness For President?

She'd Rather Be A Revolutionary

by RALPH NOVAK

BOSTON — It's not an unusual crowd for a political rally in 1972. Mostly young people, from early teens to mid-20s, simmering and fidgeting with the excitement of being involved, nervously anxious as they wait to hear a talk by their presidential candidate.

But this meeting, in a bright, clean hall that seems incongruous in the dingy area around South Station, is in the local headquarters of the Socialist Workers Party (SWP). And the party's candidate for president in 1972 is Linda Jenness, who bears as much resemblance to George McGovern or Hubert Humphrey or Richard Nixon as your local Good Humor man does to the chairman of the board of General Motors.

For one thing, Ms. Jenness (she prefers just plain "Jenness") does not insist that she will win. For another, she knows that even if some electoral miracle happened and she did win the election, she could not legally be president, since she is only 31 years old and the Constitution says you have to be 35 to be president. And finally, when you get right down to it, Ms. Jenness does not even want to be president.

"WE DON'T have any illusions about changing this country through the electoral system," she says. "This campaign is just an opportunity for us to gain some new members, to challenge some restrictive election laws and generally to alert people to the undemocratic nature of the whole capitalist society."

The SWP is, after all, a revolutionary socialist party. Its goal is to end private ownership of factories and resources — the "means of production."

Marxism has been downplayed in the party's use of the electoral system to attack the Vietnam war, sexism, racism, inflation and the rest of the catalogue of ills that confound even Americans who can't tell dialectical materialism from the chicken pox. But nobody denies that the party is revolutionary.

JEANNE LAFFERTY, an SWP candidate for Congress from a Massachusetts district says, "Everybody thinks we want to storm the White House with rifles and take over. We would if we could but we know that it would be absurd to try that right now, so we use the electoral system instead."

Ms. Jenness dresses conservatively and looks like a schoolteacher, which creates a nonrevolutionary image she says she has to overcome when talking to radicals. She is no rookie, however.

She ran as the SWP candidate for governor of Georgia (1970) and mayor of Atlanta (1969). And she emerged undaunted even after getting knocked off the ballot at the last minute both times by what she calls "discriminatory election laws designed to keep everybody but the Democrats and Republicans off the ballot."

A FORMER SECRETARY, Ms. Jenness was raised in a middle class Oklahoma family (her father, a veterinarian, is "still a reactionary," she says, shrugging) but was alerted to the problems in American society by the early civil rights movement and has been finding things wrong ever since.

Her nomination came at the SWP convention in Cleveland last August.

She has secured a place on the November ballot in three states already and says she expects to be on about 27 more. She can avoid the Constitutional age limit in most states because voters actually pick electors who are pledged to vote for a candidate, not the candidate himself, and in others the party will use the names of eligible candidates on the ballot to substitute for her and her running mate, Andrew Pulley, a 21-year-old black.

IN ANY CASE, for Ms. Jenness getting there is more than half the fun; it is all of it. She is campaigning nationwide, armed with an impressive memory for facts and figures and a speaking style that is unexciting but earnest.

She and nearly 100 local SWP candidates in 15 states are backed by a campaign fund of about $500,000 (the money comes from speaking engagements — at $500 per speech for Ms. Jenness — collections and individual contributions from individuals and sympathetic groups), a slick publicity operation and a hard core party membership of about 4,000.

Her appearance here drew about 200 people, ranging from the mildly interested to the fanatic. One of them was a 59-year-old plumber, a socialist for 36 years, who kept saying, "I've never seen anything like it" as the young SWP leaders celebrated the successful end of a three-week petitioning drive to place their candidates on the ballot in Massachusetts.

THE DRIVE ENDED, the leaders said, with more than 100,000 signatures. Most of the signers were not socialists, of course.

Ms. Jenness, in fact, says that at best, with somebody other than George McGovern running as the Democratic candidate in November, she would expect to get no more than 250,000 votes nationwide. Even that would be an achievement of sorts.

No socialist presidential candidate has received that many votes since Norman Thomas (considered an ideological Uncle Tom by the SWP) got 881,951 votes in 1932. And the most any SWP candidate has received since the party ran its first candidate in 1948 was the 41,300 votes Fred Halstead got in 1968.

BUT MS. JENNESS and the rest of the

LINDA JENNESS

SWP — no doubt aware of the fact that all of history's revolutions have started among small, elitist groups — are optimistic beyond all bounds of reasonable expectation.

"We are going through a period of tremendous radicalization in this country," she says. "People are becoming more and more aware that there is a group of 30,000 or 40,000 people who make all the decisions about everything that happens in this country. And they will see that with the profit motive as the end-all and be-all of existence, all the problems of war, poverty, racism and sexism, they have are not just an accident, they are inevitable."

Maybe you can ignore her. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Biologist Probes Causes Of Aging

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Backed by a $1 million grant and the drive to unlock one of nature's best-kept secrets, a State University at Buffalo biologist has begun a five-year study aimed at learning the causes of aging, and perhaps how to control that process.

Dr. Morton Rothstein, a Vancouver, B.C., native on the faculty here since 1965, readily admits his research will be no easy task but, nearing age 50 himself, he confesses that if there is a "cure," he's ready for it.

"There have been numerous theories about the aging process down through the years," he explained. "Practically as quickly as one comes up with one theory, it is contradicted by the another."

"But regardless of the why or how, we all age and there must be a reason for it," he said.

ROTHSTEIN, a professor of biology, said his study would involve the use of nematodes — very small worms which keep the same cells from birth to death. Instead of cell multiplications, he said the nematodes grow by enlarging their cells.

"What we are working with is an organism whose cells we can observe at both young and old stages and we are observing the same cells," he said.

Rothstein said the nematodes, whose life span is only 20 to 40 days, are grown in test tubes and isolated, then separated into "young" and "old" organisms.

"By having control over the nutrients, temperature and other necessary growth requirements," he said, "the effect of these considerations on the total life span can be observed."

HE SAID biologists already know that, physiologically, wrinkled skin is caused by "oxidation, or a binding together of skin tissue," but that the cause of oxidation must be studied on a molecular level.

"Aging is a result of a changing in the operation of the cells," Rothstein said. "Every function performed in the body depends on enzymes which are produced and which act as catalysts for every chemical reaction in the body."

"I believe that in the process of aging, something happens in the cells that causes an organism to produce ineffective enzymes."

The research is being conducted under a $1 million grant from the National Institute of Child Care and Human Development. It is one of the largest grants ever awarded a Buffalo professor, the university said.

ROTHSTEIN, who received his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois, has been studying for biochemistry of nematodes for 10 years and has published a number of technical reports.

"It may never be possible to stop the aging process altogether," he said, "but such research might one day enable scientists to at least contribute to a healthy life that is otherwise jeopardized by old age."

Bride Attends Family Reunion

A small, informal wedding attended by a few close friends and relatives was the choice of Carol Ann Misicka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Misicka, 231 Westmere, Des Plaines, and her groom, David Alan Norquist. David's parents are the George Norquists of 1138 N. Patton Ave., Arlington Heights.

They pronounced the vows that made them man and wife before Pastor Edwin I. Stevens at South Church, Community Baptist in Mount Prospect on June 30 at 6 p.m.

Carol wore a street-length, A-line dress of white crepe with long sleeves and bodice of lace. Adorning her head was a cluster of the same flowers that made up her bridal bouquet — white roses, pink stephanotis and baby's breath.

THE BRIDE'S sister, Mrs. Sue Brongiel of Elk Grove Village, performed her duties as matron of honor attired in a yellow and white sleeveless, street-length crepe dress. Her brother, Ted Misicka of Des Plaines, served the groom as best man.

Following the double ring ceremony at the church, a small informal buffet reception for about 25 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. For their wedding trip, the newlyweds traveled to Michigan for four days. While there, David introduced his new bride at a Norquist family reunion.

Carol is a 1972 graduate of Forest View High School. David, a 1967 Prospect High

Mr. and Mrs. David Norquist graduate, is employed by the Diamond Outdoor Sign Co. in Des Plaines. The couple are now settled in their Arlington Heights apartment.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: You recommend using a meat thermometer in cooking meat and poultry, but I don't believe I have ever seen you warn that one must take over the meat just before it reaches the temperature one wants. You know meat keeps cooking for a little while after it has been removed from the heat, especially if there is a bone connected with it.

—Ruth Elson.

You're absolutely right, and if I haven't mentioned it, I goofed. And particularly for those fanatics who like their meat almost bloody rare, that extra five minutes would turn them into grumbling sourpusses. Thanks for catching me up on this one.

Dear Dorothy: Is there any way to renew a white straw purse that has turned yellow?

—Mrs. Charles Ferguson

White straw is completely unpredictable. Once when I tried to wash one, it fell apart in my hands. Our daughter-in-law has a good straw purse that yellowed. Washed with a tepid solution of mild white soap flakes, it came out beautifully. In short, you just gamble.

Dear Dorothy: Inasmuch as no one in the family likes skin on chicken, I sprinkle on a little paprika after it is fried which takes the bare look and makes it look golden.

—Mrs. D. S.

Dear Dorothy: Please print something about getting static electricity out of clothes. I have two pretty dresses I can't wear because they cling to me like paper to a wall — the dresses, not the slips.

—Lucille Hill

If they're washable, fabric softener will take care of it. If not, cleaning them will do it.

Model Lunch Project Without A Kitchen

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A lunch program developed by Philadelphia Catholic schools a little more than a year ago has become a model for others faced with the need to provide hot meals in schools without kitchen facilities.

The program is designed around a line of individual-serving hot entrees in easy-open, pull-top cans and inexpensive electric oven-dispensers that use normal house current. The entrees, when supplemented with milk, fruit and other required foods, make up a lunch that qualifies for assistance under the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Type A lunch program.

Park Ridge Stops Arlington

THE HERALD

Tuesday, July 18, 1972

Section 2 — 1

The Lion Sleeps Tonight

by TOM CARKEEK
Fred Parker — an unlikely hero. Unlikely because he hit a home run. He hasn't gotten a single all year.

A hero because his home run broke a 2-2 tie in the first extra inning and presented the Park Ridge Legion baseball team with its third straight victory of the summer over perennial power Arlington Heights.

Park Ridge is now in sole possession of the Ninth District's top spot with a 9-4 mark. Arlington, which would have only one defeat to mar its ledger if Park Ridge wasn't in the league, dropped into a tie with Logan Square for second place at 8-4.

Parker's blast came as he led off the eighth inning in Sunday's game at Recreation Park. Everyone, including Arlington right-fielder Mark Leonhard, knew the ball was really tagged as soon as Parker laid wood to it. Leonhard pivoted and sprinted away from the diamond with the crack of the bat, but he never had a chance. There are no fences or distance markers at Rec Park, but the consensus arrived at a figure of about

It had to be a heartbreaking loss for Arlington pitcher Jim Hopkins. During the regulation seven innings, Hopkins had allowed two unearned runs on just two hits and had walked only one batter. That's good enough to win 90 per cent of the games a man pitches.

Parker had not entered the game for his offensive abilities. He had come in with runners at first and second, one out, and two men in during the Arlington sixth.

Park Ridge starter Scott Jones had walked Jim Locascio and Leonhard to open the inning and had watched them move up a base each when catcher Mike McDonald threw away a pickoff attempt. Dave Zare then grounded back to Jones, who held the runners and pegged Zare out.

But then Jones saw his club's 2-0 lead dissolve with one swing of Dave Giles' bat as the beefy Arlington first baseman doubled to right, scoring Locascio and Leonhard and knotting the score at 2-2. Jones then gave up his third walk of the inning to Jim Prandini and with that Park Ridge coach Jerry Romes was out of the dugout to yank Jones.

That's when Parker entered the scene. He got the second out of the inning when Hopkins hit into a fielder's choice forcing Prandini at second and putting Giles on third. With Bob Harth at bat, Arlington coach Lloyd Meyer tried one of his favorite plays. He ordered Hopkins off first base, the idea being that Parker would see an easy chance to pick him off and meanwhile Giles would dash home before a play could be made.

But that never materialized. Hopkins was caught between first and second by heads-up shortstop Steve Sarcia and Giles was left stranded on third.

Arlington was not without other opportunities. Post 208 left runners on second and third in the first inning, had two on in the fifth when center fielder Mickey Drews made a diving catch for the third out, and nearly pulled the game out in the seventh when, with a man on second and two out, Locascio sent a sinking liner to left which almost dropped safely and would have scored the winning run.

But Park Ridge left fielder Rick Lloyd came up with a fielding gem by sliding across the outfield grass to spear it and send the game into extra innings.

Giles almost matched Parker's clout in the Arlington eighth. With two out in the bottom of the inning and Parker needing to retire only Giles to clinch the victory, Giles tore into one of the southpaw's offerings and sent a screaming drive down the leftfield line which fell just inside foul territory. But for a few feet the game would have been tied again.

Park Ridge had scored in the first inning when leadoff man Charlie Fahrner walked and took second on Russ Anderson's single. Anderson was the only player from either squad to collect two hits. Arlington and Park Ridge evenly divided six hits.

Then McDonald hit a grounder to Locascio at short, who tossed to second baseman Bert Newman for the first half of an attempted double play only to see Giles drop the throw at first. Fahrner tallied on the error.

Post 247 picked up its second unearned run in the fourth when McDonald was safe on a fielder's choice and then came all the way around when Newman committed two errors on the same play. Lloyd grounded to Newman for what might have been a double play, but Newman booted the ball and when he was slow in going after it, McDonald alertly headed for third. Newman hurried his throw and wound up flinging it past third and allowing McDonald to score.

Temper flared on several occasions. In the first inning, Romes went jaw-to-jaw with an umpire. In the fifth, Arlington catcher Pat Broderick was thrown out of the game after he questioned the home plate umpire's call on a low strike. And Meyer was far from content over several calls at the plate.

Victorious coach Romes summed it up by saying, "There's nobody the kids and I would rather beat than Lloyd because he's got such a fiery team. It's good to beat one of the best around."

LEO DUROCHER, the winningest active manager in the major leagues, is closing in on the 2,000-victory mark. (His teams had won 1,865 games and lost 1,570 entering the 1972 season.) He began his managing career in 1939 with the Brooklyn Dodgers (above). He has directed the Chicago Cubs (right) since 1966 when he returned to baseball after a 10-year absence.

With A Little Bit Of Luck (?)

by LARRY EVERHART

How often have we all heard laments like, "We don't have any luck," or "They got all the breaks" to explain a defeat for one of the teams we're backing?

Too often, if you ask me.

References to luck are made far too much from what I have heard during close contact with high school sports. Sometimes, of course, breaks do play a definite part in determining a winner and loser.

But not as many times as people like to say.

What many of us don't realize is that luck, or lack of it, often is not what we think. In other words, we can sometimes confuse bad or good "breaks" with bad or good play. This is not as unlikely as you might think, even for the knowledgeable fan who has been around sports for a long time.

It would seem to me that there are many times when what is classified as a break (either way) is not accidental or random as we tend to think. It's not always the same as the roll of the dice or deal of the deck.

The trouble is that sometimes we over-generalize. If a certain occurrence in a given sport happens which we have seen occur before, our minds might categorize it immediately — without thinking about the particular situation — as luck or "one of the breaks of the game."

Yet many times the play was not accidental at all, even if it might have seemed that way. The team for which the play went in favor might well have done something to force it to happen that way. They might have truly earned their good fortune, which really does not make it fortune at all, but the fruits of labor.

But because he has possibly seen the same type of play many times before, the fan in the stands — or perhaps watching on the tube, in the case of big time sports — will generalize, remarking, "What a break. Things are sure falling right today for —."

I don't know about you, but I have found myself falling into this trap plenty of times. It's easy to do when you're rooting for one team and your involvement in a contest makes it almost impossible to view the play objectively. Thus, we might not always give credit where credit is due to the opposing team.

There's no way of knowing how many fans really feel that one of their favorite teams has enjoyed as much good luck as bad luck over a season or a number of years. But my guess is that fans with such an attitude are in a small minority.

This really is not right because breaks do tend to even out over a span of time.

If a game is one-sided or if a team has an exceptionally good or bad season, we don't hear as much talk about luck. But in close games — especially important ones — we tend to emphasize this factor too much.

To understand more clearly, let's consider a few examples.

In baseball, if a ball lands barely fair or foul, you'll hear, "that could have gone either way — it looks like it's their night!" about the team which "lucked out." The same thing is said when a long drive is hauled in on the warning track, just a few feet from being a home run.

Yet, perhaps if the batter had done what he wanted to in the first place, it wouldn't have even been close. Do we always remember that the field is laid out exactly the same for both teams? Do we remember instances in which a close play goes in favor of our team and attribute this to good luck the same as we do in the case of a bad break?

I can remember relatively minor, insignificant cases from years ago where a team I was rooting for lost a close game because of what I thought was adverse fortune. Yet I can recall much fewer cases where the same things happened in reverse. Is the same true of you? Is there really that big a difference?

For another example, let's take football. Plays which are commonly called "breaks" in football are turnovers — fumble recoveries or pass interceptions.

But when such a play occurs, it is really luck? Not that often. A grid cliché is that "you make your own breaks." How true. A turnover results from alert, hard-nosed play. A defensive player is where the ball is because he is playing aggressively and is in position — not because the ball just happened to end up in his hands.

Basketball is a game in which breaks, in the form of how the ball bounces and to which team, seem to happen nearly every minute of every game.

Yet if one team is getting most of the loose balls or rebounds that bounce off the floor, it is not fate. Again, it's because of more determined play — usually. We take note of borderline plays and referees' calls and remember them when they go against our team. But if they're in our favor, they are attributed to "superior play" and quickly forgotten.

I would like to add that in my experience, coaches are not nearly as guilty of this "luck generalization" as parents, girl friends, brothers or students. The latter groups get so wrapped up in games that they forget to look at things from the other team's point of view, too.

But most prep coaches, if you ask them, will refuse to make excuses. They generally tell it like it is, in defeat or victory. "Like it is" usually means, "They're better than we are" or "They outplayed us."

To be sure, it must be noted once again that fortune can play a part. But more often, when something happens in athletics, it happens for a good reason. Let's keep that in mind.
